ALCOCK GIVEN NEW ORDER FOR CLEANUP DRIVE

Cermak Lists Places to Be Closed.

Mayor Cermak's ultimatum to the Chicago police force yesterday that unless there is a complete cleanup of vice and gambling resorts in the next ten days there would be a drastic shakeup from patrolmen to captains was followed last night by the following:

1. The killing of a colored robber by a colored policeman in the 5700 block of Prairie avenue.

2. Raiding of five policy games in the Wabash avenue district by Capt. John Stege, transferred to that command only yesterday morning.

List Vice Resorts for Raids.

3. Issuance on the police teletype by Acting Commissioner Alcock of a list of 82 vice resorts, widely scattered, and orders to district commanders to close them at once. Raiding squads were put on this job at once by the captains. The list had been sent by Mayor Cermak to Alcock.

Joseph Parks, 30 years old, 5016 South Park avenue, was killed in the south side shooting. With a companion he entered the home of Ray Shackelford, also colored, 5741 Prairie avenue, and called to Shackelford and four other men to hold up their hands. Instead of obeying Shackelford ran out of the house and to the Prairie theater at 5748 Prairie avenue.

There he found Policeman Joseph Owens, assigned to prevent bombing or other disorder around the showhouse. By the time Parks and his companion emerged from the house Owens was approaching. His command to halt was ignored and he fired. Parks fell dead only a few feet from the Shackelford home.

Capt. Stege Leads Raids.

The raids on the south side policy games occurred early in the evening. Capt. Stege and three picked detectives first visited two resorts, at 5525 South Wabash avenue and at 319 East 55th street, both operated by Trap Lewis, colored. The paraphernalia used in gambling was seized but Lewis was freed on his promise to close up and make no attempt at reopening.

In Bat Lewis' place at 314 East 58th street the proprietor was arrested. Moses Herford's crap game was raided at 3910 South State street and Prince Cummings and six policy writers were taken into custody at 4850 St. Lawrence avenue. All the proprietors are colored. In each place the patrons were ordered to leave and were told they would be thrown in jail if they frequented such places in the district in future.

Vice Resorts Are Listed.

Among the vice resorts listed by Commissioner Alcock were many in the Hudson avenue, Pekin Inn, Chicago avenue, Wabash avenue, and Des Plaines street districts. The message said there must be immediate action or that charges would be placed against officers and men guilty of neglect in the drive on organized vice.

Three places were listed in the 3100 block on Federal street, three in the 3100 block on Giles avenue; four in the 500 block on Division street; one at 919 Orleans street; one at 248 Locust street; three in the block south of Madison street on Ada street; two in the 1200 block on Washington boulevard; one at 1167 Chatham court; one at 4160 Ellis avenue; one at 1147 Milton avenue; one at 1152 Milton avenue; one at 81 East Erie street; one at 21 West Ohio street, and an other at 27 West Ohio street.

There were a large number of places named along Indiana, Michigan, and Calumet avenues on the south side; along South parkway; along Adams street and Madison street on the west side. Two were listed in the 200 block of South Throop street.

Report Places Dark.

At the Chicago avenue station it was reported that all the places in that district had been visited before midnight, that only a few of them were open and that a few arrests of men and women were made. In the Hudson avenue district no arrests were made, but it was said the places were all dark. Lieut. Vaughn at the Hyde Park station led squads that went out in that police district to follow the commissioner's orders.

Other police work included the arrest of George (Red) Barker, racketeer and gangster. He and two companions were taken at 42d street and Western avenue as they rode in Barker's large

CALLS 15 PCT. MAIL INCREASE A SIGN OF UPTURN IN TRADE

A 15 per cent increase in all classes of mail during this month throughout the country was hailed yesterday as an indication of better business conditions by Arch Coleman, first assistant postmaster general. Coleman, returning from a tour of the country, stopped in Chicago to visit Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder.

"This increase in postal business is marked in first and third class mail, representing advertising matter," said Mr. Coleman. "I believe that an increase in postal business is a true barometer of returning prosperity. This is the first time in recent months that the Chicago postoffice has been going at full speed with all men working."

Report Gloria of Films Wed to Irishman

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Gloria Swanson, moving picture actress, has become a bride for the fourth time, it was learned here today. It has been revealed here that she married Michael Farmer of Dublin and Paris, who sells automobiles in his spare time and who is said to be the adopted son of a wealthy American woman, Mrs. Edmond Hubbard, now residing in Paris.

The ceremony took place during the week of Aug. 16, shortly after her return to the United States from Europe. It was arranged by Dudley Field Malone, New York lawyer, and is said to have been performed in a certain state whose laws recognized her divorce from the Marquis James Henri de la Falaise, although it was an interlocutory decree and would not become final until October. The newlyweds are said to be living across the street from each other in Hollywood.

A New Hollywood Mystery.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—If Gloria Swanson became the bride of Michael Farmer in August she did it without confiding in her personal representatives here, Lance Heath and Irving Wakoff. Both said they knew nothing of it.

Miss Swanson and Farmer could not be reached directly tonight. They were said to be guests at a dinner party. Miss Swanson is living at her Beverly Hills home and Farmer is registered at a hotel.

WED THRICE BEFORE.

Gloria Swanson, who was born in Chicago and began her movie career at the old Essanay studios, first became a bride in 1916, when as a 19 year old girl she married Wallace Beery, film actor. This marriage lasted less than a year and Beery was granted a divorce on the charge of desertion. In 1919 she became the bride of Herbert K. Somborn, millionaire film executive. Soon afterwards she was starred in the moving picture, "Don't Change Your Husband."

Then in May, 1921, Gloria and her second husband separated and Somborn won a divorce in 1923. A little more than a year later, in January, 1925, she became the wife of the Marquis James Henri de la Falaise et de la Coudray of France.

This marriage lasted until October, 1930, more than five years, when Miss Swanson asked for a divorce on the grounds of desertion. The decree was granted in the Superior court of Los Angeles.

SALARY CUTS ENDED IN FILM INDUSTRY BY CARL LAEMMLE

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Increasing sales and a "general feeling of confidence in the future" today prompted Carl Laemmle, president, to abolish salary cuts of employés of Universal Pictures corporation.

Laemmle, in announcing the return to previous standards, said he no longer saw the necessity to continue the wage reductions initiated last May.

In a letter to employés Laemmle said:

"After a careful study of the general business situation and Universal's expanding business I have decided to abolish our former salary reduction and to pay you, beginning with the next pay day, on the basis of your former salary.

"I know this will be joyous news to you and, I assure you, it takes a load off my mind."

Laemmle warned the employés, however, that everything possible must continue to be done to "maintain all possible economies."

BATTLE 500 LB. SWORDFISH FOR 24 HRS., KILL IT

Redondo Beach, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A tale of a successful 24 hour struggle to land a 500 pound swordfish was related here today by three fishermen who returned home safely after the coast guard had prepared to begin a search.

Fishermen on the pier last night saw the men battling with the fish, but lost sight of them. Fearing their boat had capsized, the fishermen summoned the coast guard.

The men, H. S. Weddington, 22, of Lomita; Roy Simpson, 33, and his brother, Waldon, 30, both of Redondo Beach, said they fought 24 hours with the fish before they could kill it.

Stock Windsor Rum Shops for Legion Rally

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Increased stocks of beer, liquors, more permits, additional help and longer hours of operation have been provided by the managers of the Ontario liquor stores and beer warehouses in Windsor, Ont., in preparation for the American Legion convention here next week.

For the second time in the history of the Ontario liquor control act, Pullman cars have been declared legal residences. This disposition will remain in effect only during the convention and is intended to apply to those delegates who will live in Pullmans on the Canadian side of the river.

Shriners Got Dispensation, Too.

Two hours of operation have been added at all liquor stores and beer warehouses in Windsor, beginning Saturday and ending Thursday.

The three brewers' warehouses will be open from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. The regular closing hour is 7 p. m. Managements of the breweries have petitioned the control board for permission to operate their sales warehouses the same hours as the government warehouses.

Put On 12 Extra Men.

A force of 12 extra men will be placed on duty at the liquor stores. James Beaton, chief liquor store inspector, and William Jones, chief warehouse inspector of the liquor control board offices in Toronto, will be in Windsor over the week-end to assist in the preparations for a big business next week. Extra supplies of permits and leaflets outlining the provisions of the law have been ordered.

Federal prohibition enforcement refused to confirm or deny a report that a large force of prohibition agents were being sent into Detroit for operations during the American Legion convention next week. One report said a force of 75 had been mobilized for the convention.

Order 10 on Guard at Seattle.

Coincident with the report of reinforcements, Col. Heinrich A. Pickert, collector of customs, received an order from Washington to transfer 10 of his customs border patrolmen to Seattle. They will be transferred Oct. 1, after the Legion convention.

"Our region is pretty clean," Pickert said. "Ten men off my force will leave about 145 here to guard the river. Men from this district were chosen to go to Seattle because they are the best in the service."

CHAMPS TO VISIT CITY

The world's champion American Legion drum and bugle corps of Miami, Fla., en route to the national convention of the Legion in Detroit, will spend tomorrow in Chicago. The picturesque Arizona delegation with ten gallon hats and the desert burro mascot, also will spend the day in the city.

The Miami group will be met at the Union station by their hosts, the members of the Board of Trade Legion post and representatives of other veterans' organizations. Chicago's welcome will be extended by City Greeter Gaw. After breakfast at the Board of Trade, it is planned that the visitors shall march to the city hall to be received by Mayor Cermak, who was made an honorary member of the organization in Florida two years ago. In the evening the corps will be entertained at dinner in the Illinois Athletic club.

The Arizona delegation, arriving later in the morning, will also be met by Greeter Gaw and Chicago Legionnaires. Both groups will leave Saturday night for Detroit.

LAWYERS OF U. S. AFFIRM STAND FOR DRY CHANGE

Washington Quoted for Distilleries.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The organized lawyers of America, represented by the American Bar association, which opened its annual convention here today, officially went on record this afternoon as overwhelmingly opposed to prohibition and in favor of repeal of the prohibition amendment.

CHAS. A. BOSTON.

This was recorded by the convention today when it heard the official announcement of a vote taken on the question by the association last year and the results of which were made known informally several months ago.

The vote as announced today stood 13,779 for repeal and 6,340 against.

A previous vote on whether this referendum should be conducted was won by the opponents of prohibition by a vote of 14,782 in favor and 5,625 against.

Steer Clear of Discussion.

Beyond formally recording the stand of the association's membership the convention today steered clear of any discussion of the prohibition question. In fact, with the exception of some scattering applause which greeted announcement of the vote, no other action was taken. There appeared to be a tacit understanding on the part of officials and delegates not to press the issue.

The only other reference to the question developed in the opening address of Charles A. Boston, of New York, president of the American Bar association, who indicated that in his opinion the nation would be better off without its present stringent anti liquor laws.

George Washington Quoted.

Mr. Boston's reference was made in the course of a prepared address on constitution day, in which he quoted George Washington as opposed to prohibition. He also called attention to the anti-prohibition stand taken by members of the Wickersham commission on law enforcement, but like the convention itself he hovered on the edge of the question rather than on the fundamental issue involved.

The incongruity between the overwhelming vote of members of the association against prohibition and the convention's attitude of hands off was a matter of spirited private discussion among those present. The total vote of 20,119 cast in the prohibition referendum, it was pointed out, represented 75 per cent of the association's membership.

Advised Distilleries.

The fact that George Washington, in a recommendation to the first continental congress suggested the erection of public distilleries and urged the value of the moderate use of strong liquor for the army, was brought out by Mr. Boston in his address. The delegates vigorously applauded the first President's stand.

Mr. Boston explained that Washington's recommendation was contained in a letter to John Hancock, president of the continental congress, when Washington was general of the revolutionary armies. He said after his speech that to his knowledge the letter had never been published, but had remained in obscurity in the archives of the library of congress.

What Washington Wrote.

"Since our imports of spirits," wrote Gen. Washington, "have become so precarious—nay impracticable, on account of the enemy's fleet, which infest our whole coast, I would beg leave to suggest the propriety of erecting public distilleries in different states. The benefits arising from the moderate use of strong liquors have been experienced in all armies, and are not to be disputed.

"In the present situation of affairs our soldiers cannot obtain such supplies as are absolutely necessary and if they are fortunate enough to get any it is from the sailors at the most extravagant rates and at such as are incredible to tell of.

"This is a source of much complaint and, I should hope, may be removed by appointing proper persons to buy grain and distill it for the army, large quantities of which may be easily procured and on reasonable terms in many of the states."

Commenting on the suggestions of Washington, Mr. Boston said:

"We may well wonder whether, if this advice had been followed, and followed up by congressional legislation, we would not by this time have had a model system."

Four Obstacles to Happiness.

Reviewing the issues which in a century and a half "have served to interfere with the arduous but pleasing task of attempting to make a nation happy," Mr. Boston named four—"the bank, slavery, secession, and prohibition."

"Of these," he continued, "the bank is a conceded fact, slavery still casts its shadows in a number of ways, though no longer existent. Secession appears to be dead, and prohibition, though in the constitution, has not ceased to invoke violent opposition.

"Regarding prohibition, I do not need to point to more than the several reports of the commission on the enforcement of law, with the concurring recommendations of most of the members, predicated upon their dissenting individual views.

"I assume that every person now present has violent convictions which, whatever they are, cannot be shaken by any argument or any illustrative data. Indeed, the present state of individual opinion is more like a petrified forest than a vivified participation in the arduous task which the first President mentioned in his first inaugural address to the first congress."

As to Crime Problem.

The recommendations for dealing with the crime problem presented to the convention by the section of criminal law by its chairman, Dean Justice Miller of the Duke university law school, will be acted on by the convention on Saturday. It included the announcement of the formation of a committee to study the question of mal-administration by the judiciary which was preceded by a declaration by William Draper Lewis, director of the American Law institute, that criminal justice in this country was "a national disgrace." He said that lawyers had a greater responsibility for the reformation than any other class.

"Recent sensational disclosures in New York, Chicago, and other large cities emphasize the importance of a situation that has been acute so long as has become chronic," Dean Miller declared. "Among the causes of this condition is the subservience of judges to political machines and other influences.

"Any plan for improvement must consider methods of the election or appointment of judges. At present, we have little or no data on which to base conclusions as to which method gives us the best judges. This is particularly true of the lower or so-called inferior courts, in which by far the larger number of cases are decided and in which the qualifications of candidates for judicial office are generally overlooked."

Train Kills Two Boys; Trapped on Narrow Trestle

Paul Humenik, 12 years old, 1136 Polk street, and John Hostinsky, 10, of 1111 West 11th avenue, both of Gary, were killed last night when they were struck by a freight train on a narrow trestle of the Indiana Harbor Belt railway across Adams street in Gary. P. G. Tillman of Elkhart, Ind., engineer of the train, told police that a curve leading to the trestle prevented him from seeing the boys in time to stop. The victims' only chance of escaping death, police said, was by racing ahead of the train or leaping 20 feet to the street.

GIRL IS BURNED TO DEATH WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

Attorney Hurt in Other Accident Dies.

Miss Marie Milota, 21 years old, 3564 Wabansia avenue, was burned to death last night and three companions were injured when their automobile overturned and burst into flames in Hirsch street at Lavergne avenue.

Those hurt are Bernard Sievert, 22 years old, 914 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park; Fred Miller, 23, of 4726 Washington boulevard, and Miss Florence Sorenson, 19, of 1308 North Menard avenue. They were taken to St. Anne's hospital. Sievert was burned. Miss Sorenson and Miller suffered scratches and bruises.

Firemen Extricate Body.

The accident occurred when Miller, driving, tried to avert a collision with the machine of Albert Duffy, 25, of 4106 Lake street. His machine avoided the crash, but glanced against a parked car and turned over. Fire broke out. Miller and Miss Sorenson scrambled to safety, and extricated Sievert. They were unable to save Miss Milota. Lieut. Cornelius Murphy and his men of Engine Company 117 finally extinguished the flames and removed her body.

Two Die in Collision.

Henry W. Drucker, 1125 Mohawk road, Wilmette, a Chicago attorney, died last night in the Belmont hospital of injuries suffered yesterday in an automobile collision at Irving Park boulevard and Mannheim road.

His death was the second resulting from the accident. The other victim was Mrs. Lillian Werhane, 54 years old, 1405 North Keeler avenue.

Five other persons were injured in the crash. They are Francis L. Boutell, former county commissioner; Attorney William B. Gemmill, son of the late Judge William N. Gemmill of the Superior court; Max Krauss, 415 Aldine avenue, an attorney; Mrs. Lillian Farwait, 33 years old, daughter of Mrs. Werhane; and Mrs. Farwait's husband, John.

The crash occurred when Krauss, driving west in Irving Park boulevard, failed, police said, to stop at Mannheim road and struck the southbound machine driven by Farwait. Driving with Krauss were Boutell, Drucker, and Gemmill. They were en route to the Medinah Country club to play golf. The machine is owned by Gemmill.

Report Other Deaths.

These deaths and three others brought the toll for the year in Cook county to 868. The victims:

Mrs. Etta Mohr, 60 years old, 10026 South Irving avenue. Fatally injured when she was struck by an automobile at Ashland avenue and 67th street. She died in the Southwest General hospital. The driver was Berthel Dahlman, 1938 South May street.

Daniel Gregory, 3 years old, 9558 Schiller avenue, Franklin Park. Died in the Oak Park hospital. He fell out of his father's automobile at 25th avenue and the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad tracks in Melrose Park on Wednesday.

Mrs. Theresa Ressler, 63 years old, 2118 South 48th court, Cicero. Died in St. Anne's hospital. She was run down by a truck on Wednesday. Ellis Halperin, 3308 Potomac avenue, was the driver.

Although their automobile crashed through the railing of a bridge at Lake street and Wolf road, Melrose Park, and was wrecked after falling 30 feet to the tracks of the Chicago and North Western railroad below, George Nolburg, 939 North Parkside avenue, the driver, and Carl Nelson, 942 North Waller avenue, escaped with minor bruises. The machine landed upside down but the men were thrown clear.

An inquest will be held Oct. 27 into the death of Mrs. Katherine McFall, wife of Dumas V. McFall, attorney and broker, who was fatally injured early yesterday in a collision between her husband's car and a truck at 71st street and Stony Island avenue. McFall was injured, and the inquest was postponed to allow for his recovery.

WATCH FOR BANK ROBBERS.

The sheriff at Madison, Wis., late yesterday telephoned to the Chicago detective bureau asking the police to be on the lookout for five gunmen who were believed to have headed for Chicago after robbing the Citizens National bank of Stoughton, Wis., of $5,000.

BABY IS FOUND IN ATTIC AFTER THREE DAY HUNT

Boston, Mass., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Patricia Kirby, 2 year old daughter of Tom Kirby, former national amateur light heavyweight boxing champion, was found today in an attic closet three doors from her home while a widespread search, begun when she disappeared Tuesday, was being extended throughout the city.

A police investigation was started immediately. However, Dr. William P. Johnston, called to examine the child, expressed the belief that Patricia had been well cared for and said that she showed no need or desire for food, and that she probably had not been in the closet more than a few hours.

Workmen summoned by police were draining the sewer in front of the Kirby home in search of the child when Martin J. Connolly, a neighbor whose children are playmates of Patricia, hurried from his home bearing the child in his arms.

Mrs. Connolly, he said, had gone to an unused attic and found the child lying on the closet floor.

A squad of police waited at the gates, ready to make arrests if an attempt was made to run the races. More than 2,500 patrons also assembled outside the gates, unaware of the dissolution of the injunction. The gates were not opened, however, and the crowd and the police finally departed.

The track was closed on the advice of Attorneys Leo Weil and Harry Olson, who announced they would appeal Judge Feinberg's decision to the State Supreme court. Pending a ruling by the high court, they said, there will be no effort to conduct dog races with pari-mutuel betting in this district.

Assistant State's Attorney Lee La Rochelle, who led the court fight against the dog track operators, announced that he would immediately prosecute the men who were arrested in early raids on the track.

Judge Feinberg criticized the practice of allowing dog tracks to run under temporary injunctions until the season is over and then allowing the injunction proceedings to drop.

The judge also declared that the state's attorney should not have allowed the dog track to operate pending a final decision on the temporary injunction because, in the court's judgment, the injunction had never been legal. He asserted that Judge William V. Brothers, who issued the temporary writ while sitting as an emergency judge, had no jurisdiction to take such action.

Attorneys for the track had attacked the constitutionality of the horse racing act which allows betting on horses. Judge Feinberg ruled that it was unnecessary for him to decide on this question. He referred to the case of the Hawthorne Kennel club in which the Appellate court held last year that pari-mutuel wagering on dog races violated the gaming act.

As to the constitutional questions raised, the judge declared:

"If this complainant sincerely feels aggrieved by the judgment of this court, it has a full opportunity to present its claims directly to the Supreme court in an appeal."

A mandamus action is at present pending in the state Supreme court which would compel the state's attorney to institute quo warranto proceedings to determine the legality of betting at horse tracks.

2 ARE ARRESTED AS SUSPECTS IN YACHT MURDER

Early Solution of Crime Is Predicted.

BULLETIN.

New York, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—Two men resembling the murderer-pirates who beat Benjamin P. Collings, Stamford yachtsman, and lashed him into Long Island sound to drown, were under arrest tonight in Milford, Conn. They were being held pending the arrival of the Suffolk county (L. I.) authorities.

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 17.—(AP)—A brief case containing papers was taken off the Collings yacht and is being studied by police, it was learned tonight on good authority. The papers contained copies of wills left by Benjamin Snyder, Washington (D. C.) banker, and Mrs. E. P. Collings, grandfather and mother respectively of Collings. Some of the papers indicated there had been litigation over the wills, it was said.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Collings yacht murder mystery moved out of the [illegible] toward [illegible] realities tonight. Indictments were forecast at the conclusion of the inquest which will begin in Huntington town hall tomorrow morning.

"I now have a clear picture of what happened aboard the Penguin and of what happened after the events on the Penguin were over," said District Attorney Alexander Blue of Suffolk county, who obtained jurisdiction over the case when Benjamin P. Collings' body was washed ashore on the estate of Marshall Field Jr. yesterday. "I do not wish to reveal my information of the crime at this time, because I do not wish to make public the names of the characters involved. I intend to have sufficient legal evidence to bring indictments."

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ALEXANDER BLUE.

Widow Not to Testify.

The statement came at the end of a day devoted to investigation of "point blank clews" and followed an earlier announcement that Mrs. Lillian Collings, who saw her husband beaten, and see drowned by two "pirates" a week ago, would not be called to testify at the inquest.

"By calling Mrs. Collings now she would not be asked to waive immunity," explained Mr. Blue.

"Is Mrs. Collings under suspicion," he was asked.

"I won't say now whether she is or is not under suspicion," said the prosecutor.

Meanwhile the widow of the yachtsman remained in seclusion in her home in Stamford, Conn., the residence guarded by police for the first time since the tragedy. The police said they were there to protect Mrs. Collings from intruders.

Family Feared Arrest.

Investigation revealed that the Collings family feared Long Island authorities were preparing to arrest Mrs. Collings as a material witness. Such an arrest will not be possible so long as Mrs. Collings remains in Connecticut. She must be charged with a specific crime before she can be compelled to submit to New York state jurisdiction.

Mrs. Collings was not present this afternoon when the body of her husband was cremated at Fresh Pond, L. I. There were six mourners present, all members of the family. Among them was Mrs. Collings' father, the elderly Herman Chellus, Boston musician. Mr. Chellus could not be located for several days after the attack on the Collings yacht. When he did arrive in Stamford it was stated he had been on a vacation and had just learned of the crime. Mr. Chellus has been quoted as objecting in the past to the lonely life his daughter led on the Penguin. He is said to have had premonitions of the tragedy.

New Clews Developed.

The inquest first set for today was abruptly postponed at noon when several important and unexpected clews developed. It was learned that another yacht Penguin, similar in size and appearance to the Collings Penguin was anchored at various times off Northport and Oyster bay.

A second development was the discovery of an unidentified body in the sound two miles from the spot where the "pirates" attacked the Collings family. Police and at least one of Mrs. Collings' lawyers, William A. Kelly, hold a theory that a double murder was committed and were endeaving to link the body, that of a middle aged man, with the fight on the Penguin.

This clew failed completely when it was determined that the body had been in the water not more than two days.

Blankets May Be Clew.

The third development concerns the blanket clew. Fred J. Voos, a coal merchant and Eastern baseball league official at Bridgeport, told police that four blankets, one of them marked Hotel Charles, had been stolen from his yacht. The thieves also took a pair of rubber sneakers and a pair of shoes. The theft took place last August and the same week Mr. Voos saw a yacht named Penguin cruising nearby. Blankets answering the description of those stolen from the Voos yacht, even to the hotel mark, were found in the motor boat from which Mrs. Collings was rescued the morning her husband was slain. Their presence has never been satisfactorily explained.

Town New Chief

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The 65th annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic closed today after Samuel P. Town of Philadelphia was chosen commander in chief and Springfield, Ill., selected as the 1932 meeting place.

The Rev. Frank Huston of Knightsville, Ind., was chosen commander in chief of the Sons of Union Veterans. The Ladies of the G. A. R. named Mrs. Helen Lehman of Jersey City, N. J., national president. Mrs. Annie Poole Atwood of Wollaston, Mass., was elected national president of the Woman's Relief corps. Mrs. Harriett J. Goetz of New York was chosen president of the Daughters of Union Veterans.

The civil war veterans passed four resolutions, which asked that: Congress grant all veterans more than 80 years old $100 monthly; pensions be given a veteran's widow if they had been married five years; the United States navy be built to the limit under the London naval treaty, and that New York be criticized for its failure to fulfill its promise in completing Grant's tomb.

Alice Cary Risley of Columbia, Mo., president of the National Association of Army Nurses of the Civil War, said today that her group would be disbanded. Five members remain, with Helen Brainerd Cole of Sheboygan, Wis., secretary, and Ell Torrance of Minneapolis, advocate.

MYERS, HEAD OF SCHOOL BOARD, HAS BREAKDOWN

Lewis E. Myers, president of the school board, has suffered a breakdown from overwork and is in his apartment in the Blackstone hotel under the care of two nurses, it was learned yesterday.

LEWIS E. MYERS.

His physician, Dr. Ernest E. Irons, said that he expects no serious consequences from Mr. Myers' condition, provided his patient takes a complete rest for a week or two. Mr. Myers was improving last night and probably will be able to go to his Lake Geneva summer home today or tomorrow, Dr. Irons said.

"Mr. Myers has been badly overworked for several months," Dr. Irons said. "A few days ago he contracted a cold, and that, with the extreme heat of the last week, made it necessary for him to go to bed."

In addition to his efforts to straighten out school financial troubles, the school board president has been active in the unemployment relief campaign.

RIDE KILLING REMAINS MYSTERY.

A verdict of murder by persons unknown was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury at an inquest into the death of Carlos Piazzo, 29 years old, 5646 South Kedzie avenue, a minor hoodlum who was found shot to death in his automobile near Summit on Wednesday.

RAIDS DISCLOSE A NEWFANGLED STOCK SWINDLE

Hundreds Are Reported Victims of Fraud.

The capture of one man by federal postal authorities and two raids by prosecutors from the blue sky division of the state's attorney's office yesterday uncovered the actions of swindlers who have defrauded Chicagoans of many thousands of dollars through fake sales of securities within recent months.

Combining the high pressure telephone salesmanship of the bucket shops with a new scheme the confidence men have extended their operations to Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, according to prosecutors. So carefully have the men concealed their tracks that the arrest yesterday was the first, although hundreds of complaints have been made within recent weeks.

Accused of Minnesota Fraud.

The prisoner, held in the county jail, is Nathan Glickman, alias J. R. Stone, alias Nathan Roser. He is charged with having used the mails to defraud an automobile dealer of Jackson, Minn. He was seized in the loop by federal operatives.

The raids, conducted by Assistant State's Attorneys L. P. Holt and H. M. Weinberg, with Policeman William Drury from the detective bureau, disclosed the swindlers' mode of operation.

This method, according to Prosecutor Holt, involves a telephone call from the swindler to his prospective victim, during which the latter is persuaded to purchase stock or exchange sound securities which he already holds for other securities, represented as better investments.

Swindler Gets the Money.

The purchaser is directed to mail his check or stock to "the office" and told that his new stock will be sent to him. It never is, the prosecutor said.

The address given for the swindler's "office," the raids revealed, is ordinarily that of a mail bureau, a place where for a nominal fee any one may arrange to have his mail received. The swindler rents a pigeon hole in one of these bureaus, has his letters picked up by messenger and thus keeps secret his own whereabouts.

One of the places visited by the raiding party was a mail bureau in a building at 53 West Jackson boulevard where Charles Vande Zande of Fond du Lac, Wis., sent a $900 check for the purchase of stock. His check was cashed, but the stock was never delivered. Employes of the bureau said that a Mr. Allen, to whom Vande Zande's letter was addressed, had rented a mail box two months ago, but had not returned during recent weeks.

The raiders also went to a room at 11 South La Salle street upon the complaint of the Protective Investors' bureau, which charged that several persons had mailed checks to a Mr. Temple there but had never received their stock. In the room they found Miss Rose Lewis, 725 Sheridan road, a stenographer, who said she had been employed by Mr. Temple several weeks ago to receive his mail.

GANDHI WARNS BRITAIN TO LAY CARDS ON TABLE

Threatens to Bolt London "Debating Society."

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MAHATMA GANDHI.

Just when the noble knights of the Indian round table conference were sailing smoothly along, spouting what Gandhi's friends term a "lot of blah about nothing at all, such as whether a new oath of allegiance ought to be made to the king-emperor," the "holy man" spoke up at the meeting of the federal structures committee today.

He put it squarely to the British government to say immediately whether it intended to offer India something really tangible, or to keep the good knights bickering along with windy speeches about unessential details.

Thrust of Crafty Diplomat.

It was Gandhi's thrust as a crafty diplomat in the battle between him and the British lion.

Gandhi struck out boldly without mincing his words. He said he was getting "depressed."

"You have been talking for hours today," he continued, "about a proposed oath of allegiance. How can I give an opinion on that now? It depends on what we are getting. If it is a complete independence oath it will be one of character. If the oath is to be as a subject of India then I have no place here."

Gandhi was up on his ears.

Hand Picked Delegates.

"As I studied the list of Indian delegates here I suddenly realized that they were not the chosen ones of the nation, but the chosen ones of the government," he cried.

He was referring here to a fact well known in India, but one not realized outside, that the Indians here were picked by the Indian government, and not by the Indian parties. The Nationalist Moslems, comprising millions of followers of Islam, were not chosen as delegates, it is charged, because the government found it wiser to select Loyalist Moslems who could be counted upon to come to stir up strife with Gandhi's "dumb millions."

Gandhi also complained of the long futile speeches of these hand picked Indian delegates, which, he said, "lead to nowhere."

Then turning directly to Lord Sankey, the lord chancellor and chairman of the committee, he challenged Great Britain to lay its cards on the table.

Lodges "Humble" Complaint.

"Might I lodge a gentle, humble complaint against his majesty's advisers?" Gandhi said. "Having brought the committee together, knowing we are all business men, is it not possible for the government to give them a lead? Why can't the government let the committee know its mind? I would be delighted if it would bring forward concrete proposals. Let the government guide us, give us the lead and put its cards on the table. If this is done, we reach some conclusions, good or bad. But if the members of the committee simply resolve themselves into a debating society, at which every one is free to discourse at great length, we never will get anywhere. Perhaps the chairman can bring this to the attention of his advisers."

Lord Sankey said he would.

Gandhi knows his British, and he is a diplomat and his blunt remarks today, coupled with the reverberations of Tuesday's demand for complete independence in a brilliant speech, set certain machinery going which may result in the solution of the Indian problem.

Tactics Startle Britain.

To say the government was startled by Gandhi's tactics is putting it mildly. It is declared that the British hoped to "kid" along the Indians, as they did at the first conference, keeping them arguing over bagatelles so as to get their mind off the real issue of self-government.

Gandhi's courage, his indifference to flattery, and his consummate political skill have now changed the whole picture.

The rest of the Indians may continue in their fruitless discussions about including the king-emperor in the new oath. But Gandhi is beginning tonight, it is learned, to hold a series of important private conversations with British political leaders. Private meetings today were arranged for him with Prime Minister MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin, Sir Herbert Samuel, home secretary; Winston Churchill, and Arthur Henderson, former foreign minister.

Gandhi Becomes Sarcastic.

After these conversations he intends to make up his mind as to whether the chances of a settlement justify his remaining in England to discuss details.

To prove that he is not shirking his responsibilities, however, Gandhi spoke for half an hour today on detailed points of the proposed new constitution which members have been debating since Tuesday. He was extremely sarcastic.

"Here we are dealing with subheads when we do not know what franchise we are going to get," he said. "I offer my suggestions in terms of a mandate by the all-India congress party. But if the committee does not know where it is sailing for my observations naturally are of little value."

"I am wedded to adult suffrage," Gandhi retorted. "Why, I have found some of the noblest specimens of humanity among the poorest illiterates. I do not like a test of literacy for voters. I would prefer them to know the three R's, but if we wait for that we will wait until the Greek calends [a date that will never come]. Personally I am not prepared to wait that long."

Gandhi was fairly cracking. He said he would like to explain how his powerful congress party employed adult suffrage.

"That reminds me that the government has accused us of trying to establish a parallel government," he concluded. "We certainly aspire to replace the government and in due course take charge of that government."

CONTROLLER FEARS FURTHER PAYLESS PAY DAYS FOR CITY

With only $141,000 in the corporate fund with which to meet the salaries of city employés, City Controller Szymczak was uncertain yesterday as to when the city will be able to meet its pay rolls again. Since Sept. 15 pay rolls in the amount of $1,408,000 have become due but have not been met. These include those of the police and fire departments.

The income of the city from miscellaneous sources was estimated by the controller at $450,000 a month and the next payment of approximately $250,000 from the telephone company on its franchise will not be due until near the end of December.

"Unless tax warrants are sold or some other plan devised of obtaining money the city will be unable to meet pay rolls," said Mr. Szymczak, "until a sufficient amount has accumulated from miscellaneous revenue. Then, the pay rolls that have been unpaid the longest will be met. Whether I can invest tax warrants of the corporate fund in the city's special funds has not been decided yet."

AUTOIST BREAKS RAIL GATE; FATAL CRASH RESULTS

An unidentified motorist drove his car through the lowered gates at the Broadway crossing of the Pennsylvania lines in Gary yesterday, and was arrested a short distance away by Policemen Jesse Stone and Van Johnson.

They escorted him back to the crossing and summoned Arnold Clark, 2381 West 19th place, Gary, the gateman, from the watch tower. Clark raised the damaged gates, and descended.

Just then a passenger train came thundering down the track. At the same instant an automobile reached the unprotected crossing and was struck by the train. Peter Shaytovich, 22 years old, of 4334 Georgia street, Gary, was killed, and the driver, George Fitch, 50, of 4139 Vernon street, Gary, was injured. In the excitement the unidentified motorist whose carelessness in running through the gates indirectly caused the fatal crash, escaped.

Wife of Realty Broker Gets Divorce, Alimony

Mrs. Mary Newton Bannerman, 2448 Lake View avenue, yesterday obtained a divorce from her husband, William C. Bannerman, real estate broker with offices at 520 North Michigan avenue. The decree was granted by Superior Judge Harry B. Miller on grounds of cruelty. Mr. Bannerman did not appear in court to refute her charges that he struck her on several occasions. Quinter, Kas., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Three men were killed here late today when a cabin monoplane piloted by Joe Scholtz, Brewster, Kas., went into a nose dive and crashed at the Gove county fair grounds. Scholtz, Leo Fahey, Quinter, Kas., and Floyd Norton, Spruce, Mo., the latter both passengers, were killed.

CERMAK HITS 82 VICE RESORTS IN ORDER FOR RAIDS

car. Lieut. Michael Hackett of the detective bureau retrieved a loaded pistol which Barker tossed away. He and his companions, Fred Zanger and William Evans, were locked up for the night.

The mayor's concern with police work, he said, was only in the present. What had gone on under a previous administration, he added, was "water under the bridge." He asserted that unless conditions improved soon there would be police suspensions and civil service trials.

Clean Up or Get Out—Order.

"If the captains don't clean up," he threatened, "I'll clean up the police. I've warned them and I've transferred them and if they don't believe I am in earnest they are going to find themselves in a fix. They are not moving to suit me; although I've given them five months to act gambling houses seem to be running as openly as restaurants."

Mayor Cermak said that his investigations had tended to show some policemen were grafters, but that difficulty had been found in getting witnesses to testify against them. He suggested that the public would help a great deal by furnishing information about specific places and specified acts.

He intends, he announced, to fill vacancies in the police department as they occur and keep the force at full strength. New policemen are supposed to have three months training before they go to work, but he said it might be necessary to give them only one month and let them take the rest of their school work on their own time after they reach probationary rank.

Another promise he made was to continue his efforts to get rid of all unnecessary jobs and keep the whole force on active police work. He has asked for a list of men assigned to guard bridges, and hinted that he would take them off this duty as "nobody can walk away with the bridges."

Following the mayor's tour through some of the courts in which he found that many policemen do not prepare their cases properly, he asked Judge Joseph B. David to lecture to the captains and patrolmen on how to prepare evidence. Judge David said he would help all he could.

None Over Age Limit Resign.

No voluntary resignations have been received from the 134 members of the department who are past the retirement age of 65, Acting Commissioner Alcock said.

Seven lieutenants who are past retirement age appeared yesterday at the acting commissioner's office in response to his summons. He explained the provisions of the pension act and informed them that if they wish to remain on the force they must pass a rigid physical examination.

Seven captains over the retirement age also conferred with Alcock yesterday. All of them had indicated previously that they will not resign unless forced to do so. The action was taken on orders of Mayor Cermak to make sure that all policemen are efficient.

Seized as Gun Toter as He Guards $1,800 for Kin

Chris Kappas, owner of a restaurant at 7053 West 63d street, Argo, started for the loop yesterday with $1,800 to buy travelers' checks for a trip to his birthplace in Greece. His brother, Peter, a barber, went along, carrying a revolver for protection, and Sparas Panagroton, a friend, drove them in his car. Sergt. Edward Hayes and his squad stopped them at 63d street and Wentworth avenue. At the detective bureau Kappas posted $1,200 of his money as bail, $1,900 for Peter Kappas on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and $100 each for himself and Panagroton on charges of disorderly conduct.

TEXAN KILLS 3 WHEN THEY TRY TO KIDNAP HIM

Texarkana, Tex., Sept. 18.—(AP)—J. H. Boyd, filling station operator 13 miles south of here, late last night shot to death three men who, he told officers, had attempted to kidnap him. A fourth man in the party was wounded dangerously.

Boyd, wounded in an arm, was rushed to Atlanta, Tex., for treatment. He said he was attacked after a man came to his filling station and told him his car ran out of gasoline a short distance down the road. Boyd armed himself and started to carry fuel to the machine. The man followed.

Boyd said as he neared the machine a second man leaped out of the darkness and struck him. They grappled. Boyd liberated himself and as he did so another man in the machine opened fire.

When officers arrived they found the three dead. The fourth man was believed to have been wounded fatally.

Officers said two of the dead men were disguised as Negroes.

RIDING MASTER AND ATTORNEY'S WIFE ARRESTED

Mrs. Lucy Horwitz, wife of Attorney Jacob W. Horwitz of 520 Stratford place, and J. W. (Mike) McCabe, 4032 North Francisco avenue, a riding master, who disappeared simultaneously over the week-end, were reported under arrest in St. Louis last night.

Capt. Robert Bowman and Constable Paul Even of Niles Center left early this morning by automobile to return the couple to Chicago. They carried warrants obtained by Attorney Horwitz.

Mrs. Horwitz met McCabe at a riding academy at McCormick road and Main street, west of Evanston. Their disappearance became known with the swearing out of a warrant by Horwitz. Yesterday the attorney announced he would withdraw the warrant. He said he doubted the riding master had anything to do with his wife's disappearance and ascribed her absence to clashes of temperament. He did not withdraw the warrant.

EVANSTON ARMY OFFICER GIVEN HEROISM MEDAL

The war department in Washington D. C., announced yesterday that the soldiers' medal for heroism had been awarded First Lieutenant Donald Q. Harris of Evanston.

According to the citation Lieut. Harris, while stationed at Fort Bragg, N. C., saw a gun flash set fire to a camouflage net and to grass and brush nearby. He led members of a gun squad to the scene and carried away a quantity of ammunition that might have been exploded by the flames.

"The high degree of heroism displayed by Lieut. Harris on this occasion contributed to the saving of government property and possibly human life," it was added.

Lieut. Harris, a West Point graduate of the class of 1922, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Harris, 2223 Lincolnwood drive, Evanston.

Policeman Discharged for Refusal to Pay Taxi Fare

Patrolman John J. Hughes of the Warren avenue police station was discharged from the force yesterday by the civil service commission. He was the fifty-fifth policeman to be discharged since the present commission was appointed by Mayor Cermak. Hughes was charged with refusing to pay a cab bill incurred while he was making a round of soft drink parlors, and with threatening the cab driver.

OFFICIALS CALL HEITLER LETTER EXPOSE USELESS

Roche Plans No Further Inquiry Into Charges.

Little official credence was given yesterday to the posthumous letter of Niles De Pike Heitler purporting to reveal conditions preceding the murder of Alfred Lingle, the subsequent killing of Jack Zuta, and finally the slaying of Heitler himself.

Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office said that after reading the letter in publication he was still of the same opinion as he was last spring when told of its contents.

Roche Scouts Letter's Story.

"It is the raving of a down and out, dope wrecked ex-convict who was killed in the lowest depths of the underworld," said Roche. "I was told about the contents last spring after Heitler's body, supposed to have been Heitler's was found out near Barrington, burned beyond recognition.

"I saw no value in it then and neither do I see anything in it now worthy of belief. No one would believe Heitler in his life or trust him and why any one should pay any attention to what he is supposed to have confided to some woman, now that he is dead, is beyond me."

"The existence of the letter was revealed to me at that time, which was nearly a month after Leo V. Brothers had been convicted of the Lingle murder. The information it was said to contain did not add to or detract from the evidence we had concerning Lingle's murder. Whether it was intended as propaganda or a smoke screen to help Brothers I do not know.

"The Heitler story is an attempt to blame the murder on Al Capone in the words, 'Lingle is to get his.' We proved Brothers was in the subway when Lingle was killed and he didn't take the witness stand to deny it."

Brothers' Lawyer Comments.

Attorney James C. O'Brien, who is in charge of Brothers' appeal to the state supreme court, said that he had never heard of the Heitler letter before it was published and that he couldn't see how it could do Brothers any good.

Attorney O'Brien, who for years was a noted prosecutor, said he had no explanation for the fact that the letter was published on the day he filed Brothers' appeal from his conviction and sentence to 14 years in prison. It would have no effect on the Supreme court justices because it has no legal standing, and would not have even if in affidavit form, O'Brien said.

According to information obtained from the prosecutors the letter was buried about last spring and finally found its way into a newspaper office while the murder of Heitler was still new. The letter was not suddenly found, but had been in that newspaper files over four months. Its effect on the prosecutors was nil, Roche said, and no further investigation of it is contemplated.

Raid Mangano Joint.

One result of the publication of the letter was the raiding yesterday of a gambling joint owned by "Dago Lawrence" Mangano at 516 South Halsted street. This is the notorious Kinsey club. It was raided by detectives under command of Capt. Martin Mullen, now in charge of the gambling detail and formerly in command of the Des Plaines street district during part of the time covered by the Heitler letter, which was supposed to have been handed over to Heitler's lawyer when he was in fear of death. Mangano was named as one of the men Heitler feared might kill him.

Seventeen men found in the Kinsey club were taken into custody. Mangano was not present.

ENDS LIFE IN AUTOMOBILE.

Austin E. Woods, 46 years old, salesman for a varnish company, was found dead yesterday in his automobile, which had been parked near his home at 443 Wrightwood avenue. The doors and windows of the car were closed, and a hose from the exhaust pipe was conveying deadly gas into the car.

Boy Flees Orphanage to Dodge a Tooth Pulling

John Vestuto, 13 years old, fled from the Guardian Angel orphanage at 2100 Devon avenue on Sunday because he feared the ordeal of a tooth pulling. Until last night he tramped the streets by day and slept on porches by night. When Policeman John Sullivan found him at Desplaines and Madison streets, he asserted that he wasn't going back to the home until he was promised there would be no tooth extraction. He was kept at the Desplaines street station last night and will be turned over to juvenile authorities today.

CUBAN CONGRESS ADOPTS REFORMS IN CONSTITUTION

Machado's Plan Is Put Up to Senate.

BY DEAN SANBORN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Sept. 17.—After 20 hours of continuous debate, a record, the house of representatives today sanctioned in full the constitutional reforms proposed by President Machado. Some of the main features of the new constitution are:

Elections for president, vice president, representatives, senators, governors, mayors, aldermen, and councilmen to be held in November, 1932, or January, 1933. The elected officers will take office on May 20, 1933.

Restoration of the vice presidency. The Supreme court by unanimous vote may appoint one of its members vice president after the new constitution becomes effective. He will stay in office until the vice president elected at the general elections takes office.

The house denied women the right of suffrage or of appointments to executive offices except as members of the board of education.

The president and all other elective officers, except senators, will serve six years and reelection will be prohibited to all for the following ten years.

Political protection for all officers of the navy and army and police chiefs. These forces may not be dismissed or changed for political motives, but only for actual inefficiency or criminal charges accepted by the courts.

Cabinet ministers will be subject to summons before the senate to explain all their acts or procedures which are considered by congress as improper in solving national economic or political issues.

The house voted down President Machado's recommendation for the restriction of parliamentary immunity, thus making it impossible for the courts to prosecute senators and representatives unless congress grants permission.

Any candidate fulfilling the other requisites may be elected president of the republic when he is 35 years of age. The previous age required was 45.

SLAIN BY NEGRO ROBBERS AS HE HUNTS FOR JOB

Peter C. Sorgeloos, 55 years old, 1356 West 14th street, was shot to death by robbers he is supposed to have resisted early this morning in front of 1212 Blue Island avenue. Some nearby residents heard three shots and looking out of their windows saw three Negroes running away, and Sorgeloos lying on the sidewalk. He had been shot through the heart.

Sorgeloos was a roofer and lived alone. He had been out of work for some time, and each morning, neighbors said, it was his custom to leave home early seeking employment. Police supposed he was on that mission when he was held up. A dollar bill, evidently dropped by the robbers, was found beside him.

RANDOLPH 8500

WILLFUL SLAYING, VERDICT SAYS OF WIFE'S DROWNING

Investigators Learn of Another Woman.

Hampton, Va., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Dr. Elisha Kent Kane, 37 years old, professor of Romance languages at the University of Tennessee, was named as the murderer of his wife, Mrs. Jennie Graham Kane, in the verdict rendered here today by Coroner George K. Vanderslice.

The "other woman," whose initials were given as E. H. D., was brought into the case by Commonwealth's Attorney Roland D. Cock. Cock said she "may" be Elizabeth Dodd, an employé of the United States Lines aboard the steamship America. A passion for her led Kane, according to the state's theory, to drown his 30 year old wife in the waters of Back river, seven miles from here, last Friday.

Despite the coroner's verdict, defense counsel declared there is no evidence on hand to back up the murder theory.

"Deliberate Murder."

"Mrs. Jennie Graham Kane," the coroner's finding read, "came to her death at about 11 a. m. Sept. 11 at Grand View Beach from drowning at the hands of her husband, Elisha Kent Kane. It was a deliberate, premeditated murder."

Dr. Vanderslice handed down his decision after a hearing on an application for bail for the professor had been postponed until tomorrow by Judge C. Vernon Sprately. Kane will be given a preliminary hearing before a magistrate, in view of the murder verdict of the coroner, within a few days.

Since his arrest Sunday Dr. Kane has maintained that his wife drowned accidentally, despite efforts on his part to save her.

Letter Made Public.

In support of their murder theory county investigators made public tonight an unsigned letter, held to have been written by the steamship employé to the professor.

"Dr. Kane admitted to us he had been friendly with this woman," said the commonwealth's attorney, "but told us his wife had learned of the friendship two years ago and had objected, and that the differences had been patched up.

"He told us he had not seen the woman in two years. The date of his letter, however, indicates to us that the affair had continued until very recently."

Letter Mentions Traveling.

The letter, addressed to "Sashy," supposed to be a corruption of the Russian name for Elisha, follows, in part:

"There were numerous times, Sashy, when I wondered if you and I ever will get leisure to do some of the 'old world' places together—the good and the bad. Do you still have any dreams of my ever being a part of your life?

"Where is she? I can't understand how come she stayed at home a year. Do you still intend to stick it? If you were not now at her home you could easily drive to Washington and I could take a bus there."

MUSSOLINI 'FIRES' BLACKSHIRT HEAD TO PLEASE POPE

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's impending visit to the pope, which will symbolize the accord now existing between them, is to be accompanied by the sacrifice by each of them of one of his active leaders in the controversy over the Catholic Action organization.

Mussolini's contribution to peace, it was said today in responsible Vatican quarters, will be the "resignation" of Maj. Giovanni Giuriati, guiding spirit of 3,000,000 blackshirts. Maj. Giuriati is to abandon the secretaryship of the Fascist party, as head of which Mussolini enjoys the title, Il Duce.

The Vatican already has announced the pope's peace offering in the removal of Father Enrico Rosa as head of the Catholic publishing house. Father Rosa and Maj. Giuriati have been active in the church-state controversy. The premier has demanded the removal of the priest, and the pope has demanded the resignation of the major.

CHICAGO SUPER ELEVATED ROAD URGED IN DE KALB

Leaders Ask Emmerson Start Project.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

De Kalb, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Civic leaders of this city of 10,000 population, 60 miles west of Chicago's loop, adopted a resolution today petitioning Gov. Emmerson to start construction on the Austin-Kinzie elevated highway this winter.

Mayor W. P. Hiland and City Attorney De Estin Pasley said that a similar resolution will be passed by the council and Dr. Rodney A. Wright, president of the De Kalb chamber of commerce, announced that his organization will likewise petition the governor.

Sees De Kalb Benefited.

These civic leaders were brought together at a luncheon this noon, called by the Chicago Motor club. They agreed that the congested streets of Chicago's west side constitute a gulf between the business center of the metropolis and its neighboring cities of northern Illinois, impeding the development of this part of the state by this interference with motor traffic.

"With the elevated highway and with grade separations on Roosevelt road," said Glenn Reynolds, secretary of the chamber of commerce, "De Kalb will be brought within commuting distance of the loop. De Kalb will become a desirable home for city workers who are remaining cooped up in apartment buildings because it takes too long to drive into and out of Chicago."

Would Give Jobs to 15,000.

The resolution asked Gov. Emmerson to include in his call for a proposed special session of legislature this fall the subject of an appropriation for the elevated highway. Without such an appropriation there will be millions of dollars of the road fund lying idle in the state treasury this winter. With the appropriation, the Chicago plan commission estimates that actual construction can start within a few weeks and between 15,000 and 30,000 men be furnished jobs this winter.

France Honors Mechanic Killed on Paris-Tokio Hop

PARIS, Sept. 17.—(AP)—On the recommendation of the air minister, the cabinet today awarded the decoration of a chevalier of the Legion of Honor to Rene Mesmin, who was killed with Joseph Le Brix when their Paris-Tokio flight ended in a crash near Ufa, Russia. Le Brix already held the decoration.

REVENGE BULLET DROPS SQUEALER ON BOOTLEGGERS

Providence, R. I., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Bullets of revenge which for years had been destined for Harry "Squealer" Volpe found him today.

Crumpled on the floor of a stolen automobile, this ex-bootlegger and federal informer was all but delivered at the home of his brother, Louis, during the night. One bullet in the head ended the career of a man who had broken the prohibition law for years and who also had obtained information which led to the indictment of 112 men in one of the largest liquor ring exposes since prohibition became effective.

Volpe came to Providence from the west soon after prohibition became effective. He started business in a small barroom on Page street and for several years he operated effectively. Then the law caught up with him and Volpe turned from bootlegging to the work of an informer for those who had driven him out of business.

BRITAIN DECLINES TO PUNISH TARS IN NAVAL MUTINY

Plans to Cure Hardships with "Greatest Speed."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The British admiralty has very definitely climbed down. The mutiny of the lower ratings of the Atlantic fleet against pay cuts is to be forgotten. Bygones are to be bygones so far as the admiralty is concerned, and the men are not to be punished.

Cases of exceptional hardship are to be remedied "with the greatest speed possible," and an opportunity is to be given the sailors to state their case.

This remarkable development in the recent sensational happenings was revealed tonight by the first lord of the admiralty, Sir Austen Chamberlain, in the house of commons when the debate on the budget was unexpectedly interrupted by the speaker to allow a motion to discuss "unrest in the navy." The motion was introduced by a Labor member from Portsmouth, Capt. W. G. Hall.

Agree to Forget Past.

The house's mood underwent an atmospheric change. Speeches proceeded with a patriotic note which placed the welfare of the British navy above party. Some Labor members praised the sense of discipline and loyalty of the fleet, despite the disclosure by Capt. Hall that the ratings of the whole Atlantic fleet were concerned in the recent action which he insisted was "not one of mutiny, but that, in fact, the seamen acted with great restraint."

Then came the first lord's declaration that the admiralty would forget the past.

"The past is past, but it is in the interest of everybody that the men of the navy should loyally do their work and not look back on what has happened on this occasion, but rather go forward together in the service of their country."

It was solely on the grounds of a national emergency which called for sacrifices from all classes that the government asked for sacrifices from the men of the navy, Sir Austen said. He added that he believed that they realized England's position, and that like every other citizen of the state they would make their contributions to the nation's need.

Will Examine "Hardships."

"We shall instruct the commanders in chief to inform the fleet it is our desire that these inquiries be conducted with the greatest expedition possible so that the final decision of the government may be given at the earliest possible moment," he said. "Where there are cases of exceptional hardships, we shall look into them in order to find a remedy."

Tonight's declaration was strangely opposite to an earlier announcement in commons this afternoon by Sir Austen that the order issued to the Atlantic fleet, instructing ships to return to their home ports contained the following warning:

"Any further refusals of individuals to carry out orders will be dealt with under the naval discipline act."

There was considerable speculation tonight on causes which resulted in the admiralty's right-about-face—but no explanation.

Commanders in chief of the principal naval bases will meet in London tomorrow to formulate a scheme to mitigate hardships caused by paycuts. Meanwhile ships of the Atlantic fleet are steaming southward to their home ports. The men will be given weekend leaves.

Charges "Unrest" Hurt Credit.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The London Daily Mail this morning says the board of governors of the Bank of England have taken the "unprecedented step" of visiting the house of commons to inform the prime minister that the national government must remain in power at least two years if a heavy fall in exchange is to be avoided.

"The affairs of the nation reached a position of extreme gravity Thursday," it said. "Information was conveyed to the government from London's financial centers that a precarious exchange situation exists, and it would appear on reports thus conveyed to the government that the recent unrest in the fleet had a profound effect on British credit and that the time has come when all other considerations save those of national existence must be put aside."

Ban Paper for Hailing Mutiny.

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Police today suspended the communist newspaper, Rote Fahne, for four weeks because of a dispatch printed in the paper addressed to the British workers, sailors, and soldiers, and specifically to the crews of the battleships, congratulating them on behalf of revolutionary German workmen.

The dispatch urged the British sailors to "disobey and disarm the officers and chase them from on board."

The telegram as published concludes with "cheers for the mutiny of British sailors."

WOUNDS WIFE; KILLS SELF.

Emanuel McKnight, 30 years old, colored, a Pullman porter, wounded his wife, May, and then shot himself to death yesterday in his home at 5832 Calumet avenue.

HOOVER WILL TRAVEL TO YORKTOWN FETE ABOARD BATTLESHIP

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—President Hoover will go to the Yorktown, Va., celebration Oct. 19, on the battleship Arkansas, boarding her at Annapolis, Md.

The chief executive hopes to go aboard the craft on Saturday, Oct. 17, and spend the week-end in Chesapeake Bay or off the Virginia capes. He will land at Yorktown the following Monday morning to attend the Cornwallis surrender ceremonies at 10:30 o'clock.

The President will have a small party with him. Their names will be made public later.

BRITISH PREMIER DEFIES DEMAND TO QUIT PARLIAMENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Prime Minister MacDonald, head of Britain's emergency government, is not taking the attacks of the Labor party for his action in forming a National government lying down. Several days ago the executive committee of Seaham Harbor, which is the constituency he represents in parliament, called for his resignation by a vote of 40 to 39. Today he replied by challenging the validity of the vote and asking for an explanation.

He raised the point that the executive committee carefully avoided asking him to explain his position, as has been the invariable custom in England when a member of parliament changes his opinions. In the letter to the executive committee he wrote:

"I know the executive committee is very anxious, apparently, that I should not be heard, so they might have a chance to secure a verdict against me. I therefore propose to let the matter rest where it is for the moment. The action of the new government has already averted an immediate crisis which, if it had been left to develop, would have reduced wages and incomes by percentages in relation to which the very hardest of the present proposals are but flea bites."

This means that Mr. MacDonald does not intend to retire and will carry on as the representative of Seaham Harbor until the general election.

Labor Asks Hoover to Put Union Man on Tariff Board

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—President Hoover has been asked by Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, to appoint I. M. Ornburn of Connecticut, head of the Cigar Makers' International union, to the tariff commission. The recommendation of a labor candidate for the vacancy created by the death of Alfred P. Dennis of Maryland, was made recently in an interview with the President. No action has been announced.

SAYS POLITICS MAKES SCHOOL BOARD IMPOTENT

Mrs. Heffernan Tells of Waste.

"It rather startles some of us to see that the salaries of the engineer-custodians in the senior high schools are higher than those paid the principals. For example, the top for a custodian is $4,980, which is $1,180 higher than the top for a principal, $3,800, and $2,980 higher than that paid an ordinary teacher, which is $2,000."

MR. SAVAGE—We have no control over that.

Joseph K. Brittain, chairman of the committee, asked at this point: "How long does the union agreement for these men last?"

MR. SAVAGE—I can't tell you that.

MR. BRITTAIN—How long have you been on the board?

MR. SAVAGE—About nine months now.

Asks Trustee About Boilers.

MR. SARGENT—Isn't it a fact that high pressure boilers have been put in some of the schools when low pressure boilers would have done just as well?

MR. SAVAGE—I can't tell you that.

MR. SARGENT—Did you ever inquire into that?

MR. SAVAGE—No. I am satisfied that we operate the board of education as efficiently and economically as any other body in the city and more so than any other public body in the state.

MR. SARGENT—If that is the case, then you won't mind if I ask you these other questions?

MR. SAVAGE—I'll be glad if you will.

MR. SARGENT—Do you know if it is true that where a contract specifically called for slag, crushed stone was substituted?

MR. SAVAGE—No. I am satisfied, however, that the school building contractors can make no profit except by cheating on labor.

MR. SARGENT—Can you tell us if the specifications for the Spaulding school, which we asked for, have been given us?

MR. SAVAGE—When a request for them was made, a letter was sent to this commission saying that they could be had if called for by your auditor.

It was then revealed that when the auditor called for the specifications he was given copies and was not allowed to compare them with the original specifications.

MR. SAVAGE—Well, all I can say is that you can get them if you want them. I don't want it said that we are evading giving out any material asked for.

MR. BRITTAIN — Well, we have been trying for a week or more to get them, I'm glad that's straightened out.

Facts Given by Trustees.

MR. BRITTAIN—Well, Mr. Savage, a good deal of our information was given us by members of your board or staff.

MR. SAVAGE—I'm awfully glad to hear that; I thought you were unfair.

Sewell L. Avery, a member of the commission, interjected at this point: "Mr. Myers (president of the board of education) said that he could save $10,000,000 a year if he could be in power in the board and run it as a private business."

MR. SAVAGE—The fact that Mr. Myers made the statement doesn't mean that it is true. I have the highest regard for him, but if he did that he would pay lower salaries, and you can't do that with public bodies.

MR. SARGENT—There does seem to be a general impression that there is considerable extravagance in the schools. Either it should be stopped or, if it is not true, it should be so proven.

Cites School Painting Bids.

Later Mr. Sargent read from a printed slip, which he said had been given him by a school board employé, which purported to show that the low bid on contracts for painting half a dozen schools had not been accepted. The successful bidders were given all the way from $25 to $1,050 more than the low bid, he stated.

MR. SAVAGE—A difference of $25 doesn't mean a thing. The people who were bidding lower were on a very low margin. The schools needed that painting.

Mr. Sargent cited evidence to show that a contractor had not used the proper kind of fill in the construction of a new school. A letter accompanied this which asserted that the school architect had given him permission to do this. Mr. Sargent indicated he had other evidence of this nature.

MR. SAVAGE—If you want to be fair I don't think you should make these charges unless you know they are true. We have the press here to take these statements down, but unless you know they are true I don't think you should make them.

Given by School Employés.

MR. SARGENT—I'm satisfied they are true if your employés are telling the truth. All this information has been supplied to your superior officers.

MR. SAVAGE—I don't know about that; it hasn't been given to me.

Mr. Sargent asked why the board was to continue to operate the Crane college this year when Attorney James Todd had given an opinion that it had no authority to do so.

MR. SAVAGE—I understand that the governor has promised to include that question in his call for a special session of the legislature.

MR. SARGENT—Then in this crisis, when we are faced with the fact that governments are breaking down, why not save expenses?

MR. SAVAGE—No, never, if it means sacrificing the educational facilities.

Mr. Savage also said that the board had saved about $233,000 since the first of the year and would save about $466,000 during the year.

Jury Finds Gun Death of Woman to Be Suicide

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict stating that the death of Mrs. Mae Wright, 22 years old, who shot and killed herself Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Mary Zenisik, 2324 West 47th street, was a suicide.

BROOKLYN SLOT MACHINE RACKET KING IS KILLED

Meyer Shapiro Slain After Gang Errs Once.

A sleepy newsboy, stumbling through the dark basement hallway of his home on the lower east side, at 7:20 o'clock this morning, found Meyer's body just inside the door.

Slain at Another Place.

The detectives found beside the body two shirts and a towel, blood-stained, which apparently had been used to staunch the flow of blood from the wound in the head. One shoe was missing and in the gutter in front of the house were Meyer's flashy green coat and vest.

Two empty five gallon alcohol cans wrapped in heavy brown paper were found in the middle of the street, but the police have not decided whether they have anything to do with the murder.

The presence of the blood stained shirts and towel and the coat and vest convinced detectives that Meyer was murdered in some other part of the city and his body disposed of by dumping it down the three steps into the unlocked hallway.

Partners Split.

Meyer's death was no surprise to the police. He had been marked for death months ago in the fight between rival Brooklyn gangs for control of the profits from the slot machines in that borough.

Shapiro and one Abe Reles had started out as partners in various enterprises but couldn't stand prosperity.

They had their district nicely in hand when Reles decided to usurp Shapiro's position as head of the business. Then the war started.

REFUSES PERMIT FOR ONE MAN STREET CARS

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday refused to issue a temporary order permitting the installation of one man street cars on certain lines designated by the Chicago Surface Lines. The commission ordered the street car men's union and other interested parties to conduct a survey for two weeks and present evidence.

The street car company asked permission to give one man service on 15 lines and on 11 other lines at night only. It asserted that a falling off of revenue of $5,000,000 a year made economies necessary and that $600,000 would be saved yearly by this means.

Evidence in the case will be presented to Assistant Commissioner Robert H. Farrell. Not until a complete summary of evidence can be made by both sides to the controversy will the commission make a decision, it announced.

Corporation Counsel Sexton, who appeared for the city, reiterated his position that he could not speak for the city's attitude in the dispute until the city council takes some action in the matter. The council does not meet until Oct. 21.

Attorney Francis X. Busch, representing the surface lines, has served notice on the commission that, if the one man service is not allowed, the only alternative for the street car company will be the reduction in number of the two man cars now in operation. The street car company does not need permission of the commission to take cars out of service.

"Too Decent" for Arrest, Slashes Wrists in Cell

Because "he was too decent to be locked up," Carl Bolger, 41 years old, of 221 May street, Waukegan, slashed his wrists with broken glass in a cell in the Waukegan city jail early this morning. He was taken to the Victory Memorial hospital in Waukegan. Bolger was arrested last night on complaint of his wife.

SPAIN'S 'REPUBLIC OF WORKERS' DIES DAY AFTER BIRTH

Deputies Heed Zamora and Scrap Name.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Sept. 17.—Spain became quite suddenly last night a "republic of workers," but tonight it had already ceased to be that.

Showing the world a new wrinkle in parliamentary procedure, the cortes this afternoon solemnly repented its action of voting by a majority of 15, in a moment of exaltation, this potent definition of a republic and by acclamation sent the article back to the drafting committee.

President Alcala Zamora, absent last night, came charging into parliament this afternoon, 24 hours late, and brought home to the deputies the enormity of their sin.

Government Becomes Federal.

Had he waited another 24 hours anything might have happened. The republic, which suddenly became Liberal, democratic and a monopoly for the workers, by today had become federal and almost anything else. But President Zamora got there in time.

"I did not think anything so serious was to come up," President Zamora apologized at the beginning of his speech.

"If the republic is to be fruitful we do not have to load it down with adjectives," he said solemnly. "If I had been present at the voting I would have declared this a republic of all workers of all kinds, lest people get the idea that class spirit exists here."

In a great burst of cleverness President Zamora avoided attacking the Socialists with whom he is still on good terms, for slipping the idea so dear to them into the constitution. He spoke ostensibly against the federalist party's amendment to the article proposed by the radicals, who were furious at the Socialists' success.

"We do not need the word federal and the draft is already federal in substance," the president said. "The real interest of the regions which want and are entitled to autonomy, would not be served by the imposition of artificial federalism. It would be insufficient for them and too much for others."

Asks Article Redrafted.

He asked that the article be redrafted with an eye to the truly autonomous aspirations of Catalonia. In redrafting it the "worker" will be ditched if the Socialists cannot manage otherwise.

To accomplish this Zamora worked the chamber up to a great pitch by attacking Santiago Alba, a former minister of the crown, only recently returned from exile, and who has been campaigning against Zamora's government with the position of minister of finance in view for himself.

Zamora explained that by the famous pact of San Sebastian, Catalonia, or any other region that wants it, receives autonomy. He said this pact might be compared with another famous pact signed in Paris, where Alba met former King Alfonso in June and agreed to help the monarchist and the Catalans in an attempt to save the crown. The deputies cheered gleefully. Shouts of "Viva la Republica" were raised.

Alba, furious, sprang up and said: "Zamora had his feet under the same table as I, and he was serving the same master."

This reference to Zamora's term as minister of the king brought screams of rage from the chamber.

DISARMAMENT PARLEY WILL COST LEAGUE OF NATIONS $800,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 17.—The international disarmament conference in February will cost the league of nations $800,000, according to budget estimates announced tonight.

Printing is the largest item, costing $400,000. The salaries of additional employés represent another $268,000. Arthur Henderson, former British foreign secretary, has allocated $10,000 expenses for entertainment.

The total budget for the league's office at the world court at The Hague amounts to $7,000,000, compared to $6,200,000 last year, and the committee is attempting to slice off $800,000.

PARIS AND ROME NEAR ACCORD IN NAVAL DISPUTE

Solution Hinges on Pact in Mediterranean.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 17.—Direct negotiations between French and Italian representatives to smash the naval deadlock, existing since the London conference 18 months ago, have advanced to such a point that a British delegate is rushing from London to Geneva tonight to examine the status of the present discussions and to participate in future conventions.

JOSEPH PAUL-BONCOUR.
[Acme Photo.]

Informal exchanges of views are proceeding here between Rene Massigh and Joseph Paul-Boncour, representing Paris, and Counts Ruspo and Rosso, representing Rome. Last year the situation reached such a favorable development that the British delegation was informed, and Leslie Cragie, former chief expert to the British admiralty, was hastily summoned.

The most careful secrecy veils the basis of the accord on which the French and Italians are working, but a report has leaked out that the solution hinges on a Mediterranean pact. This has been long sought as the most feasible exit from the impasse the two sea powers have faced since the Fascist bombshell for complete parity with the strongest continental navy—meaning France—which was exploded by Foreign Minister Dino Grandi at the opening of the London conference.

When American and British efforts to effect a compromise on the Franco-Italian differences failed in London, Rome and Paris agreed to a holiday on naval construction and on carrying out new naval programs until last January. Since then each power has refrained from beginning intensive building, as the schedules provided, hoping for an amicable settlement through mutual conversations and concessions.

OAK PARK MOVIES TO OPEN SUNDAY; TEST CASE SEEN

Movies will open Sunday in Oak Park for the first time in the history of the village. But just as soon as the motion picture houses open their doors, in violation of the ordinance, they will be closed, according to Capt. Thomas P. Kearin of the Oak Park police.

Announcement of the opening in billboard signs and hand bills followed a statement issued yesterday by the Greater Chicago Theaters, Inc., through their counsel, Robert E. Cantwell Jr., and the Chicago law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt. The action is based on the fact that Oak Park has by ordinance permitted miniature golf courses to operate on Sunday, which, Attorney Cantwell charges, is discrimination in favor of one industry over another.

Attorney Cantwell said that the management of the Lamar theater in the village was prepared for arrest. If this happens, the attorney declared, an early trial will be demanded and the matter will be taken to the Illinois Supreme court as a test case.

GERARD ASSAILS U. S. BANKERS FOR LOANS TO BERLIN

Germans Need No Aid—Americans Do, He Says.

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Former Ambassador James W. Gerard was sharply critical of the foreign financial policy adopted by American bankers and issued a statement scoring them for their attitude upon his return from Europe today on the French liner Paris.

JAS. W. GERARD.

The burden of his criticism lay in the readiness with which financiers throughout the country lent millions of dollars to Germany and overlooked the imperative need at home. He declared that Germany needed no assistance and that a large percentage of the loans she received from the United States immediately was loaned to Russia.

"The German nation," said Mr. Gerard, "apparently is making bankruptcy pay."

Scouts Dictatorship Idea.

The former ambassador to Germany stated that it was high time American bankers started helping their own country and stopped lending money to Germany. Since the conclusion of the Versailles treaty Germany has paid out ten billion marks in reparations and has received 18 billion marks in public and private loans, Mr. Gerard said.

Mr. Gerard was asked about the possibility of a nationalist dictatorship, which Prof. William R. Shepherd of Columbia university considered imminent upon his arrival from Germany yesterday. Mr. Gerard said there was little chance of this happening.

"There is a solid body of citizens in Germany," he said, "who will rise en masse against a dictatorship either by the Nationalist or Communist party.

Germany Aids Russia.

"Germany is spending too much money building stadiums and swimming pools, which is a waste in view of present economic conditions. Some money is devoted to housing, but the greater portion is used for luxury equipment. Germany is also lending a great deal of money to Russia. If we're going to do business with Russia, let's do it directly and not through Germany. Germany has arranged to give soviet Russia millions of dollars of credit to purchase commodities in Germany.

Gerard Twits His Critics.

"New York bankers are entirely too European minded and not sufficiently American minded. They would do far better to lend money to American business.

Mr. Gerard guessed that if President Hoover would put a stop to "this prohibition nonsense" and if certain business consolidations could be permitted prosperity would return.

RAIL OFFICIAL GETS LICENSE TO MARRY DIVORCEE

Robert E. Woodruff of Cleveland, vice president in charge of operations of the Erie railroad, and Mrs. Ariana M. Woodbury, wealthy Hornell, N. Y., divorcée, yesterday obtained a marriage license at the county building. Plans for the wedding were not announced. Mr. Woodruff is 47 years old and Mrs. Woodbury is 33.

ROBERT E. WOODRUFF.

Mr. Woodruff was divorced in Columbus, O., in March, 1927, by his former wife. Mrs. Woodbury was awarded a Reno divorce on Monday from Lawrence J. Woodbury of New York and Hornell, wealthy head of Grossman.

CITY INTERVENES IN LAKE FRONT TRACK DISPUTE

Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman yesterday filed an intervening petition in the Lake Shore drive street car tracks removal dispute now before the Illinois commerce commission. As directed by the city council in a resolution some time ago the city takes the position that the tracks on the drive between Chicago avenue and Ohio street should not be removed and that they possibly could be rearranged without interfering with the outer drive improvement now under way.

"The city believes that the tracks are a necessary convenience to people of the west side and other parts of the city who desire to reach the Navy pier and the lake front," said Mr. Grossman.

CAPONE SURETY AGENT APPEARS IN ARIANI CASE

Posts Bond for Son of Missing Banker.

Carlos Ariani, 20 years old, son of Savario Ariani, missing president of the First Italian State bank, yesterday was released on bond of $5,000 or a charge of conspiring with his father and others to steal $138,355 of the bank's funds. Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt, in charge of the bond department of the state's attorney's office, revealed the bond was posted by a Capone bondsman.

CARLOS ARIANI.

James Alex, 2604 Wentworth avenue, who gave his occupation as a restaurant keeper, posted property at 7524 South Wentworth avenue which he claimed is valued at $19,000 less an incumbrance of $7,500. Prosecutor De Witt said Alex had arranged or given bond for George [Red] Barker, William [Three Fingered Jack] White, and Claude Maddox, all Capone associates.

Court Holds Bond Sufficient.

DeWitt refused to approve the bond because Alex's wife had failed to sign it. The property was discovered to be in joint tenancy. Without her signature Alex's interest is but $8,000 when $10,000 is required, DeWitt told Judge John Prystalski of the Criminal court. The judge ruled the equity to be sufficient to cover the $5,000 bond.

The appearance of the Capone bondsman revived reports that Ariani conducted a bank within a bank for well known hoodlums. Prosecutor Henry E. Ayers, in charge of the banking investigation, said nothing can be uncovered on the alleged secret bank until Ariani's capture or surrender.

An involuntary bankruptcy petition was filed against the First Italian Safety Deposit company, affiliated with the Ariani bank, by Frank Giovanello in the United States District court. Giovanello filed a claim of $3,400 against the company.

Expect Lake County Indictments.

The Lake county grand jury investigating the affairs of the closed Waukegan State bank is to reconvene today. The grand jury is expected to return indictments on true bills reported voted against State Auditor Oscar Nelson, Carl R. Stenger, former chairman of the board of the bank, and John Murray Connors, and Milton E. Smith, former vice presidents of the bank.

The reported true bill against Auditor Nelson is said to charge misfeasance in office and culpable omission of duty in failing to close the bank last November. Auditors for the jury are reported to have testified the bank was insolvent at that time. The bank was closed on June 17. Smith, according to reports, is to be charged with taking deposits from the bank after it was closed. Stenger and Connors, it is reported, are to be charged with receiving funds after the bank closed.

Issue Reports on Six Banks.

State Auditor Nelson released statements of the conditions of six additional banks as disclosed in reports of receivers.

F. H. Hayes, receiver for the Laramie State bank, which closed on Dec. 1, 1930, lists losses in conversion of assets to cash at $27,706. Resources are set at $552,592, against $322,190 due creditors. His itemized disbursements are as follows:

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

SCHOOL BONDS.

The members of the board of education who owe their appointments to the previous administration continue to talk of a $50,000,000 bond issue for school buildings as if that were the solution of the board's financial difficulties. These members think so well of their scheme that they want the governor to include the proposal in his call for a special session of the legislature.

They seem not to have asked themselves who is going to lend $50,000,000 to a school board which can't find the money to pay its teachers. The legislature can authorize a referendum on a bond issue, but it cannot require any one to buy the bonds. You can lead your investor to a bond issue, but you cannot make him buy, and in this instance his reluctance will be the greater because any extraordinary addition to the school plant must add an extraordinary burden to the educational fund. More schools can only mean more teachers, more coal, and more janitors. Instead of solving the financial difficulties of the school system, the bond issue for buildings would aggravate them.

All that a bond issue might do, assuming that some one would buy the bonds, is to ease temporarily the financial stringency, for no doubt the board would find it possible to borrow from the bond funds to pay the teachers. The result would be that within a few years a new and more menacing financial crisis would arise.

The difficulties of the school board cannot be dispelled, except temporarily, by adding to the future difficulties which the board will face. What is needed is a sharp reduction in expenditures. The board has approached this task with the fumbling characteristic of men who do not understand the problem that confronts them and fear to look facts in the face.

COL. MACNIDER'S WARNING.

THE TRIBUNE is glad to correct editorial comment of Sept. 3 upon remarks reported to have been made at the Illinois Legion convention by Col. Hanford MacNider, United States minister to Canada. Col. MacNider was reported to have opposed adoption of a resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment and to have advised the Legion to "keep clear of all political affairs." Col. MacNider informs THE TRIBUNE that he urged the Legion to "keep the organization out of the hands of unscrupulous politicians, both in and out of office."

This obviously is very different advice from that ascribed to him in the report upon which THE TRIBUNE comment was based. It is, indeed, the best of advice, as all friends of the Legion will agree, and THE TRIBUNE indorses and supports it heartily. We are glad to know that it represents the opinion of Col MacNider rather than that which misreport ascribed to him. The Legion, as a body of patriotic citizens, ought not keep clear of all political affairs, but on the contrary should observe their course and use its influence for the nation's welfare in such matters as patriot soldiers must be especially fitted by experience and patriotic devotion to judge with knowledge and authority. The Legion must regard as its chief duty the use of its influence for the maintenance in policy and action of the defense of the nation. It could not perform this duty if it kept clear of all political affairs. But it cannot accomplish this service if it permits its organization to be exploited by unscrupulous politicians within its own ranks or elsewhere, and Col. MacNider's warning is timely.

RESPECT FOR THE CONSTITUTION.

The former Republican candidate for governor of New York, Charles H. Tuttle, stresses an aspect of the prohibition controversy which has had too little attention, though it is now getting more. Addressing Kiwanis the other day, he pointed out that "the whole constitution is today overshadowed by the 18th amendment," and he declared that repeal "would warm into new life the old reverence and affection for the constitution."

The 18th amendment was adopted, as THE TRIBUNE has reminded its readers repeatedly, without regard for the constitution or the broad and profound principles which governed the founders. It is an excrescence upon the constitution and a departure from basic theories of American government. It imposed upon the central government a power and responsibility which the wisdom of the founders and the political intelligence of the American people for many generations had determined the central government should not have, since they believed that the states and the people in their communities could better exercise the power and faithfully meet the responsibility.

Moreover, in the attempt to make this grant of power effectual, through the Volstead act, fundamental principles of individual liberty, which the bill of rights sought to establish and protect, have been persistently infringed. In this vital respect, also, the constitution has been overshadowed by the 18th amendment and the new system of government it sought to set up.

It is one of the sharp ironies of the ill fated experiment that its proponents have constantly rebuked its critics and opponents for not "respecting the constitution." What they meant was the 18th amendment. It is impossible to respect the constitution and also respect the 18th amendment, which was adopted without respect for the constitution or its great underlying conceptions of American government and is incompatible with them.

The essence of the American system of government was, and we hope still is, respect for the liberty of the individual and for the only efficient guardian thereof, local self-government. Twelve years of experiment with prohibition have conclusively demonstrated the wisdom of the safeguards the constitution sought to erect about the freeman and the folly of departing from them.

These are thoughts especially appropriate to Constitution week, but they should enter into the American mind for all time. This generation has neglected them and is neglecting them at heavy cost.

A PAY CUT AND A MUTINY.

The British sailors who have not, to put a fine point on it, mutinied, but merely refused to obey orders, have been given to understand that if they will indulge the government for the time being their protests will be considered and some way will be found to satisfy them as to pay and conditions of service in the navy. A mutiny in the fleet is as horrific as the emergence of a half dozen active volcanoes in England. The government backs down in the face of the mutinous crews whose pay had been cut, in the trimming of national expenses, to something like thirty dollars a month.

Great Britain has the experience generally encountered by an invididual who has fallen into the habit of living beyond his income. It is difficult, if not impossible, to beat back to sound ground. The way back is quicksand. British policy of conceding public funds to expediency, party advantage, and political pressure assumed that the taxes could stand the punishment. The objects of public expenditure were rated, in this scheme of government, as more worthy of consideration than the sources of national income. There is a similar disposition elsewhere; not to mention many names, possibly in the United States. Although it is easy to increase costs and expenses it is not easy to reduce them. Each extension of public bounty creates a vested right. When a draft on the treasury has been allowed it quickly takes the form of an inalienable privilege. The class to which a subsidy, a pension, or an allowance has been granted will fight to preserve it and a government based on popular suffrage cannot take back what it has mistakenly granted.

Great Britain has been living beyond its income. The unconsidered sources of public revenue will force consideration by collapsing and the imprudent government will find itself unable to raise revenue and equally unable to reduce expenses. It is an easy road going out and a tough one coming back.

May we not follow it.

SOLITUDE.

A million acres in central Idaho have been set aside by the United States forestry service as a primitive area. It is to remain difficult of access. No good roads will be built to it or through it. Any one who wishes to enter the area must do so on foot or horseback. Accordingly, it is expected, the section will remain pretty much as it is today.

This objective, in a measure, marks a reversal of government policy with respect to its parks and forests. Hitherto much effort has been concentrated upon making them accessible, with the result that the parks, especially, have been overrun. Fortunately, they are for the most part large enough to permit vast areas to remain untouched. Even in Yellowstone, the oldest, we believe, of the parks, and certainly one which attracts tourists in large numbers, it is possible to journey for several days on end along wilderness trails without once crossing a main road or seeing an automobile.

No doubt the difficulties of packing through the new primitive area will be sufficient to discourage many from entering it, and that is a pity. Man is a curious animal; he is predominantly gregarious, like the dog, but he has something of the solitary hunter in him as well. Some men languish when cut off from the herd, but most men are the better for an occasional run by themselves. A week or two in the wilderness with, at most, only a companion or two, seems to restore a sense of true values; it may be only an illusion, but to any one who has experienced it the thing is real enough. For some men solitude is a recreation, in the literal meaning of the word, which no sport, however absorbing, can equal.

Fortunately, there are still many millions of acres in this country, not to mention Canada and Mexico, where a man can cut himself off from society for as long a time as he may desire. But the advance of good roads and the gradual spreading out of the population is reducing the possibilities of achieving isolation. The airplane will probably hasten the process. In anticipating the day when it will be far more difficult than it now is to get away from the world of men the government is adopting a sound policy.

Editorial of the Day

SLEEPY-EYE BOOKS.

[The New York Sun.]

The list of books which Dean Inge recommended to the Library association at London as aids to sufferers from insomnia is not a good one. Few readers, whether wakeful or not, would willingly pick up "Society in Rome Under the Cæsars," "Christian Mysticism," "Speculum Animæ," "Types of Christian Saintliness," "The Philosophy of Plotinus," or "The Eton Latin Grammar," which are the books mentioned by the dean. Surcease from insomnia comes from the pages of a book which is just on the shadowy line that divides the readable from the unreadable, not from a book that will drive the ordinary reader away by its opening paragraph. The books mentioned by the dean would be laid aside instanter by the insomniac and the sufferer would be roused to an even more intolerable alertness. It is a book which stupefies and lulls the senses that is needed, a book that contains paragraphs that can be read over two or three times without convincing the reader that he has read them a single time, a book that fails, by the scantiest margin, to hold the interest. Every reader must compile his own list. No general prescription will do.

SYMPTOMS SUGGEST INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

THERE is very little danger of infantile paralysis after Oct. 1, and the danger has been decreasing for a week or more. In the great New York epidemic of 1916 conditions were at their worst in July.

In that of 1931, August was the worst month. Bad epidemics have been known in September, but they were not as bad as those in New York earlier in the season. However, there will be a moderate degree of danger until somewhere about Thanksgiving and parents, as well as health officers, should not put this disease out of mind until that date.

The New York state department of health recently published the following statement of symptoms which are present before paralysis, and which should cause infantile paralysis to be suspected:

Fever, averaging around 102, but never high.

Backache generally present when headache is absent.

Fine trembling of lips and hand. There may be coarse trembling during sleep.

The suspect is drowsy and indifferent. If aroused, is bright but irritable.

Constipation is the rule.

There is some sweating, but it is seldom profuse.

These are the symptoms which should cause parents to search for the best diagnostic service available. It is hoped that laboratories will try out the new K culture media, about which we have recently read in the newspapers.

The New York state health department recommends the convalescent serum as a cure. It must be given early. Good health departments everywhere have been stocking up with this serum for several months, and they are ready to supply it in small quantities to proper cases on request. In many places the supply is keeping ahead of the demand, while in others there is a shortage. The New York state health department invited the hospitals of the state to coöperate in curing those afflicted, with the result that by the middle of August more than sixty institutions located in the state, but outside New York City, were working together and with the department.

This health department advises that schools should open on schedule and continue in regular operation. It has not been found that closing schools served to control epidemics of infantile paralysis.

PARALYSIS AGITANS.

W. A. R. writes: Could you give us the last word in the treatment of paralysis agitans, what can be done to hold the disease in check, what will give the sufferer the most comfort, and if a cure has ever been made?

This dread disease has been creeping on me for several years. The last two it has me in bad shape so that I am unable to work. Beyond giving me drugs which control the shaking to a slight degree, I find the doctors unable to help me and I continue to slip very slowly. I am 55 years old, but aged like a man of 70.

REPLY.

I wish I knew what to tell you to do, but I do not. Your physician might use preparations of parathyroid on you, but if he does you should regard it as experimentation in search for a remedy. Paralysis agitans, as a rule, is no more than slowly progressive. So long as it is limited to tremor of the hands and head it is inconvenient and unpleasant but not serious. When it causes muscle stiffness and an attitude of premature senility, it is serious. Some cases follow encephalitis. In most cases the cause is not known.

COLORING WHITE SPOTS.

M. L. A. writes: What can be used to stain white spots on the body?

REPLY.

Walnut juice. Get some unhulled black walnuts. Remove the hulls. Add a little water to them. Press out the juice. Dilute or not, as is required.

ASSETS UNDER WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My sister and I are to share in the estate of our grandmother as recorded in her will. 1. At the death of our grandfather the above will was made and soon after without my consent or knowledge two bank accounts of our grandmother were changed to bear the names of both my sister and grandmother instead of the one name of our grandmother. 2. At the death of grandmother can my sister claim all the money recorded in those bank books because her name is there and the will that declares both to share alike be made void? E. S.

1. You do not state that these bank accounts contain any assets that were subject to your grandfather's will.

2. Rights would depend on whether the assets were subject to the grandfather's will and, if they were not so subject, then on the nature of the deposit.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

RELATIVES AS WITNESSES.

Chicago, Sept. 15. — [Friend of the People.]—Can the husband of a cousin act as witness for a person taking out his second papers? R. O. A.

If the applicant referred to cannot produce some witness who is not related, the husband of the cousin may be accepted.

FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT,
District Director U. S. Department of Labor.

DEFAULTED PAYMENTS.

Berwyn, Ill., Sept. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A friend of mine owns a bungalow on which the interest and taxes will be due in a short time. How long can the owner of the house occupy same if neither taxes nor interest are paid? 2. How long can it be occupied by the owner if interest is paid and this building is sold for taxes? F. L. S.

1. We assume from your mention of interest that there is a mortgage or trust deed on the property.

2. If there is a mortgage, 15 months would be allowed for redemption from a foreclosure sale and you might or might not be allowed to occupy the premises during these 15 months.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

BORED TO THE POINT OF TEARS by discussions of the financial crisis in every newspaper and magazine we pick up, we sought relief in turning back to the days of ancient Rome. We selected Arthur Weigall's new book, "Marc Antony." And right away we stumbled into this:

"At that time the most pressing trouble was the condition of the agricultural population around Rome which had once been the backbone of the state. Foreign conquests, and particularly the annexation of Greece, had brought cheap corn into the metropolis from abroad in such quantities that there was no longer any profit in growing it at home; and in consequence most of the peasants had migrated to the city, selling their farms to the great landowners, who turned their fields into pasture and raised cattle instead of crops. . . . Ruined farmers and unemployed farm laborers streamed into Rome, where they earned a precarious livelihood or lived on doles officially or privately supplied, while the countryside was almost depopulated. Here in the city, too, there was industrial depression, for foreign goods of all kinds were being dumped in Rome; and in many industries only the wealthy, who could employ slave labor, were able to compete at home with the manufacturer abroad. The peasant and the urban workingman were both impoverished; and among the lower classes the feeling prevailed that, somehow or other, they were the victims of the rich, and that the senate was merely the instrument of a heartless capitalist tyranny. . . ."

We threw Marc Antony into the alley. We knew that if we got to the next page we would read that stock in Rome Amalgamated Togas had gone to a new low. Or that Tiberius Gracchi had announced he would run for consul on a dripping wet platform, or that the Gauls had been given a debt moratorium for one year, or that Marcus Octavius presented his views on how to cure the depression by speaking every day over the radio of the Rome broadcasting hookup, sponsored by the Roman Tuna Soup company. We've decided we've got to go back still earlier if we don't want to be reminded of conditions as they are today. Jumping back four centuries earlier than Marc we land right in the middle of the Dialogues of Plato. All right, we'll read the Dialogues until we find out that Socrates was a member of the Athens Farm Board, was arrested for speeding through a red light by a traffic cop, and that Xanthippe wore an Empress Eugenie hat and beach pajamas and drank synthetic gin.

TO MY NAMESAKE.

[September 11, 1931.]

I had a baby seven years ago—
And on his birthday, Dido had a girl
Tiny and dark and smiling, named for me,
As different as any one could be
From my small son of lazuli and pearl.
Her eyes are dusk against the autumn peach
That makes her tiny face. Her quick hands reach
To light and wonder and I think she'll be
More than a namesake, say, in twenty years.
Nancy, may all your world be treasury
Of happiness that coins no due of tears.
May all your father's sweetness rest in you.
May all your mother's laughter gild your days.
All that I can I wish you, hopes as blue
As summer skies, as bright as your new gaze.
Darling, be dear and good and sweet and true!

THE INSIDE of the great pyramid in Egypt has strange markings, which those who have investigated say read "1936," and means the year when the w. k. depression will come to an end. We think the great pyramid is all wet; however, its guess is probably no better or no worse than that of the financial experts that we hear from every day.

AIMEE McPHERSON'S elopement turned out better than we expected. Now a lady is suing Aimee's bridegroom for two hundred thousand bucks, and, while it's been four days since the marriage, Aimee is still on the front page. Not bad! Not bad!

YOU MAY HAVE YOUR OWN SYSTEM, but ours is pretty good. We get Nannie the Perfect Maid to look through all the papers and paste pieces of brown wrapping paper over all the photographs of Aimee McPherson and her fat bridegroom and all news articles concerning them. Then we sit us down and read the news sheets in peace and comfort.

THE GOLF COMMISSION is going to stop the mad protests against the balloon ball by making it heavier. That won't stop the row. They'll have to make the ball wider and whiter and thinner and flatter and bigger and lighter and faster and slower and a few more things, and still there'll be some who aren't going to be satisfied. It's a tough world. R. H. L.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

SEPTEMBER 18, 1915.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—[By Floyd Gibbons.]—Two battles in which more than 2,000 shots were exchanged across the Rio Grande were today's developments in the border warfare in Texas. The battles were not, as in most cases recently, clashes between Texas civil officers and Mexican bandits, but were between the United States regulars, acting under orders from United States headquarters, and Carranzista soldiers detailed as river patrols from the Mexican garrison from Matamoras. No Americans were killed or wounded, but military reports received at Fort Brown indicate that at least eighteen of the Mexican soldiers were either killed or wounded.

CHICAGO.—Chicago packers, who stand to lose $15,000,000 by the ruling of the English prize court confiscating cargoes of meat and meat products, decided to ask the United States government to insist on the principle laid down by John Hay, secretary of state during the Russo-Japanese war, and defy England and "orders in council." It was in connection with the seizure by Russia of the Arabia and its cargo of provisions destined for a Japanese port and the prize court's condemning of the cargo that Secretary Hay telegraphed to Robert S. McCormick, then ambassador from this country to Russia, refusing to recognize such a decision.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Washington has said farewell to President William McKinley, but it will not forget him. He has gone to rest in the great west, which gave him to the nation, homeward bound to Mother Earth, which gave him to the world and history. Beneath the great white dome of the capitol the official and ceremonious good-bys of his country and of the nations of the world were said. Then came the people, silent but for their manifestations of grief, passing in unbroken line before the flag-draped and flower-covered bier, sobbing their farewell. A train, black as the night through which it is running, is bearing the body to Canton, O., whose residents called the illustrious dead their townsman. Tomorrow they will look on him for the last time. And then will end all pomp and ceremony. The patient, stricken widow will put away the inanimate clay and her last sad cry of farewell will reecho from the hearts of a stricken nation gathered in memorial meetings wherever flies the flag so loved and so honored by William McKinley. The funeral services were conducted in accordance with the rites of the Methodist Episcopal church, of which President McKinley was a lifelong member. Consisting only of two hymns, a song, a prayer, an address, and a benediction, they were solemnly impressive. The venerable Bishop Edward G. Andrews of Ohio, the oldest bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, read a sermon in tribute to William McKinley's character.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Roosevelt today, immediately on leaving the capitol funeral exercises, put into concrete form the promises he made before taking the oath at Buffalo to "continue absolutely unbroken" the policy of William McKinley. He did this by extending an invitation to the cabinet officers to remain members of his official circle.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—There has been no change in the condition of President Garfield since midnight, when Secretary MacVeagh sent out an alarming bulletin.

CHICAGO.—Charles H. Hammond, a fiery gentleman lately of New Orleans, had some words with Mr. Hogg of the firm of Hannah & Hogg, liquor dealers at 220 Clark street, and was ordered to leave the premises. He did so and went to the nearest gun store, where he bought a "British bulldog" and returned. He waited patiently for several hours for Mr. Hogg, who did not put in an appearance. When Hammond attempted to obtain Mr. Hogg's home address he was arrested, but he threatens to "settle that little trouble at the earliest opportunity."

AN EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—I should like to congratulate Mr. Kinsley on his article in Sunday's TRIBUNE of Sept. 12. The present financial situation which is confronting our board of education, deplorable as it is, will, I hope, prove to be most beneficial in the end. Those responsible for our schools have spent money most extravagantly, not only on school buildings and maintenance but on curriculum. Lay organizations have been responsible for many of these so-called extra-curricular subjects which are very costly and, in many cases, add very little of real educational value.

Our present board of education has an opportunity of doing a very wonderful thing for our city if it will get behind a real educational program for our schools. Our elementary school is the foundation of our educational life. Let us make it the very richest in real educational opportunities. In the junior and senior high schools let us emphasize the social and biological subjects; if we can afford vocational training, let us limit it to our technical high schools.

It isn't, in my judgment, the province of the school to force a child into this or that kind of a job as we do in our junior and senior high schools today. Our duty is to give the child a good cultural education as a foundation. Have it know the language, the history, the art, the industry, and the politics of our country so that it will feel its responsibility as a citizen from the beginning of its education. Let us hope THE TRIBUNE will continue to give us this kind of information and that we may have many more articles by Prof. Morrison on education and public school curriculum. MRS. HARVEY A. TYLER.

CROWDED SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The apparent indifference of our citizens concerning the teachers and children is appalling. We are dependent on the charity of this group of women to educate our children. The children are packed like sardines (70 to 80 in a room these sweltering hot days), and if any sane person thinks they can be taught anything but endurance by a badgered, worn out human being endeavoring to keep order, such a one had better take a look into our junior highs. Please, won't the citizens wake up and demand that a board competent to adjust matters be immediately appointed? We need three times the number of teachers and as many buildings. In the name of mere humanity, cannot some of the empty stores be converted into overflow school quarters? Since we parents of Chicago are accepting the charity of the teachers, let us accept merely human kindness from owners of empty stores and offices and take our children and teachers out of overcrowded rooms. The humane society might well turn its attention to the situation.

Don't tell us that certain schools have fallen off in attendance due to this or that, and so on ad nauseam. Give us a competent board of administration to overcome a system that is stigmatized by criminal indifference to public welfare. MRS. M. E. CUSHING.

DICTAPHONES IN THE SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Over the protest of practically every typewriting teacher in the city of Chicago, dictaphones are still being installed in all typewriting rooms. New equipment was received in certain high schools on Sept. 11, although teachers have not been paid since last April. We need more teachers in the commercial department to take care of the demand for commercial subjects, which is greater than ever this year. Students are being turned away from classes every period. It costs $1,100 to equip one room with dictaphones, and there are at least three typewriting rooms in each senior high school. The dictaphone does not take the place of the teacher, nor does it make the teacher's work any lighter. It merely adds to the cost of commercial education in the high schools without any benefit to either pupil or teacher. For the last several years the dictaphone company has been dictating teaching methods to the Chicago high schools. We are much interested to know if all equipment being delivered at this time is being paid for with scrip.

A TEACHER.

WHEN CONGRESS IS IN SESSION.

Princeton, Ind., Sept. 10.—It is stated again and again and recently in your editorial page that congress in session or state legislatures in session have a bad effect on business. No logical or sensible explanation has ever been offered. Why is this statement true?

The statement seems to point to the fact that something is wrong somewhere. Congress in session and state legislatures in session usually mean investigating committees of some sort. Congressional and legislative committees are about the same as a county grand jury, except on a larger scale. I ask you, an honest citizen does not fear the county grand jury or the police; then why should a business that is on the level fear a congressional committee?

HOWARD DICKEN.

DID LINCOLN SAY THIS?

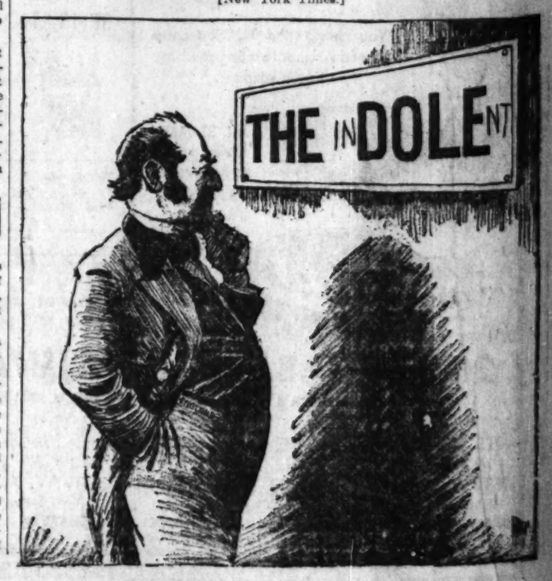
Chicago, Sept. 14.—Recently I saw the following in print and have wondered if it is authentic, and if it has any bearing on present conditions:

"There never has been but one question in all civilization; there is but one question now, and there never will be but one question in the future, and that is, How to prevent a few men from saying to many men: You work and earn bread and we will eat it."—Abraham Lincoln.

Can any TRIBUNE reader locate it, as to when it was said, that is, if it is really authentic. A. S. G.

WHAT HE'S BEGINNING TO SEE IN THE DOLE

[New York Times.]



FAMOUS BOOKS TO BE TEXTS AT U. OF CHICAGO

Faculty Compiles List for New Teaching Plan.

Nearly a year of selection and rejection by the faculty of the University of Chicago has resulted in the compilation of a list of basic books for use in the new educational plan which will go into effect at the university with the opening of the autumn quarter on Oct. 1.

The volumes included, comprising the text books and collateral reading, will be utilized in connection with the four general courses—the humanities, social sciences, physical sciences, and biological sciences—which all students must master to leave the college division.

No claim is made for the list that it represents a compilation that sums up all knowledge. Emphasis is also placed by the university on the fact that it is a tentative collection, which will be revised somewhat as more suitable books become available and experience directs.

Syllabus for Each Course.

A syllabus in each of the four general courses will direct the reading of the students. These syllabi will be fundamental texts, providing reference to the selected list of books for reading at greater length on the subjects covered.

Each student will be required to buy only the syllabi and a few of the texts. For each of the courses the university will have collections of the essential books to be rented at nominal rates.

Many of the classics and other widely known volumes are included in the lists chosen for the humanities courses. Those to be purchased by the students are: J. H. Breasted's "Ancient Times," J. W. Thompson's "Middle Ages" [one volume edition]; Ferdinand Schevill's "Modern Europe," Plato's "Republic" and "Trial and Death of Socrates"; Durant's "Story of Aristotle's Philosophy," and "Story of Plato's Philosophy," and Seneca's "Morals."

GREETER GAW IS MADE A COLONEL BY ALFALFA BILL

Gov. William H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray of Oklahoma was so impressed with City Greeter George D. Gaw and three Chicago policemen during his Labor day visit here that he made all four of them honorary colonels on his staff when he returned home. Greeter Gaw, who holds a similar rank in Kentucky, was the first to receive a notice of his appointment in a letter yesterday from Claude Weaver, secretary to Gov. Murray.

The policemen honored are Capt. Patrick Kelleher, an old friend of the governor, and Motorcycle Policemen Joseph Kryzinski and Carl E. Lindgren, who acted as the governor's escort.

"Bill said when he got back home that he was more popular in Chicago than in Oklahoma," Capt. Kelleher said. "So I'll say that I am more popular in Oklahoma than I am here." Secretary Weaver's letters to Greeter Gaw and the policemen read: "Gov. William H. Murray, as a memorial of his appreciation of the many courtesies extended to him by you on his visit to Chicago on Labor day, has commissioned you as a colonel on his staff."

PROPOSE U. S. TAKE HAND IN FARM FINANCES

Move Develops from Conference Here.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A proposal to congress that the government should take over part of the burden of farm land mortgages with a view of refinancing them on a lower interest rate to the farmer and of relieving banks of frozen assets may develop out of the conferences held in Chicago this week by organized agriculture to try to "stabilize the dollar."

The theory expounded at the gatherings has been that an increase of money in circulation will bring an increase in prices. The proposal of Prof. John Commons, University of Wisconsin economist, that fiat paper money be issued by the government to inflate prices to the 1926 level apparently led to mixed feelings yesterday among the delegates, and in the gossip there was some talk that the Commons proposal smacked quite highly of the "cheap money" days of the Greenbackers in 1876 and of the bewhiskered Populists of the '90s.

Report to Be Considered.

A subcommittee prepared a tentative report which will be considered at another meeting on Sept. 22. It was not given out for publication, but will be circulated privately among the directors of the American Farm Bureau federation, which called the conference.

A program is expected to be formulated at the next meeting for submission to the annual meeting of the federation in Chicago in December.

One of its phases is expected to be an effort to approach the matter of unemployment relief with a view to increasing buying power in the cities, the markets of the farmer. Charles E. Hearst, president of the Iowa farm bureau, who returned home before the session of the subcommittee, echoed the general views of the farm leaders.

Money Now Frozen Up.

"Restoration of the old commodity price level of 1926," he said, "depends upon an increase in the amount of money in circulation. Too much money is frozen up tight, and if the government could start a thaw, conditions would improve both on the farms and in the cities. I'm not an expert on currency, but surely some way can be devised for starting things to move."

Comment among some of the farm leaders was that the most radical suggestion came from Prof. Commons and one remark was that one difference between the old shout of the Greenbackers and Populists of a past generation for cheap money and the Wisconsin economist's proposal for fiat paper money was that Mr. Commons sets forth that the federal reserve now has a means for applying the brakes when inflation reaches the desired point and keeping it from becoming a runaway.

Wants Adjustable Dollar.

Considerable attention was given by the subcommittee to the espousal of Prof. Irving Fisher's India rubber yard stick dollar, which would stretch like the elastic in a pair of galluses as the commodity price index goes up or down, by C. H. White. He is president of the New York Farm bureau, and in his argument before the general meeting he declared for an adjustable dollar.

"I see no objection to it on the part of any interests except the speculative," said Mr. White. "I recently talked to Gov. Franklin Roosevelt about the stabilized dollar and he said, 'You'd find the banks wouldn't want a stabilized dollar.' He told me that during the war he had an experience in the navy department where an agreement was made with certain labor groups that wage rates should rise or fall with living prices.

Could Adjust It Daily.

"The value of the dollar could be adjusted every day on a stabilization plan. The treasury department should declare every day what the redemption value of a dollar is. Instead of a dollar being redeemable in 25.8 grains of nine-tenths fine gold, it would be redeemable in the amount of gold that would buy the same amount of commodities. Under this it would be 15 grains today, but 15 grains would buy as much as 25 grains did when the major part of our debt was incurred.

"Double the amount of money in circulation and you'd double the price of commodities. I believe congress should set up a commission to get the unit of value on a commodity index basis."

As to the revival of bimetallism agitation in Washington by silver men, the general feeling expressed at the farmers' conference was that the gold standard is all right and that the dollar silver certificate itself is only "fiat money."

DEALS OF GRAIN CO-OP OFFICIALS O. K.'D BY BOARD

Directors Vote to Back Huff and Milnor.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Approval of the recent marketing activities of C. E. Huff, president, and George S. Milnor, general manager of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, was voted by the board of directors of the coöperative late Tuesday night. This was announced yesterday by William T. Settle, president of the Indiana farm bureau. Settle is secretary of the corporation.

C. E. HUFF.

Criticism of the executive activities of these officials had been reported by farm groups and grain men, particularly in the spring wheat areas, Settle said, because they had been "carrying out a broadened and coördinated program of coöperative grain marketing." They had been made to appear as building up a program to place the corporation in control of a few hands or in a few cooperatives, he said.

"This propaganda is not only misleading, but utterly false, the directors found after a thorough investigation of all activities of the corporation's officers," Settle said. "That the expansion program of this corporation, the largest farmers' coöperative in the world, is gaining support of farmers is further evidenced by the fact that during the first two months of the present crop season, July and August, the corporation handled in excess of one million bushels of grain a day, in spite of greatly reduced crops in the spring wheat area and while thousands of farmers are holding their wheat or feeding it.

"Even in these times of low prices it is apparent that benefits derived by grain producers from having their own marketing organizations are tremendous. I believe it can be rather conclusively shown that prices producers have received for their grain because of this corporation, the farm board and the Grain Stabilization corporation in the last fifteen months mean savings to these farmers of approximately $150,000,000."

The farm coöperative's directors also adopted a resolution approving the agricultural marketing act and the help it is giving farmers, and calling the newly formed American Federation of Business to "get the government out of business" an "organization liberally financed from the profits which organized live stock, and grain dealers derive from agriculture."

GOV. HUEY LONG WIRES TEXAN HE WON'T APOLOGIZE

Hands on Accusation of Votes Bought.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana refused to apologize today for accusing members of the Texas legislature of having been "bought like a sack of corn" in defeating his plan for prohibiting cotton planting in 1932.

His refusal came after he received a telegram from J. H. Fisher, a Texas legislator, who supported the Long plan, suggesting the governor apologize in order to "allay bitterness." Representative Fisher said he regretted Long's attack on the legislature and expressed the belief lobbyists did not pay money to the lawmakers, but each "urged their point of view."

Replies to Telegram.

Today Gov. Long said:

"Upon your telegram saying you think the lobbyists who have been in Austin were not paying money to legislatures to defeat legislation but were only urging point of view, in view your suggestion that I apologize for language as to make possible salving of bitterness.

"I appreciate your disposition but as only. If you think the point of view of these lobbyists would have no effect on your legislature without something more substantial, you have not had sufficient experience to know how things are done by lobbyists."

Texas Stand Uncertain.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Texas lawmakers worked toward agreement on cotton restriction legislation today, armed with having repulsed Gov. Huey P. Long of Louisiana in his attempt to have Texas adopt his plan for cotton abandonment in 1932.

The Louisiana governor's defeat in Texas was somewhat tempered by the South Carolina senate's action today approving a bill to prohibit cotton planting in that state in 1932. The bill was sent to the South Carolina house and that body passed it on second reading. It must come up for a third and final reading.

Bills at Variance.

Texas restriction bills pending in the Texas house and senate still were at variance today, the house refusing to adopt an amendment to the bill of Representative J. J. Olsen limiting cotton acreage to 25 per cent of the cultivated area instead of the one-third which the bill originally provided. The senate yesterday amended its cotton bill and substituted a limitation of 25 per cent of the cultivated area for the one-third clause. The house action today indicated a free conference committee likely would be named to draft a compromise.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Four persons were killed in the crash of a German airplane south of Stockholm today.

PACIFIC FLYERS PLAN TO RESUME FLIGHT TODAY

ST. PAUL ISLAND, Bering Sea, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Radio messages received here from the Russian steamer Buriat, said Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, trans-Atlantic flyers, planned to hop for Nome, Alaska, today from Miano Pilgino, small village southwest of Cape Navarin, where they were set ashore after being found Wednesday by a Russian ship.

The message said the flyers would go from Nome to Seattle, possibly in two hops, but did not say where the intermediate stop would be. It was believed here this would place them in Seattle about Sept. 22, the date Moyle set for his arrival there in a message to Miss Frances Bresson, his fiancée, at Riverside, Cal.

The advices said the monoplane was taken to Miano Pilgino, Siberia, by the Buriat at the same time the flyers were set ashore there.

No Trace of Atlantic Flyers.

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Vessels and airplanes continued to watch today for two Germans and a Portuguese who attempted to fly from Lisbon to New York, but failed to find any trace of the trans-Atlantic plane. The missing flyers were Willy Rody, 23 year old owner of the plane; Christian Johanssen, the pilot, and Fernando de Costa Viega, Portuguese sportsman.

Maloy Follower Forfeits Bond; Arrest Is Ordered

George Kane, alias Red Donovan, 18 years old, 821 East 62d street, reputed henchman of Thomas Maloy, indicted business agent of the Motion Picture Operators' union, failed to appear yesterday in the South Chicago court to answer charges of assault with intent to murder and discharging a firearm within the city limits. Judge John J. Lupe forfeited Kane's $2,500 bonds and issued a capias for his arrest. Charges of disorderly conduct against Miss Margaret Healy, 23 years old, 2843 East 90th street, and her roommate, Miss Norine Hall, 23 years old, in whose apartment Kane is alleged to have fired shots during a drinking spree, were continued until Oct. 2.

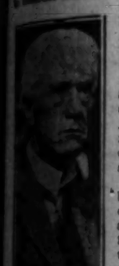
BASEBALL GAME NETS $44,480 IN RELIEF DRIVE

Check Is Turned Over by Commissioner Landis.

A check for $44,480.10 was handed by Samuel Insull Jr. by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis yesterday, representing the total receipts of the Cube-White Sox game on Sept. 9, played as a benefit for the joint emergency relief campaign of which Mr. Insull is chairman.



K. M. LANDIS.

Another contribution as a result of the game amounted to $1,234.35, and was turned over by radio station WBBM. Of this sum $500 was the gift of the station, an equal amount came from the Prima company, sponsor of the broadcast, and the remainder represented contributions made by listeners.

Warns Against Solicitors.

As these amounts were received, Mr. Insull took the opportunity of warning the public against unauthorized solicitation of funds for the campaign.

"I have reports," he said, "that men are going from door to door in certain residential sections of the city asking funds for the governor's commission on unemployment and relief. Such solicitation is unauthorized. The governor's commission is not soliciting contributions nor will it do so in the future.

"Funds for relief in Chicago will be raised by the Joint Emergency Relief Fund of Cook county, which is the best branch of the governor's commission. Solicitation of contributions in residential neighborhoods will not begin until the middle of October and such solicitation will be under the direction of Stuyvesant Peabody, who is organizing the city wide drive through neighborhood organizations. Any losses to house solicitation at this time is being done by impostors."

Cashier Problem of Work.

As the governor's commission proceeds with its activities, it is bearing in mind, according to reports yesterday, the experience of last year in attempting to provide work for the family heads who will benefit from the part of $2,000,000 which the joint emergency relief group will attempt to raise.

It was found last winter that it was almost simply to maintain the jobless family heads without trying to find work for them, for the work they did needed extra expenses in excess of the amount of which would keep them in food, clothing, fuel, and habitations.

The Wrigley Foundation has established a fund to aid substitute teachers who are having difficulty cashing their pays, it was announced yesterday by William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools. The fund for this purpose totals about $50,000, it is reported.

The fund will provide limited assistance, probably not more than $75 each, to those substitute teachers most in need, according to Supt. Bogan. Applications may be made at the board of education building, 460 South State street.

G. O. P. RELIEF BILL IS PASSED BY N. Y. SENATE

Gov. Roosevelt Defied; Threatens Veto.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Republican legislative majority today jammed its major unemployment relief bill through the senate by a strictly party vote of 26 to 23, in spite of warnings that it would be vetoed by Gov Roosevelt, who finds it unacceptable. A bitter debate preceded passage of the measure.

SENATOR J. J. DUNNIGAN.

In pushing through Senator Arthur W. Wicks' bill, the Republican majority also ignored the recommendations of G. O. P. State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy, who had stood for acceptance of the Roosevelt program.

The governor is virtually certain to veto the Wicks bill, which is scheduled to pass the assembly tomorrow with perhaps only one Republican dissenting.

New Call Expected.

The next step is expected to be a new call by Gov. Roosevelt, who is determined to force the G. O. P. majority if possible to pass an unemployment bill without any "blank check" provision such as he contends is contained in the Wicks bill. Under this "blank check" provision, the state might be committed for $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 instead of the $20,000,000 contemplated by a 50 per cent boost in the state income tax, the governor contends.

Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic minority leader, warned the Republicans they had better prepare to stay in Albany if they passed the Wicks bill.

Long Stay Threatened.

"If you continue to play politics with unemployment relief you had better unpack your bags and prepare for a long stay in Albany," Mr. Dunnigan said, with obvious reference to the plan of the Republican leaders to adjourn tomorrow.

The senate also passed the Webb bill, which allocates $547,000 of the proposed $20,000,000 relief fund to pay belated claims for the state soldiers' bonus.

RED CROSS URGING CHILDREN TO CAN FOOD FOR JOBLESS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Chidren of America are to be urged to help can and save food for the unemployed.

James L. Fieser, acting chairman of the Red Cross, today announced the plan, which calls for enrolling pupils in 20,000 public and private schools through junior Red Cross groups under the direction of local chapters.

Officials estimated a million cans of foodstuffs tagged "Not to be sold," would be produced.

Older pupils will play their part in the cooking, canning and drying, while youngsters collect empty jars, get cans and donations of fruits and vegetables.

Each community's production will be distributed locally through relief agencies, the surplus to be sent to other sections.

ZEP HOPS FOR BRAZIL; CHICAGO MAN PASSENGER

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Sept. 18.—[Friday.]—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, giant German dirigible, took off at 1:15 a. m. today [7:15 p. m. There are two Americans on the passenger list of ten, Harold Knight of New York and James McVittie, president of the McVittie Manufacturing company of Chicago. H. C. Bohack, Chain Store Magnate, Dies, Aged 66

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Henry C. Bohack, founder and head of the Bohack chain of grocery stores, died today at his home at Kew Gardens. He was 66. The chain store magnate's death was due to heart disease. A native of Hanover, Germany, Mr. Bohack came to the United States in 1882 and landed here penniless and friendless. His first job was in a neighborhood grocery where he earned $7 a month and had the privilege of sleeping in the store. That was the beginning of his career as a grocer. Today his chain is reported to be doing a $50,000,000 a year cash business.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 17.—G. Watkins, leader of the British arctic air route expedition, with two members of his party, including Augustine Courtauld, is reported tonight to be marooned at a primitive Eskimo settlement near Ellanashaag, Greenland. Mr. Watkins considers a trek back across the ice too hazardous and will have to winter at the settlement unless the Greenland radio station can get word to the explorer Knud Rasmussen, now in Greenland, to relieve them.

DRY LAW VIEWS OUST MAYOR KEY AS BIBLE TUTOR

Quits Class He Formed Nine Years Ago.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—The mayor of Atlanta has been ousted as teacher of the James L. Key Bible class of Grace Methodist Episcopal church here because he refused to stop criticising the prohibition law.

MAYOR KEY.

The class was named for the mayor when it was organized nine years ago. It has grown in membership from about thirty to approximately 250.

Sharp censure was directed at the mayor because of his criticisms of prohibition during the recent American mayors' tour of France, but on his return home members of his Bible class were prominent in the group which received him.

Last night the Rev. Robert Z. Tyler, pastor of the church, asked Mayor Key to discontinue his criticisms of prohibition and the mayor refused. Mr. Tyler then announced his leadership of the class had been terminated.

Soon after the announcement of the mayor's termination of his class leadership, Dr. Witherspoon Dodge, pastor of the First Congregational church, offered his pulpit and radio facilities to Mr. Key.

AUTO INJURIES FATAL TO POLO FARM MANAGER

Lige Crites, 34 years old, manager of the Oakbrook Polo farm, near Hinsdale, died last night in the Presbyterian hospital of injuries suffered on Sept. 5 in an automobile accident in Spring road, one mile north of the farm.

Mrs. Paul Butler, 32 years old, wife of the owner of the farm, in whose car Crites was riding, suffered a broken right wrist and is still in the hospital. Her husband is vice president and general manager of the Butler Paper company.

The accident occurred when the Butler car struck a stretch of deep gravel, skidded and overturned.

Federal Raiders Seize Big Still in Niles Center

Two men were arrested and a 1,500 gallon still was seized in a raid late last night in a greenhouse on the outskirts of Niles Center by dry agents under Deputy Administrator A. E. Aman. A still in Melrose Park and a grocery in Chicago also were raided. The men seized in Niles Center were Wilhelm Berkckeseld and Richard Genova. About 30,000 gallons of mash and 160 gallons of alcohol were found. The men arrested in the other raids were James Fiori, 1704 North 15th avenue, Melrose Park, and William Nausega, 1645 Wabansia avenue.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ORDERS QUIZ AS PRISONER SHOWS BEATING MARKS

An investigation of alleged police brutality was ordered yesterday by Judge Freeman L. Fairbank in the Felony court when Joseph Donovan, 25 years old, 3824 Madison street, charged with robbery, was taken into the courtroom with bruises and scratches on his face, head, and arms. Informed of the case by Assistant State's Attorney Frank Mast, Police Commissioner Alcock said if the evidence warranted it the policemen who arrested Donovan would be taken before the police trial board.

When Donovan was arraigned he bore the marks of a recent severe beating. He talked irrationally. "What's the matter with this man?" asked Judge Fairbank. "Beaten up by the police," said the other two defendants, Elmer Medek, 26 years old, and Harry Dock, 54 years old, both of 321 South Kilpatrick avenue.

"This isn't detective work," Judge Fairbank said. "It's the method of the slaughter house."

The three men are charged with the $579 robbery of the John P. Harding Meat market, 3936 West North avenue, last week. Donovan, the police said, was traced through a license plate on a car used in the robbery. It is alleged that after a beating at the Shakespeare avenue station he signed a confession and implicated the other men.

HEARING FAILS TO END VILLAGE POLICE MUDDLE

The police muddle in the village of Brookfield was still in a tangle yesterday after Police Magistrate John J. Dreher discharged John Mahoney Jr., one of five newly appointed policemen, all of whom were arraigned before him on charges of disorderly conduct.

"There is not an iota of evidence to convict Mahoney," Magistrate Dreher said. "I will take the cases of the others under advisement until next Thursday." The policemen involved in the hearing before him are those appointed by Village President J. F. Mansfield, and include Mansfield's chief of police, Nicholas Ferdinand.

Chief Edward J. O'Connor and four of his men, who are supported by the village trustees opposing Mansfield, will be arraigned in Maywood on Saturday on charges of impersonating police officers. The warrants for them were obtained by Mansfield. The O'Connor force still holds the police station.

Two gunmen looted the Fidelity Loan bank at 9 South Clark street, in the Morrison Hotel building, of $50,000 worth of jewelry yesterday. A reward of $10,000 was offered for the apprehension and conviction of the bandits by Toplis & Harding, insurance adjusters.

The bandits entered the place and threatened Samuel Greenfield, 3300 Sheridan road, one of the owners. They robbed him of $150 and commanded him to lie on the floor. Edward Gewald, 926 Margate terrace, a window trimmer, was ordered to do the same.

Louis M. Rubin, 3842 Sheridan road, the other owner, and James Barton, a Negro porter, were then forced to come out of a rear room and join the others on the floor. The bandits picked up four trays of diamonds and disappeared in the loop crowds.

ROBBER SLAYER AND WIFE ROUT 2 MORE BANDITS

Jerry Kastner, owner of a radio shop at 4235 West 25th street, who already has killed one bandit, and his wife, Anita, yesterday drove off with guns a pair of robbers who had broken into his store. The bandits escaped with two radios valued at $250. Kastner believes, however, that they were wounded.

The noise of breaking glass awoke Kastner and his wife, who live above the store, early in the morning. Kastner seized a sawed off shotgun. His wife armed herself with a revolver. They ran to the window and fired at the bandit pair as they drove away. Kastner told the Lawndale police that the bullets and slugs ripped through the rear end of the automobile. A search of hospitals and doctors' offices was ordered.

Kastner shot and killed Thomas Belsanti, and wounded Sam Palletta, two other bandits who attempted to rob him, on June 2.

DEPUTY CORONER FINDS NEW AID SAVED HIS LIFE

Back in 1908, while he was assistant physician on the lake steamer Theodore Roosevelt, Deputy Coroner Archie C. Cracraft halted at Michigan City and took a swim. He became exhausted far from shore and was carried in by a stranger.

Yesterday Coroner Bundesen hired a new night clerk for the office and told Deputy Cracraft to break him in. The first question the deputy asked the new man was his name. He said it was Walter J. Krueger.

"A fellow named Krueger saved my life down at Michigan City twenty-three years ago," said Cracraft. "I've often wondered what became of him."

"I'm the one that did that," said Krueger. "It took us a long time to get together again."

LABOR TOLD NEW CALENDAR PLANS A FIVE DAY WEEK

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Automatic establishment of the five day week through a change in the calendar was advocated today by a letter sent President Green of the American Federation of Labor by Representative Leavitt of Montana.

Leavitt favored the calendar reform proposal that has been before congress for the last several years calling for each month to consist of four weeks of seven days each.

Under the plan Saturday and Sunday of each week would be set aside for religious and holiday purposes, and the 365th day of the year would not fall into any week or any month.

HOW THE SPOON, KNIFE AND FORK CAME INTO BEING

Savages Were First to Hit Upon Idea.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Who knows what comfort loving savage first sat upon a stone and used another for a table? Who can tell what ingenious primitive hit upon the idea of using a pronged twig to convey his food more safely or at least more delicately? Every meal was a picnic for these early forbears for it lacked the refinements that have turned present day eating into dining.

And name if you will any two or three contributions that have aided this development more than our trio of implements, the knife, the fork, and the spoon. We take them so for granted, yet their story is quite as fascinating as that of the whole art of cookery they help us to enjoy.

Here's the Story.

Way back somewhere in the Paleolithic age implements resembling the spoon were first designed. Antiquarians tell us the first ladle shaped implements were of shell, used probably to test the temperature of hot liquids. Spoons with handles cut from the horns of animals were followed, in turn, by wood spoons from which the article derives its name. The old English word "spon" means a splinter of wood.

Spoons of gold and silver are mentioned in the Old Testament and we know that early Christians used silver spoons in the baptismal service. Today the archbishop of Canterbury anoints the sovereign at coronation with an English spoon 700 years old. During the Tudor period the apostle spoon, for many years prized by collectors, came into use. The bowl was pear shaped, the handle six squared or hexagonal and on the end was the figure of an apostle. A complete set of these spoons consisted of one of each of the twelve apostles and the "Master" spoon with the figure of Christ. Spoons continued in this pear shaped form with various shaped ends such as the diamond, acorn, or seal, until the time of Charles I.

Appears In England.

The first form of spoon of which we find American examples was the so-called Puritan spoon that appeared in England about the middle of the 17th century and became very popular with the Roundheads. This represented the change from the pear shaped to the round bowl. But it was not until the middle of the eighteenth century that the handles of spoons began to bend toward the back instead of the front and the bowls assumed the egg shaped form common today. The first spoon having these features was known as the Old English pattern.

The advent of the knife and fork for table use is dated far later than that of the spoon. In fact only 300 years ago knives and forks were curiosities. At the courts of Francis I. and Henri II. and even at the magnificent court of Louis XIV. forks for eating purposes were unknown. Yet primitive implements that are frequently classed as knives and forks have been in use since an early day.

Most authorities are of the opinion that the primitive savage used a natural fork in the shape of a small pronged twig, while others believe that the fork originated with the arrow as a sort of toothpick. The first forks appear to have long, two pronged affairs used only in cooking, especially for holding the joint of meat while it was being carved.

Becomes Table Implement.

The first hint of the fork being used for table service was in the 11th century when the wife of the doge, Domenico Silvio, was referred to as too dainty to touch her food with her fingers. Therefore she used a small golden fork and was described as being "luxurious beyond belief."

In fact, Italy is frequently given as the cradle of the art of dining as well as the art of cookery. Thomas Coryate writing his "Crudities" in the time of James I. was among the first to mention forks in England, although they had been used there in the Middle Ages as an article of luxury for eating fruits and preserves. He says that his friends mocked him and called him "furcifer" because he used "those Italian neatnesses called forks."

From the 17th century after Coryate's fork caused so much excitement, the development of this table appointment was rapid. Silver service was soon introduced and in ordinary use in the 18th century.

Knife Oldest of Trio.

Although comparatively recent as a table implement, the knife might be established as older than the fork or spoon if traced to the original cutting implements of flint or other stone. In the bronze age there were cutting tools of bronze and so on down through the centuries, but as late as 300 years ago the table knife was a rarity. For a long period men carried about with them in their belt or shoe a knife for general purposes, much as modern man carries around a pocket knife. Whenever a large portion of food were served him, he cut it with this knife and then returned it to its holder.

The greatest advance in the table knife took place after the 17th century, when the implement became popular in England. Sheffield developed as one of the greatest cutlery manufacturing centers in the world and has retained to the present day the proud title without challenge.

Cabbage Is Man's Friend in Both War and Peace

BY BETTY BROWNING.

"Thank heaven for the cabbage!" economists cried during the war in blockaded central Europe, and over here hardly a food conservation drive passed without warm recommendation of this frugal, yet valuable, vegetable.

Now the embattled housewife, in her fight to trim down the budget, may well echo that cry, for the fall crop of cabbages is arriving in timely abundance and cheapness. White cabbage is quoted at 3½ cents a pound and red cabbage is just twice as expensive.

O. Henry and Lewis Carroll have done their best to make us think of cabbages and kings in the same breath. But the fact remains the cabbage is a thorough commoner, out of place in such company. Not that it would enjoy the narrow circle of royalty anyway, considering that it has always enjoyed wide popularity in the true sense of the word.

Knows No National Lines.

As proof of this popularity, hardly a people but has paid the cabbage a tribute in the fashion nearest its heart. Frenchmen have included "my little cabbage" among their most prized terms of endearment. Britons have dignified the cabbage as the very source of the conquering race in one of their most frequently recounted fairy stories.

Germans have made cabbage in pickled form the most famous dish in their cuisine. Americans have linked cabbage with corned beef as fare most suited to the man of action. Even Russians and Poles have contrived to agree over cabbage: it hibernates efficiently and goes equally well with black bread or game and wine, whichever the times offer.

Backed by Science.

And for once science backs tradition. Along comes the food expert in the twentieth century to reinforce the cabbage in its time honored place in the sun. White rats thrive on cabbage, it appears. Even if the war proved that humans do not fatten on cabbage, yet it furnishes roughage, mineral salts and iron, and vitamins A, B, and C, those invaluable growth and anti-scorbutic vitamins.

Cabbage in the raw is particularly esteemed by the scientist. Hence, the fresh cabbage sandwich, made simply with chopped cabbage and mayonnaise or with bacon, chopped green pepper, or mashed salmon. An alternative is cabbage slaw, chopped cabbage mixed with a dressing of cream, sugar, salt, oil and vinegar. Another is cabbage salad, chopped cabbage is mixed with grated onions, hard boiled eggs, cold diced meats, cubed celery or green peppers.

Cooked Variety.

STEWED RED CABBAGE.

3 tablespoons butter or drippings.
2-3 cup vinegar.
2½ tablespoons brown sugar.
2 apples, peeled and sliced and seasoned with salt and pepper.
1 pint water.

Prepare the cabbage for cooking and shred. Heat the water to the boiling point and pour over the cabbage. Add the butter or drippings and cook one hour. Add all the other ingredients and cook for about a half hour longer. Ten minutes before serving thicken with one tablespoon flour.

A slightly different version, which Germans like to serve with pork, duck or partridge, is made with an apple, a quarter onion, a tablespoon of vinegar and a wine glass of red wine or half a tumbler of grape jelly. The cabbage is sliced fine, placed in water with the sliced apple, minced onion, a tablespoon of butter, the salt and pepper, the wine or jelly, and cooked slowly for an hour. Five minutes before it is removed from the fire the vinegar is added.

ESCALLOPED CABBAGE.

Use a medium head of cabbage and one cup of white sauce, half a cup crumbs, three tablespoons butter, and salt and pepper. Prepare the cabbage for cooking; shred it or else chop into small pieces and cook in boiling water until tender. Drain and put the cabbage in a baking dish. Cover with the white sauce. Cover the top with the crumbs which have been mixed with melted butter. Bake for about 20 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.), or until the crumbs are brown.

CABBAGE AND APPLES.

Cut one medium head cabbage into quarters and parboil six minutes. Drain and cut into small pieces. Fry 30 or 40 minutes in bacon fat over a low fire. When it is nearly done add two or three peeled and chopped apples, more bacon fat, or butter, if necessary, and cook together until tender (10 or 15 minutes). All cooking should be done over a slow fire.

EASILY DECIDES SMOKING POINT OF COOKING FATS

A successful, rapid and comparatively simple method of determining the smoking point of cooking fats has been developed by John M. McCoy, a chemist in the meat inspection laboratory of the United States department of agriculture.

Gives Index of Quality.

The smoking point of fats has a practical application in the kitchen. Fats with a relatively high smoking point produce less smoke, and there is less waste because such fats can be used over and over again for frying.

A relatively high smoking point is preferred in practically all deep-fat frying, and some consumers consider this as an evidence of superior quality, says Mr. McCoy. Some dealers are already using the smoking point as an index of quality. It is therefore obvious that the accurate determination of the smoking point has commercial significance.

Use Artificial Light.

In his efforts to develop suitable equipment for the test it was first necessary to select a satisfactory method of heating a definite quantity of melted and filtered fat, to determine the proper size of samples and containers, and to control other details.

In the test developed the samples are heated on an electric stove which is controlled by a rheostat to insure a proper rate of heating, which becomes very slow as the smoking point is approached. The containers are standard round-bottom glass flasks of 100 c. c. capacity. A black screen behind the flasks makes the smoke more readily distinguishable. The smoke is observed under artificial light of controlled intensity, since natural light was found to be too variable. The entire apparatus is protected against drafts to give further assurance of accuracy.

The smoking point is determined by taking the exact temperature at which the first wisp of smoke rises from the flask. In duplicate tests of the same samples the apparatus has given results to within 2° C., which is considered a satisfactory check on the dependability of the method, especially in view of the high temperature at which most cooking fats begin to smoke.

National Honey Week to Be Observed in November

National honey week in which consumers will find special displays in many store windows is to be celebrated Nov. 9 to 14, according to an announcement by the Illinois State Beekeepers' association. Restaurateurs are being asked to cooperate during this week in serving food prepared with the use of honey and other ingredients.

WHO IS BENEFITED BY 3 FARMERS' MARKETS IN CITY?

The Housewife, if She Uses Best Judgment.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Although Chicago has witnessed many attempts to interest housewives and farmer vegetable producers to get together in so-called farmers' markets for bargaining that would put fresh produce into home kitchens and economy and change into the hands of Cook county farmers, it is said there are but three important farmers' markets in the city, each taking in many square miles of potential trading area.

The one that is best known because it is the oldest is the Randolph street market, which is virtually adjacent to the loop and extends west for several blocks. Another is at 70th and 71st streets on South State street, while those on the North side is located at Lincoln, Central Park and Irving Park.

It might be a pertinent question for the observer to ask, "Who gets the benefit of these markets, the farmer or the housewife, or both or neither?"

Farm Adviser Replies.

That question propounded to O. G. Harrett, farm adviser for Cook county, brought out some interesting sidelights on the trading that goes on at these markets. He tempered his answer with the statement that it depended largely on the individual market and whether the housewife knows how to do her shopping when she goes to the market or the back of a truck with fresh "home-grown" produce.

Mr. Harrett believes that the market on the north side of the city more nearly represents an ideal farmers' market, where sales mean some profit to the grower and at the same time are based on a variety of offerings and of such quantities as housewives find readily usable.

"On Randolph street the trucks which come in from the farms have not been loaded with an eye to attracting the housewife who wants to buy at the rear of a parked truck, but all manner of kinds of vegetables and in size to buy as little as a bunch of this or that or a bushel if she prefers.

Seeks to Please Buyer.

"The Halsted market sales reflect, on the contrary, the desire of the individual farmer to please the customer. It is a private market, as is the South State street market, yet the Halsted market is partly financed by its growers themselves."

One of various commodities this year on about 75 per cent of what it is said could have produced in normal and more productive years, according to Mr. Harrett, but in his case this has meant luck for the buyer, although it has not worked out hardship on the consumers.

Larger crops would have meant an abundance of food thrown onto the market, with low prices prevailing for even the choice portions of each truck farmer's produce. As it is, bushels of tomatoes are selling for as low as 75 cents, heaping bushels of wax or green beans for 50 cents; large crates of 50 to 100 pounds of cabbage for $1 to $1.25, and small onions in bags holding 50 to 51 pounds, 75 cents.

Sweet Corn at an End.

Sweet corn from nearby fields is practically at an end although the late yellow corn has been quite plentiful through the last two months. Tomatoes have yielded fairly well and even now are supplying large quantities of the small pickling size called "culls." Carrots and beets have been cheaper than last year, but the return to the farmer has been fair because the yield was somewhat better than usual.

THREE MEALS A DAY — From the Tribune Cook Book

BY MARY MEADE.

I'm appealing to good German cooks, this morning.

Sometime ago a letter came to this department asking for information on an herb formerly much in demand by German housewives. I haven't succeeded in finding any literature on the subject. Who among you can come to the rescue? The following letter is from Mrs. A. D., who writes:

"There is an herb which used to be in every German housewife's garden, but which I never see, nowadays. I know it only by the German name, and I am wondering if you know its American name, or where it can be purchased. As I know it, it was called 'Bonekraut,' or 'Bonekritsel,' as some one told me recently. It is delicious in string beans and is a plant that comes up each year after it has once been started in the garden. The German name translated literally, I believe, is, 'bean kraut'."

One of you might mail me a bit when you write, as I'd like to be familiar with the herb.

FRENCH OMELET.

½ teaspoon of salt.
Dash of pepper.
3 tablespoons of hot water.
1 tablespoon of butter.

Beat the yolks of the eggs until very thick. Add the salt, pepper, and water. Mix well. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Cook in a buttered omelet pan over a slow fire. When the omelet has set, turn the pan on the opposite side. Cook until the omelet is a light brown. A frying pan is also used for omelets. Once the omelet has set in a frying pan, finish the cooking under an oven flame so that it will be a golden brown on top. Turn out on a heated platter and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

GINGER ICE CREAM.

2-3 cup of condensed milk.
½ cup of water.
½ cup of finely chopped crystallized ginger.
1 cup of whipping cream.

Mix the condensed milk and water together thoroughly. Add the finely chopped crystallized ginger. Chill. Whip the cream to a custard like consistency, and fold into the chilled mixture. Pour into a freezing pan. Place in a freezing unit. After the mixture has frozen to a stiff mush [about one hour] remove from the refrigerator. Smooth out and replace in the refrigerator [the freezing unit] for one hour, or until frozen for serving. [Three to four hours, total freezing time.]

The above ice cream can be frozen in a standard freezer, using the same proportions. After the freezing is finished, remove the dasher, and pack the cream again in salt and ice to be ready for serving. Yield: Six servings.

IT'S HARD TO BE A GOOD HOSTESS IF LARDER'S BARE

The prevention of embarrassing moments is a problem that many a hostess wishes she had solved when it comes to providing food for unexpected guests. The New York state college of home economics suggests the use of an "emergency shelf."

On this shelf should be such staples as canned stocks of corn, peas, string beans, tomatoes, tomato puree and asparagus. These can be used alone, creamed on toast, in scalloped dishes, or in cream soups.

Most canned fish and meat may be used cold in salads and all except sardines are satisfactory creamed or scalloped and served on hot toast or potatoes, the experts advise. To prevent a possible low supply of milk when unexpected guests arrive, the emergency shelf can also include stocks of dried, evaporated or condensed milk. The first two are suitable for cocoa, cream soups or sauces, while the latter can be used in the place of both cream and sugar for tea or coffee.

A CHAMPIONSHIP EATER GETS K. O. AT CRUCIAL TIME

BY ROE FOWLER.

Ol' Bill Hogg [and of course that's not his real name] is one of the heroes of my boyhood whose glory has not been dimmed by the passage of years and, I trust, childish credulity. I am inclined to doubt the exploits of some of my early heroes, but not those of Ol' Bill.

The championship claimed by Ol' Bill was unique in the history of the county, and his exploits, although never yet publicized by the press [until now], were never equalled so far as I know by any of the selfstyled champions who eat before the newsreel camera men. Now and then I see a so-called "champion eater" in the newsreel, or in some newspaper. Thinking back on Ol' Bill, I just laugh to myself.

There was one fine thing about Bill. He was always willing to demonstrate his remarkable ability. There was no doubting his proud boast that he could "outeat any body I ever see." He would demonstrate. The only stipulation was that the doubter had to pay the price of the food, provided Bill made good his boast.

A Few of His Feats.

Many a free gorging did Bill get out of his championship ability because the things he could eat were unbelievable. On sundry occasions I have seen him eat 12 watermelons [and part of another]; two entire turkeys; 15 pumpkin pies [sometimes he would mix in various kinds of pies in performing this gastronomical miracle]; five chickens; three quarts of mashed potatoes; three dozen roasting ears, and so on, ad infinitum.

I do not mean that he ever ate all these articles at one sitting. But if somebody bet him he couldn't eat a dozen watermelons he would take the bet. Similarly, the two turkeys were a separate stunt. And so on.

Rarely was Bill challenged by any human being who sought to outeat him. His reputation was too large for that. The people who challenged Bill to demonstrate his abilities were usually curious travelers who "had to be shown," but made no gustatory boasts on their own part. Thus, Bill's eating was generally to reach a given quota — whatever anybody might name, both as to quantity and material. The only stipulation was to the effect that whatever was named must be a recognized edible.

Shows Early Promise.

Bill showed early promise of the great career that lay before him. His eating abilities astonished his father, who had to pay for the food during this formative stage.

Once a stranger remarked: "Mr. Hogg, that's a fine big boy you've got there. I'll bet you're proud of him."

Bill's father snorted. "Huh! Proud? He's the laziest critter in seven states. And eat? That boy can eat an ostrich stuffed with pea hay!"

The joke was passed around the town, for that was before Bill's abilities came to be respected as of championship caliber. Later, too, it was to prove his undoing, in the one really big chance of his life.

It was this way. After Bill had become famous, a traveling salesman heard the story. It chanced that the salesman knew a newspaper man, who interested a newsreel man in a little stunt.

Ostrich Set as Goal.

Of course the hay would be boiled to make it soft, and the ostrich cooked to make it edible—but what a story and what a picture it would make!

Bill was sold on the idea, and consented to eat the subject matter if it could be procured. An ostrich was bought at the zoo in St. Louis, and the pea hay was readily obtained. They were prepared according to Bill's directions, and the whole town turned out on the public square to see him eat them.

The newsreel man got everything set, and gave Bill the word to start eating. Bill, grinning broadly, cut himself a hunk of ostrich, and raised it to his mouth. A strange expression came over his face, but he went ahead. Another forkful with pea hay. Bill ate doggedly, and it was plain that something was wrong. Finally he pushed back the gigantic platter.

"I can't eat that stuff," he moaned. "It—it's tainted!"

With that, he passed out, and physicians were needed to save him from the effects of his valiance. The ostrich was tainted—and Bill was a mighty sick man, but a dead game sport.

Most men would probably have relinquished the championship then and there, but not Bill. He even offered to eat an ostrich if one could be procured in good condition.

The salesman, the reporter, and the newsreel man felt that they had already spent enough, however. Bill never got a chance to redeem himself. In fact, it wasn't necessary. The whole town felt that it hadn't been his fault that he had failed, and was confident that he could have eaten a good ostrich. Nor did Bill ever fail again. To this day, he occasionally gets a free feeding, although times are hard.

"I'll tell you the secret of my success," he once confided in that ruddy fine feeling that follows a good meal. "I'm the only real eater in the hull human race. The rest of 'em is jest suckers."

BERLIN JEALOUS OF GOOD NAME OF ITS ROLLMOPS

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—What is a "genuine Berlin rollmops?" Six different German courts, including Germany's supreme court in Leipzig, were called upon to help decide this momentous question. Twenty years elapsed before a final decision was reached.

A "rollmops" is a pickled herring, neatly rolled around a piece of dill pickle and held in this position by a toothpick. It is considered a delicacy in the fatherland and mostly eaten with "remouladensauce," a sour cream sauce.

When does a plain, simple, every day rollmops cease to be just that and become a "genuine Berlin rollmops" was the question which first arose in 1911, when a Thuringian rollmops manufacturer sold his wares as "Finest Berlin rollmoepse."

Sued by Berlin Firm.

For one year he got by with it, until a Berlin firm sued him. How could a rollmops manufactured in Thuringia ever be an honest to goodness Berlin rollmops, they wanted to know? They asked the same question from all courts until the supreme court in Leipzig answered that a "Berlin rollmops" had to hail from Berlin.

For fifteen years peace reigned among Germany's rollmops manufacturers. Then war broke out with renewed fury. The victorious Berlin firm sued another Berlin firm for terming its wares "genuine Berlin rollmops."

Ends in Supreme Court.

Again the case was dragged through all the lower courts until it ended before the supreme court—in 1931. A formidable array of witnesses, retail fish mongers, wholesale fish mongers, canned fish dealers, ichthyologists, were lined up to help decide what exactly are the qualities which make for a "genuine Berlin rollmops."

"Inasmuch as every rollmops manufactured in Berlin is a genuine Berlin rollmops," the supreme court ruled, "and inasmuch as for the above mentioned reason, a rollmops manufactured in Berlin cannot be a faked Berlin rollmops; therefore every Berlin rollmops manufactured has the right to sell his wares as 'genuine Berlin rollmoepse.'"

Which verdict of truly Solomonic wisdom definitely puts an end to the rollmops war.

POLLINATION IS ONE OF BIG PROBLEMS OF AVOCADO GROWER

Some varieties of avocado are so sensitive to weather conditions during the blossoming period that they may or may not fertilize themselves, depending on the weather. The principal variety grown in California, the Fuerte, if planted within the area affected by cool sea breezes along the lower coast, is ordinarily self-fruitful, but if planted under more arid and hotter conditions is commonly self-sterile. This difference in pollination may sometimes be noticed in trees on opposite slopes of a mesa only a few hundred yards apart.

EXPLAINS WHY CAKES ARE GOOD OR OTHERWISE

Principles Underlie Their Preparation.

One simple cake, well made, is worth a dozen elaborate ones that do not come up to standard, and most failures may be avoided with a little knowledge of the principles underlying them, says the New York State college of home economics.

Heavy cakes may be caused by too much sugar or butter too slow an oven, or jarring while baking. A cake with a very fine texture may be made heavy by too much beating, or too much beating may cause tunnels. Bready cakes are caused by too much flour or too heavy a flour. Failure to sift a fine pastry or cake flour before measuring may spoil the texture of an otherwise satisfactory cake. Use of bread flour often produces coarse grain if the cake is overbeaten

Cracks and uneven surfaces are the result of too much flour, too high a temperature during the first part of the baking, or too much beating. A cracked surface and curly, caramel like edges mean that too much sugar has been used. In sponge cakes large cells may indicate too little sugar, or not enough mixing of the beaten egg white or too hot an oven. Fallen cakes are sometimes caused by too little flour or baking powder, too much fat, or moving the cake in the oven before the crust has set; but oftener by too hot an oven, or taking the cake out before it is done.

Sponge cakes may be ruined by removing them from the pan while they are still hot. The pan should be inverted and the cake allowed to cool for at least an hour, so the walls of the air cells become stiff; otherwise a sponge cake will fall.

CAN PLUMS, USE SKINS FOR JELLY, EXPERT'S ADVICE

Canning plums without their skins and using the latter in making jelly is the suggestion of Inez M. Hobart, nutrition specialist of the Minnesota agricultural extension division. An improvement in quality of the canned fruit may be expected, she says.

If the plums are well ripened they may be blanched in boiling water for a minute or so, or until the skins slip off easily. If the fruit is unripe, the skin checks or cracks but does not readily slip off. The plums will be yellowish or greenish in color if the skins are removed immediately, but if they are allowed to lie for a few minutes some of the color will run into the pulp, giving a red or pinkish tint to the fruit.

TO BEGIN THE DAY CORRECTLY, EAT A GOOD BREAKFAST

Arguments Set Forth for a Number of Foods.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Whether the business man's day cor- rectly, as we are told by those masters of well being called nu- tritionists, he should have a good breakfast is widely this information is known, and how popular a man will be at his breakfast table were the representative of each of the inter- ested groups present, too few of us have realized.

Consider, for a moment, your family circle at the morning repast, await- ing your final tug at the tie as you come to rest from a swoop for the morning paper at the head of the table.

The Arguments Begin.

At once this competitive group of individuals begins the argumentations. The fruit producers want you to use more, and the cotton men offer some- thing "just as serviceable and attrac- tive." Even the plant fiber growers would offer you attractive laces or doilies in the sheenlike form or closely approximating cloth, yet to be observed when once used.

Then the citrus fruit grower from California, Florida or Texas, the to- mato, melon or grape producers would each have you start the meal with their "health giving" products, and advise you of the abundance of vita- mine therein.

You might even be approached to use a fresh pear or apple or apple sauce in the interests of nearby or- chardists. Failing in the opening fruit or cocktail offer, they would in- sist you must have a jam or jelly from their respective and respectable plantations.

The Farmer Chimes In.

"And surely," joins in the wheat team, "you will have waffles or wheat cakes this morning. At least you must have toast or a delicious wheat cereal." He is followed by pro- ducts of other cereals, of oats, of barley, of corn, of rye or of rice.

Whereupon the dairyman urges you to accept this advice, for it calls for the liberal use of butter and cream. He can also with you if you select berries or peaches for your fruit in the hope your cream pitcher will be emptied quickly.

And the sugar men, with rivalry between the products made from cane, beet or corn, will have their little piece as a liberal sweetening, whether it be coffee, fruits or cereal.

At the mention of waffles and wheat cakes, two gentlemen step forward to expound the relative merits of corn or maple syrup, just as you might have expected.

Ham and Eggs Get a Boost.

Then from over their shoulders you are advised of the extremely high cost and low costs of ham or bacon with at least two eggs in a variety of styles, from the meat and poultry men's spokesmen.

The dairyman might interrupt again to recommend the eggs, sir, will be delicious scrambled or in an omelet, adding a further outlet for his dairies product. And as he has the floor he adds that it's the cream that makes the coffee so delicious, and not to be outdone by it—in fact, some people find a glass of milk at breakfast a capital energizer for the morning's work, says he.

This calls for remarks from the for- eign commercials present, bringing, as they do, bananas, pineapples, the cof- fee or tea, and the seasoning for the egg.

Await Your Order.

Suddenly they become quiet. The family is still, listening with them for the orders from your lips that will set vast armies of farmers, man- ufacturers, carriers, and distributors as well as financiers to work.

The stillness, being unusual, brings your head out of the morning sports section, with a swift glance toward the clock.

Imagine the utter amazement on their faces, as with one gulp the plain black coffee is downed as your entire breakfast, a hasty kiss is thrown fam- ily-ward, and you bolt through the front door to make the 8:16!

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.e

Teakettle humming its little song of good cheer. From the skillet the sizzle of frying chops. Cover doing a rhythmic tap dance on a pot of boiling potatoes.

How did they get that way? No, you're wrong. There is no pretty lit- tle flushed face June bride bustling about this kitchen in clicking high heels, crisp linen frock, and beruf- fled apron. These pleasant sounds of domesticity are a modern male's an- swer to how he will fare in the way of home cookery while the lady of the house, young junior, Nancy, and the baby are on a visit to grandpa's in the country.

Dad Has His Innings.

And this is dad's chance to indulge —without discussion, suggestion, re- striction or irreverent snickers—lat- ent talents in a field where, if given the time and opportunity, he has long had a secret hunch he could become a shining light. Faithful briar be- tween his teeth, apron only a bit askew, the light of inspiration beam- ing behind his spectacles—if only the kids or the old pinochle and poker crowd could see him now!

But it's not so much the elephant in the china shop situation that you might think. Far from it. That fra- grance of coffee would make anybody sit up and sniff. And even if one batch of biscuits did go up in smoke there is a second in the oven that is behaving in a thoroughly satisfac- tory manner. No reason at all for the little apprehensive frown between the brows of the older Nancy as the train pulled out, or that last uneasy "Are you sure everything will be all right, dear?" But women are funny that way.

What One Man Prefers.

What do you cook for dinner when your wife has gone to the country? Bacon and eggs? You would be sur- prised how many husbands fry bacon and eggs. But we know one—an edi- tor he is—who makes potato soup. Potato soup that there's nothing wrong with, he says. Maybe he thought we looked a bit surprised.

Anyway, for this potato soup you peel three or four potatoes and boil them with a small onion. When they are cooked to pieces you put in a tablespoonful of butter, salt, and pep- per and pour in a quart of milk; stir- ring it the while, and then you let the whole concoction boil for just about a minute.

But potato soup is not the begin- ning and the end of his culinary repertoire. He can make another dish that consists of boiled ham and cab- bage. And a third one of hamburger, noodles or spaghetti, and tomatoes.

For this one a package of noodles, or spaghetti, is cooked in the regular fashion and emptied into a large skillet, where a pound and a half or so of hamburger is simmering in a can of tomatoes. Stir everything to- gether, and there you have it.

Some Fancy Specialties.

No less accomplished is another man who sits at the copy desk. Fried chicken, vegetable stew and peach and chocolate ice creams with marshmal- lows in 'em are his specialties. The chicken, a springer, is disjointed and otherwise severed in exactly fourteen pieces—no more, no less—and fried in a thin coat of flour, Dixie fashion. The vegetable stew is made in a quantity to satisfy three days' require- ments. For the chocolate ice cream, you simply use the peach ice cream recipe only you forget about peaches and put in a little chocolate.

One young man we know, in his wife's absence, experiments with om- elets of various types, and another subsists on Welsh rarebit.

Everything seems to click along smoothly. Of course the dishes do have a disconcerting way of piling up in the kitchen sink, but it seems a bit unreasonable to expect a man to wash dishes when there are clean ones on the shelves. And what if there are a few holes burned in the linen tea towels and the varnish is off on a spot on the dining room table where you forgot to place a pad under the coffee pot? Just a few little things of the sort you'd think they would overlook, or at least forget, but women are funny that way.

BRIGHT FUTURE SEEN FOR POULTRY TRADE AS EGG PRICES RISE

With the price of corn and wheat lower than it has been for several years and the price of eggs on the in- crease, the outlook for the poultry industry appears brighter, in the opinion of Dr. M. A. Jull, poultry specialist of the United States depart ment of agriculture.

Another point in favor of the poul- tryman is that heavy culling of farm flocks during the past spring has re- duced the number of laying hens by about 20,000,000. Ordinarily these hens would not be culled out until the fall, but last spring farmers were inter- ested more than usual in saving feed bills.

Still another factor which makes the future look brighter for the poultry industry this fall and winter is the fact that there were fewer chicks hatched last spring than usual. This is particularly true of early hatched chicks, so that the early fall production of eggs will likely fall short of last year's supply, with prob- able increases in prices.

EXPERT GIVES RULES ON DRYING FOOD IN HOME

Few Hours Sufficient for the Process.

Food selected for home drying should be in as good condition as that used for immediate consumption, says Miss Flora L. Carl of the Missouri College of Agriculture. In addition, the drying process should start as quickly as possible after the food has been gathered.

The product should be cut into pieces that will give the largest dry- ing surfaces, and drying should be evenly with frequent stirrings to pre- vent overheating and moulding. It is advisable to protect the food from insects and dust by screening with screen wire, glass, mosquito netting, or cheese cloth.

Temperature for Drying.

The temperature should be around 110 degrees to start with, and should go to 145 to 160 degrees. With this temperature most fruit and vegetables will dry in three hours.

The food is sufficiently dried when it is impossible to press water out of the freshly cut ends of the pieces, but they should have sufficient elasticity not to break when rolled tightly. The pieces should not crackle but should be leathery and pliable, and when a mass of them are pressed firmly into a ball they should separate at once when released. Pieces of fruit should be soft and adhere slightly to the fin- gers.

When the product is dry by the tests cited above it should be placed in heavy paper bags or cardboard boxes, put in a warm, dry place and allowed to stand several days for con- ditioning. During this period it should be poured from one container to an- other to mix well and to give the whole mass an even degree of mois- ture.

Rules for Packing.

Before packing for storage all dried fruit or vegetables should be heated to a temperature of 180 to 200 degrees. This destroys all possible insect eggs and should be done carefully in an oven or by using a double boiler. For storing, the product should be packed in moisture, insect, and light proof containers.

An exception to air tight containers is spinach and other greens which should be kept away from the light in order to retain the bright green color. Storage should be within paper or paper lined wooden boxes placed in a warm, dry place, as an attic.

FRESH VEGETABLES AND FRUITS BUILD UP DISEASE RESISTANCE

One of the most important consider- ations to be given fresh fruits and vegetables is that their vitamin con- tent and alkaline properties build dis- ease resistance, according to Dorothea Muehl of the Purdue home economics extension service.

Juice fruits come into this same classification for healthfulness and from that she makes the recommen- dation that attention be given this fall to the use of grapes, "the lazy man's friend" because they are said to re- quire little care for their yield of fruit.

Grape juice makes a refreshing drink and can be also combined with other fruit beverages and desserts. The pulp of the grape, similarly, is useful in the preparation of canned grapes, preserves, jams, marmalades, and grape catsup.

HERE ARE BEST TEMPERATURES TO STORE FOOD

Storing perishable food products is largely a matter of keeping a con- stant and relatively low temperature. For those householders who have the space in their cellars and who also have the inclination to buy supplies in the fall for food for the winter, the following recommendations are made:

For storing table stock potatoes the best temperature is between 35 and 40 degrees Fahrenheit.

For onions, beets, turnips, carrots, and similar root and bulb crops, 35 to 40 degrees.

Storage crops, the consumer is re- minded, are living organisms, taking in oxygen and giving off carbon dioxide and other respiratory products. High temperatures increase cell activ- ity and shorten the possible storage period.

VINES 100 YEARS OLD TO SUPPLY CHICAGO WITH CHOICE GRAPES

Grapes from a one time Mormon col- ony will again come to Chicago this fall. An inspection of the vineyards of Hancock county, and especially in the vicinity of the historic city of Nauvoo on the west border of Illinois, has led to the prediction by Logan N. Colp, chief of the state fruit inspec- tion service, that the county would produce 150 carloads of good quality grapes.

Some of the vines are more than 100 years old, but care has kept them in production as heavy as the vines that have been bearing but a few years.

In addition to Chicago, portions of the crop will go to St. Paul, Min- neapolis, and Detroit.

Playing With Fire

By WILLIAM MAC LEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Lee Reynolds is the owner of a ranch which drought has almost ruined. She leases a Mexican rancho and moves her starving herd there. She is barely settled when a revolution breaks out. Megares, bogey man of the border, is the leader. Ranse Brennan, a former foreman of Lee's, is his right hand man. Brennan was discharged by Lee and swore revenge. Lee hires a new hand, who is recognized by Dune Daggett, an old ranch helper, as Jack Hadley, a millionaire oil man of California, whose father owned a mine near Lee's ranch and was murdered by outlaws. Hadley is searching for the murderer of his father. Hadley and Lee call on Megares, who is, apparently, friendly to them. Megares calls at the ranch and is infatuated with Lee's guest, Mrs. Doris Silver. He comes to live at the rancho, to protect them, he says, though they are really his prisoners. Doris is rescued by airplane by her husband. Lee refuses to leave her ranchers—and Jack Hadley, whom she loves. Harold Silver promises to return with an armed plane for their rescue. Lee and Jack are sentenced by a drum court martial to be shot at sunset. Brennan is shot by Megares when he tries to interfere in Lee's behalf. Megares grants Lee and Jack a final parting.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

UNCERTAIN FREEDOM.

Here Megares made his mistake. The impulse to taunt Hadley was too much for him. He bowed over Lee's hand to kiss it, slanting a smile of mock apology at the condemned man.

With tigerish swiftness Jack dived with the full weight of his hard-packed body. Megares dragged out a revolver just as the battering ram struck his stomach. The Mexican went back as though shot from a cannon. His head crashed against the wall. He fell to the floor.

Jack unfastened the belt of the unconscious man and strapped it around his own waist. He reclaimed the other revolver from under the table where it had been hurled by the impact of his charge.

She did so. With the rope that had been around his wrists Jack tied the arms of the Mexican behind him. He made a gag of his handkerchief and necktie. By the time he had fixed it in the mouth of Megares the velvet-black eyes of the man were fastened on him savagely.

Hadley's blood began to sting with the excitement peril brought. "You were just a little careless, General. Some of your friends will be along presently knocking on the door. If they break in here it will be to take me to that wall you specified this morning. I've nothing to lose by killing you and something to gain. For when I do I save Miss Reynolds. They can break in to be sure, but they'll find Gen. Megares quite dead."

The outlaw glared at him. But Megares was no fool. He understood quite clearly the kind of man with whom he had to deal. Hadley would not fire one moment too soon or a moment too late.

"Don't make any mistake about that," the young man went on. "I'd as soon shoot you as I would a rat. You helped murder my father. Listen to me. I'm going to take the gag out of your mouth. If you call for help you're lost. When some one comes along and knocks on the door you're going to tell them that you do not want to be disturbed. You'll tell any inquirer that it's all right about me. If you betray me by a word, by an

Megares swallowed two or three times to relieve the strain on his throat.

"I'll pay you for this," he promised in a voice shaken by anger.

"You will if you can. I don't doubt that. But I advise you not to get anxious and try to hurry payment."

A step sounded in the corridor. A knock on the door followed. Lee looked at Jack, alarm in her eyes.

"Speak your piece," Jack said in murmur to Megares. At the same time he drew a revolver from its holster.

The eyes of Megares blazed furious hate. But he obeyed orders.

"What do you want?" he asked in Spanish.

He could not entirely keep the anger out of his voice. This helped to serve the cause of his enemy, for it intimidated the soldier at the door.

"Col. Pedro wants to know if the gringo is to be shot now, general."

"Not now. I will take care of the gringo at the proper time." The outlaw's rage choked him.

"Go," Megares went on. "Leave me. I don't want to be disturbed."

The shuffle of the messenger's feet died on the stairway.

"You did very well, general," Hadley complimented derisively.

"When I get you in my power again——"

"If, general, not when," the American corrected.

"What are you going to do now?" Lee asked Hadley.

"Nothing now," he told her. "Not till it's dark. We'll try and slip away then. If we have luck . . . ."

The hour before dusk deepened into darkness dragged endlessly for the two waiting to attempt an escape. Every moment Lee expected a knock on the door that would prelude disaster. It took nerve to sit and wait when the peril was so acute. But the one chance of making a getaway lay in the hope of not being recognized. Night was an ally they had to have.

Jack tied Megares as securely as he could and gagged him. This done, he unlocked the door and passed with Lee into the corridor. From the outside he once more turned the key.

Together the two passed down the stairs. They had decided to try the servants' quarters. Very likely a soldier or two would be hanging around Ysela, but that had to be risked.

They opened a door and walked into the kitchen. Ysela was washing dishes and a young fellow was wiping them. At sight of the two Americans the young Mexican stared stupidly.

Ysela gave a little cry of welcome. "I am so glad, senorita. You are free again?"

"As you see, we are free, Ysela," her mistress replied.

The eyes of the two escaping prisoners met.

"I think that must be Col. Marcos' big dog beating his tail on the floor," Lee said evenly.

"But the colonel has no dog," the soldier said.

"You mean he had not until today," Hadley corrected. "He seems to have one now."

The man let them pass. He had a feeling that all was not right. But it was not after all his business. The general did surprising things. Had he not sent the guards away an hour or so ago?

A tattoo of knocks drummed insistently on the floor above. The soldier decided suddenly to pass this responsibility to a higher authority. He went into the living room to find an officer.

Voices drifted to them. Through the darkness they could make out men gathered around a horse.

"Take it to the stable, Juan," another ordered.

The group broke up and moved away, except for one man who stayed, lit a cigaret, and leaned against the wall. The two fugitives could see the glow of its tip. They waited, hoping the Mexican would stroll off.

The cigaret smoker moved. He walked straight toward them. Jack drew a revolver from its scabbard and let it hang just back of his leg. If the man passed them well and good. If he did not try to detain them the weapon need not be shown.

Abruptly the man stopped in his stride. Lee's throat grew tight. They were standing face to face with Col. Pedro, one of the officers who had sat on the court martial board earlier in the day.

"So," he exclaimed sharply. "It is you. What are you doing here?"

"Gen. Megares has released us. He said we might take a little walk after being confined to our rooms all day."

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Veteran Needs Wheel Chair.

"A young married man, an ex-soldier, suffering from tuberculosis, bedridden for more than a year, needs a wheel chair to enable him to get out on the porch of his home. He is unable to buy or rent a chair and wonders what you can do for him. He was an ambitious, hard working young fellow, and it was his service during the war that has put him in this condition. W. P."

Being able to get out into the sunshine and fresh air would mean so much to this young man who is sacrificing a great deal for his war work. If you have the chair which will make this possible won't you give it to him?

Bright Sayings of the Children

My 5 year old son Bill has the faculty of getting into fights often. He usually emerges licked. Daddy is teaching him to be a good sport, telling him no one likes a squealer.

Bill came in yesterday, his face scratched and bloody, his blouse badly torn, choking back the tears. Upon being questioned, he said, "I say nothin', I see nothin', I hear nothin'."

M. E. J.

The other day, while working at a cross-word puzzle, I couldn't think what a female deer was. I asked my friends who were present.

Doris Tells Lonely Girl to Substitute Action for Dreaming

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Every day and in much the same way I am confronted here with the problem of the girl alone in the big city whose evenings unfold, one upon another, without a single "date" written into the engagement book. No phone call from the male voice so eagerly wanted to be heard. And no immediate prospects of a change in the monotonous routine of going to work, coming home, washing out a pair of stockings and an undie, going over nails and face, and then to bed.

Now, why is this problem so ever present among young women who are free to admit that they are not without attractions; that they know how to dress, dance, and laugh at the right sort of fun? Is it because they wait for some one else to make the move for them? I shouldn't ask, but state, that ninety times out of one hundred that is exactly where the trouble lies. Waiting for what in our current era may just as well be construed as the impossible to happen! Waiting for the appointed "Right Man" to come rapping on the door.

The sooner the lonesome girl puts her idle dreaming to work on a practical plan of solving her troubles herself, the quicker they'll be over.

If the Church club idea fails or doesn't appeal, if the Study club doesn't offer promise—then forget about the club hope and start right in on some acquaintance. Another girl, it may be, or an older woman, or some married couple. Try one evening giving one of these people a call. Frankly admit lonesomeness. Accept their invitation to come over, though the prospect of meeting a nice Mr. X. is dim.

You never can tell what may turn up. A friend of the visited one may drop in. Anyway, it is a beginning in a practical course. Take whatever material presents itself to expand your acquaintance list. Even though the people may bore you at first, use them as practice material in this new job of yours. Go at it like a job, not overlooking a single bet.

DARTMOUTH, AT 163 YEARS OLD, FINDS STUDENTS LESS HARDY

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Today's college student lacks the willingness to assume or accept responsibility that the student of a few decades ago possessed, Dr. Ernest N. Hopkins, president of Dartmouth college, told that to 2,200 undergraduates today at the opening exercises of Dartmouth's 163d year.

"It is no mere rhetorical phrase to say that civilization is threatened," President Hopkins said. "The time has come for the builders. The world looks for the rise of a new generation of constructive genius, intelligent as to conditions that are needful and willing to assume responsibility for creating them."

After remarking that the forces of disruption gained momentum steadily, he declared it was time for the college student to learn to accept responsibility.

Paris Combines White and Black Satin

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Paris dotes on transformation ensembles and dresses this season. Every important dressmaker has an outfit, which, by unbuttoning a few buttons or untying a sash or two, becomes something else again.

These two-in-one outfits are a boon to the week-end traveler who likes to travel light and be chic. One of the best of them is shown in the accompanying sketch. It comes from Martial et Armand, and is a creation of Mme. Vallet, who is a magician in cloth. For a foundation there is a white, eyelet embroidered muslin dress, with long bishop sleeves, a simple blouse and a skirt that is flared by two circular panels set on at the sides, and reaching from the waistline to the hem.

This dress has bands of plain white muslin—one wide and one narrow—set in at the waistline to replace a belt. Similar bands are placed at the elbows of the sleeves.

Worn alone, this frock is a simple dress for morning wear, but with it goes a jacket and over skirt of black satin that makes it into something elegant enough for formal afternoon and informal evening. These two supplementary pieces are shown in the smaller sketch in the background.

The jacket is a short bolero, with a round neckline, and buttons up the front under black satin buttons. Bias satin bands finish the neckline and the armholes. The skirt buttons on at the sides, and is open all the way down on both sides. It has a wide band at the waist-hip line and below this is caught into cartridge plaits.

Raising her child on common sense

HERE'S a baby that is being brought up in the way he should go, on a plain, sensible kind of rule. His mother learned it from her own experience before he was born. "Just keep your system in good working order," her doctor told her, "and you'll never have anything to worry about."

So, of course, when the baby came she made up her mind to follow that same plan with him. The doctor gave his hearty approval. "Go ahead and use Nujol," he said. "It's just the thing for the baby. Harmless. Safe. Contains no drugs or medicine. It's the most natural way in the world to keep everything normal. For Nujol not only prevents any excess of the body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but also aids in their removal.

"Let me give you another suggestion, too. Use Nujol on the outside of the baby. In place of powder. Just swab his skin, after the bath, with a bit of cotton moistened with Nujol. That's the new method they're using in the big hospitals. It has a wonderfully soothing, softening effect on the skin. There's no need for any baby to have rashes and chafing if you use Nujol. Get a big bottle and keep it specially for the baby. Get a separate bottle for yourself."

Why don't you try Nujol in your household? It was perfected by the famous Nujol Laboratories, 2 Park Avenue, New York City.

Nujol can't do anyone—baby or grown-up—the least bit of harm. And so many people have found it beneficial. Be sure you get the genuine.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Here is another dress designed to give the figure slimness and grace. And it is a dress suitable for many different materials. The original was of black satin, with lace in an eggshell shade for the vest and cuffs. Beige satin would also be good for the contrast. Dark green crêpe with eggshell trim is another pleasing suggestion.

The pattern, 2943, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Child's Allowance Will Vary According to Family Finances

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A mother of a boy 11 year old, writes, "I want to give my boy an allowance. How much do you think it should be?"

At first it seemed to me a question, I, a stranger to the finances of the family and their way of living, could not answer. On thinking it over however, it seemed possible that some general conclusions on the allowance question as a result of practical experience might be helpful.

The way in which you live and the sort of tastes you have allowed your child to develop are others. If you have a comfortable income, or even wealth, and have believed in very simple living, and your child's companions lead a similar life, your idea of an allowance would be small in accordance. If, however, you have allowed your child to develop extravagant tastes and to have almost everything he or she wants, whether it is of value or not, you would be acting logically in giving him or her a larger allowance.

But a last and perhaps, most important factor is what you expect your child to get out of his allowance. Do you give it to him expecting him to save it all? Do you give it to him expecting him to spend it all? Do you give it to him specifying in a general way what sort of thing he is to use it for?

One woman I know of gives each daughter a dress allowance even in her early teens, and they talk over the expenditures together. That, of course, would not be possible with a small income and the need for great economy.

One lad I know of is given 35 cents a week. Out of that he is expected to buy balls and small things he especially wants. Of his own accord he always saved enough for quite a few larger needs, besides sufficient for really nice Christmas and birthday presents to his nearest and dearest.

If he gets an occasional bit of "velvet" from a relative it goes into this current fund. Never having gotten the cheap candy habit, he is allowed to spend his money exactly as he pleases. It is interesting to see how he has learned to manage that small sum of money, without developing any sense of hoarding.

DANDRUFF

When loose dandruff gets the upper hand, hair begins to fall out. Baldness often follows.

A quick, pleasant treatment for a dandruff condition is full strength Listerine, used systematically several days. You simply douse it on the scalp full strength and massage vigorously, using a little castor or olive oil when scalp or hair is excessively dry. Keep this treatment up for several days. You will be amazed at the quick improvement.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Missouri, U. S. A.

Life of Cellini Sets the Pace for This Novel

Action Almost Catches Up with Artist.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Dagger and Jewels," by William Gerhardi. [Dodd-Mead.] Published today.

THE Gorgeous Adventures of Benvenuto Cellini" is the subtitle of "Dagger and Jewels." The adjective gorgeous is not ill-chosen, either as describing the nature of the adventures of the great goldsmith, sculptor, etc., or as describing the effect which the author produces in his description of those adventures.

WILLIAM DANA ORCUTT.

"Dagger and Jewels" is that rare bird, an historical novel which gave the feeling of the period being "quaint." So many historical novels are done so much in the period which they chronicle that the quaintness bores the reader to death. "Dagger and Jewels" is about a fantastic person, more incredible than any hero that an author could work out of his imagination, whose life was a gorgeous adventure, more gorgeous than most fictionists would dare to conceive. Benvenuto Cellini is a perfect material for a picaresque novel.

The story of the life of Benvenuto Cellini is the story of an artist so sure of himself that his arrogance was a joke to the side of every one who knew him, but on the events always proved, his arrogance was well founded. Kings, emperors, popes even [and in those days popes politically was above kings and emperors] were, in his mind, not equals of a great artist, and a great artist he knew himself to be. There is no more "gorgeous" book in all literature than the autobiography of Benvenuto Cellini. Mr. Orcutt has selected its author as the hero of "Dagger and Jewels."

It is the period of his greatest creative power that "Dagger and Jewels" covers, the period during which he made his most beautiful chalices and vases, his gigantic silver gods, his huge bronze Perseus which proved that a great goldsmith also could be a great sculptor. The book begins with a great fight in Florence in which Cellini was more concerned with the dangerous side of his life than the jewel side. It ends with the casting of the Perseus. Between those epochal times Cellini lived dangerously, arrogantly, now in high favor at court, now in a dungeon. He killed two men in single combat. He fought, and worsted, the bravest of Paris whose enemies seldom lived to tell of their prowess.

Cellini was an intimate member of the court in Rome, in Florence, in Paris. He was drawn into intrigues which would have submerged a lesser man, and always he emerged usually unscathed from every conflict. He loved the king's mistress and saved her from humiliation and the loss of power. He was a bluff and self satisfied, but amazingly efficient courtier.

The fact that Mr. Orcutt chronicles not a life of continuous high spots, a "glorious" life lived in a colorful period which the author also records with understanding and feeling.

Throughout, the book—which is fiction, you understand, not a biography of Benvenuto Cellini, but a fictionized story of his days—flits the figure of Lucilla, the daughter of the great old goldsmith who took Cellini as a young artist into his own workshop and gave him for years the encouragement and appreciation of a father. Cellini had vowed as a youth never to be ruled by any woman. Lucilla was a woman of the greatest charm, of incomparable beauty, and with social gifts unique even in her time. In "Dagger and Jewels" she plays a large part in the life of the swashbuckling hero, ever hoping to subdue the arrogance which seemed to her so unseemly in a person whose work was beautiful enough to be its own praise. As the book closes, the reader feels that before the wild hero there is a life of happy marriage with Lucilla. That Cellini's life, after so many years of dashing, fantastic "gorgeousness," could ever be steered into the so-turbulent seas of happy domesticity even by a woman as lovely as Lucilla seems a trifle impossible, but history proves it was. Cellini died, rich, in 1570.

Good morning!

It is with pleasure that we see Wheeler and Woolsey reunited. They go better together than apart—like sugar and cream, ham and eggs, wheat cakes and sirup, bread and butter, mashed potatoes and gravy—STOP! I'm breaking my heart! [Dieting.]

"Caught Plastered" is a merry and practically absolutely cleanly comedy, with dialogue by Ralph Spence—which helps a lot. The stars sing and dance and crack many jokes, some of which are of comparatively recent vintage. And they have a nice little story in which they come to the aid of a dear old lady who is about to lose her drug store and go to the Old Ladies' Home. She doesn't want to go, either, bless her, and those two jobless vaudevillians, Tommy Tanner and Egbert Higginbotham, take active and effective sides with her.

It is not their fault, unaccustomed as they are to a lot of things, that the lemon sirup which makes their drug establishment so increasingly popular, isn't the innocent liquid the salesmen cracked it up to be!

You've been crying for another Viennese operetta? Here it is! And by the author, composer and director of "Zwei Herzen im ¾ Takt." ["Two Hearts in Waltz Time."]

Sounds promising? Yes. And fulfills its promise in that "Die Lustigen Weiber von Wien" is tuneful and amusing. The songs aren't as catchy as those in "Zwei Herzen" but they're pleasing and charmingly rendered. The dialogue is funny—I guess. Anyhow it inspired Teutonic laughter.

The scenes are laid in the gay Vienna of 1875 and the story is about a Viennese official whose eleven pulchritudinous daughters walk out on him when he would present them with a stepmamma. The mädels' dancing master plays Mr. Fixit—endangering his own romance with one sweet and suspecting Gretl the while. And so, and so and so—with music und tanzen.

See you tomorrow!

SLENDER AND STATELY MEN ARE DEMANDED BY AUTUMN FASHIONS

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The spell that Empress Eugenie exerted over her masculine admirers back in the days of the second empire, before women tossed romance out the window and entered the business world, is cropping out again this fall—in men's fashions.

Many of the new styles for men will be on display today at the sixth annual style show in the Palmer house. It is sponsored by the Chicago Cutters' club and the Chicago Merchant Tailors and Designers' association.

Men's styles, considered armor proof to feminine dictation, are destined this winter to feel the influence of that romantic era dominated by the late empress. They must, stylists point out, match to some degree the statelines and dash of women's fashions, although there will be no return to the men's styles of dandies of the days of Louis Napoleon.

The waistline will be elevated and pulled into a pinch effect, and the rope or puff shoulder, popular now, will be conspicuous by its absence, according to one stylist. Men's suits, as another described them, "will be more shapely, tapering down gracefully from broad shoulders to a distinctly form tracing waistline and well fitted hips.

"Added to this general effect of greater dressiness are the longer lines of the coats and slightly narrower trousers, making the general effect a taller and slenderer silhouette. Men's styles will be dressier and smarter."

While men's styles in some respects may attempt to coöperate with the Eugenie mode of the women's fashions, it is apparent from general broadcasts by stylists that the prince of Wales also will have some say regarding what the well dressed American man will wear.

"There is a general English trend which might be traced to the prince, the fashion plate for Britain," said S. Bergman, past president of the Chicago Merchant Tailors and Designers association, yesterday. "Then, of course, here in our own country motion picture actors influence the general public as to styles. People get their ideas on what to wear from leaders, the man much in the public eye."

Two Evanston Residents Celebrate Golden Wedding

Negroes Prepare Feast of Song for Chicagoans

Choruses to Sing Tuesday in Soldiers' Field.

Twenty-two massed choruses of Negro singers lifted their voices in concentrated harmony last night and the vast dome of Ebenezer Baptist church, at 45th and Vincennes, vibrated like a bell to the rich volume of sound. There was gusto and pace and a brisk intentness about the business of the evening that augurs great things for the event of Tuesday evening, when they perform in Soldiers' field for the benefit of their race.

Hundreds upon hundreds, the members of these groups of singers, trained to precision, poured into the body of the church as the major domos, or directors, marshaled their forces. One after another these men, who among them are fostering in their people a distinct type of music that is growing constantly more popular, stepped to the rostrum and led the throng through one familiar spiritual after another, climaxing in the crashing chords of the Hallelujah chorus from "The Messiah."

Sopranos, tenors, altos, baritones, contraltos, bassos—every range and texture of voice went into the poignant bars of "Go Down, Moses," or "Old Ark's a-Movin'," and made the rafters tremble with the ringing melody of the familiar "Old Black Joe." It was the same with "Let Us Cheer the Way We're Travlin'" and "My Lawd's Gonna Move This Wicked Race."

As it went last night so it will go Tuesday night at Soldiers' field, in the initial undertaking of the Cook county emergency relief campaign.

Bad weather Tuesday night will mean that the event will be staged on Wednesday, at the same time and place, Ashley impressed upon those present. Tickets are on sale at Lyon & Healy's and at 10 South La Salle street, former headquarters of the Association of Commerce. Admissions will be 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1. All those participating are giving their services.

Important as is the massed chorus, it yet represents only one unit of the entertainment to be presented. There will be a 100 piece union band of Negroes and a children's ballet, under Mary E. Bruce, and one of adults, under Hazel Thompson Davis, both in appropriate costumes. There will be the reading of the Emancipation proclamation by Maj. John R. Lynch, former Negro congressman from Mississippi, once a slave, and there will be the singing of the Negro hymn, "Lift Every Voice and Sing."

Will H. Hays Promises Movies Will Boost Fair

Will H. Hays, czar of the motion picture industry, pledged the participation of the allied motion picture industries in the Century of Progress, yesterday morning, upon his arrival here on the Broadway Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Mr. Hays came to Chicago to meet with the World's Fair executives, and to attend a directors' meeting of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad. He returned to New York in the afternoon.

More and better pictures are to be turned out during the next year, declared the man who is both censor and arbitrator for the motion picture industry. He said that "the greatest of all censors, the American public, is beginning to vote thumbs down on the 'hardboiled' realism in literature and on the stage that marked the post-war period."

Bishop Advises Church Enforce Kellogg Pact

Would Block 'Aggressive Wars by U. S.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Denver, Colo., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Episcopalians meeting here in their 50th triennial convention have been asked to demand that the United States base its international policy on the Kellogg pact that outlaws war as an instrument of national policy. Such a resolution was presented to the house of bishops of the convention this morning by Bishop G. Ashton Oldham of Albany, N. Y.

The 1931 thank offering of the woman's auxiliary of the Episcopal church, presented this morning, reached a total of $1,030,105. This was announced by Dr. Lewis B. Franklin at a missionary massmeeting tonight. The total represented a shrinkage of about $70,000 as compared with the 1928 offering.

Bishop Oldham's resolution calls on the Episcopal church in America to adopt a noncoöperative policy when this country engages in war unless the international differences causing the war have been submitted to a court of arbitration or conciliation. It also demands that the United States government "make every effort by precept and example to secure further reduction of armaments, especially at the approaching and possibly epoch making disarmament conference."

This resolution, together with the impending discussion over the "American Missal," recently published by a Milwaukee firm, held by a large section of the church to be illegal for use on Episcopal altars, shared the convention limelight with the problem of divorce today.

Liberal leaders, including Bishop Herman Page of Michigan, former rector of St. Paul's church in Chicago, speak jubilantly of the popular reaction against the sermon against divorce preached yesterday by the Rt. Rev. Michael Bolton Furse of St. Albans, England.

Bishop Furse was widely criticized both yesterday and today for endeavoring to prejudice proposed legislative changes in the church attitude toward divorce and remarriage to be introduced by the special commission appointed six years ago by the general convention at New Orleans.

Last night, as a result of Bishop Furse's sermon, that commission was called into executive session by Bishop Page. The commission announced today: "The proposals of the commission will not be presented to the convention for several days." In the meantime Bishop Charles Fisk of central New York and Attorney Charles L. Dibble of Grand Rapids, Mich., presented a revision of the commission's proposed canon.

Bishop Fisk used the entire proposed canon prepared by the commission with the exception of section seven. In that section, provision was made for remarriage of divorced persons whose application for remarriage has been approved by an ecclesiastical matrimonial court. Section seven now prohibits Episcopal clergy to remarry any divorced persons and practically excommunicates divorced persons who remarry. The section reads:

"No person who is married otherwise than as the word of God and the discipline of His church allow shall be permitted the sacraments; provided, however, that this provision shall not apply to a person who entered into such marriage when not a member of this church, if such marriage was valid under the civil law then existing and the discipline of the religious body to which he then belonged; and provided, further, that no minister shall refuse the sacraments to a penitent person in imminent danger of death."

On the other hand, the proposed canon makes wide provision for ecclesiastical annulments. These include consanguinity within certain stated degrees, lack of free consent of either party, mental deficiency, insanity, impotence of either party, inmaturity of either party, existence of venereal disease in either party and previous marriage.

The application for restoration of former Bishop William Montgomery Brown, deposed six years ago for heresy and communistic teachings, was presented to the house of bishops this morning. Bishop Brown declares his ecclesiastical trial was illegal.

Zonta Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the board of directors of the International Zonta club will be held today, tomorrow, and Sunday at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

THE STAGE

"THE Third Little Show," with Beatrice Lillie and Ernest Truex as its co-stars, probably will begin a Chicago engagement at the Great Northern theater Monday evening, Sept. 28. This revue, which has been running at the Music Box theater, New York, since June 1 will end its Broadway career Sept. 26, and will then be sent on tour.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has been engaged to appear in Gilbert Miller's staging of "The Sex Fable," a comedy from the French of Edouard Bourdet. She will sail for New York on the Aquitania today.

The new theatrical season, which has been drowsing since the arrival of "The Green Pastures," will make a fresh start at the Apollo theater tomorrow night. A farcical comedy called "In the Best of Families" is the bill; and the company includes Burford Hampden, Grace Filkins, Donald Campbell, Florence Gerald, Lee Smith, Judith Alden, Perry Norman, Gordon Pine, and Warren Lyons.

Of George M. Cohan's latest play, "Friendship," and his acting in it, Brooks Atkinson, reviewer for the New York Times, writes:

"It is one of his inferior gambols, but it is full of his familiar mannerisms and it is limbered by his sapient miming. As he walks nervously around the stage, he bends slightly forward, and his legs have the spring of a nimble hoofer. He gazes inquiringly into the eyes of his comrades, having nothing but good will in his heart. Sometimes he advances boldly forward to within an inch or two of his opponent, and he gazes at him thoughtfully for one minute longer than any other actor would do."

Flags are waving along Broadway for George White's latest "Scandals." The Herald Tribune calls it "the brightest and richest revue Mr. White ever owned."

Ethel Barrymore's managers are searching for a new play to be used for her Broadway appearance next spring. She is now touring the far western states in "The School for Scandal."

The old English comedy called "'Tis Pity," etc.—the full title is unprintable—by John Ford, will be staged in New York early in October by the Classic Theater Associates, a new organization headed by Lyle D. Andrews. Other specimens of the work of the English dramatists of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries will follow. Modern versions of the texts will be used, in an attempt to adjust the plays to contemporary theater-going tastes.

The Stratford-upon-Avon company of Shakespearean players will begin its third American tour Oct. 5, starting in Boston. The profits of the tour will be used in the building fund of the new Shakespeare Memorial theater in Stratford, to be opened next year.

Meyer Levin, the writer who oscillates between Chicago and Palestine, has turned actor. He will be a member of Maurice Schwartz's repertory company, which begins a Broadway season Sept. 23 in an English version of a comedy from the Yiddish of Sholem Aleichem.

Julian Wylie, the English stage director who is rehearsing the American production of "The Good Companions," intends to stage two American plays in London this fall. One of them is called "America, 1932"; its author is Cora Van Slyke, and it deals with racketeers, gangsters, prohibition and other topics in the bloodcurdling fashion that fascinates the British mind. The other is a revue now current on Broadway. C. C.

A report of an automobile accident published last Tuesday described J. A. Fisher 2551 West Harrison street, as a hit and run driver. Mr. Fisher was exonerated at the inquest into the death in the accident in which he stopped his car, took the victim to a hospital, and reported the accident to the police.

Through an error a picture of "North Side" Frankie Pope was published yesterday in connection with the Heitler letter instead of the picture of "West Side" Frankie Pope, who was named in the letter. "North Side" Frankie Pope was not involved in the document.

'Train for Life,' Educators Say; So Costs Rise

Fabrics, Table Settings, Dishwashing Studied.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

From the sixth grade upward in the Chicago public schools increasing emphasis is being placed on economic subjects, shop work for boys, household arts for girls, home economics for both. This is on the theory that our children should be taught to live more effective economic lives than their parents are now living.

If they can save on the meat bill, if they know how to fix carburetors, if they can select clothing and furniture with an idea to values, the whole effect on the economic life of the nation will be well worth while, according to one group of educators. Another, while admitting the need of some such training, finds enormous waste of time here. A three to six months' course would be adequate, it is argued, for the majority of pupils.

In the sixth and seventh grades of the Chicago schools 120 to 180 minutes a week are given to these courses for twenty weeks. The junior high gives from ten to twenty weeks to the study of clothing, foods, child care and the business of the household. The senior high school gives a 40 weeks' course in food preparation, emphasizing household science, and 20 weeks on clothing and millinery, costume designing and home management. The home economics course for boys is 20 weeks and the home course for commercial girls 20 weeks. In other words, six years are spent on work that might be done in a concentrated special course of a few months, and much of which should be learned at home.

The pupils begin with studying breakfast from a health standpoint and go into laboratory work in cooking and serving food. This includes "organization for dishwashing." In clothing they are first taught to develop skill in sewing technique through the making of a simple outfit to be worn while cooking. Then they are led into marketing and taken on shopping expeditions, where brands and types of stores are discussed and the relative merits of cash and carry and telephone orders learned. The sewing classes go up to the making of pajamas, nightgowns or chemises. The breakfast problem is considered further with study of eggs.

Proper luncheons, in material and preparation, come next, with relative value of foods and types of luncheon needed by various people. Serving and etiquette are taught, incidentally, including the setting of a table, the proper use of knife, fork and spoon; method of eating fruits, toast and bread. Toast and bread, it is learned, should be taken from the serving plate with fingers, not fork, broken before spreading with butter, and the butter kept on the plate.

The girls are next led into the mysteries of housewifery and taught how to keep their bedrooms, how the living room should be arranged, with instructions as to colors, and care of dining room, bathroom and kitchen. They are initiated into the elimination of mice and bugs, and how to use labor saving devices.

In the seventh grade there is a quick review of foods used for luncheon and a course in salads and desserts. The eighth grade comes to the preparation of dinners, with a discussion of foods needed to make the diet adequate, what meat substitutes may be used, a review on vegetables, a discussion of beverages, and baking.

Child care comes also in the eighth grade, the girls being required to discuss and report on the behavior of some child that they will observe and care for throughout the course. Diets for children from infancy to school age are worked out, sleep and rest, fresh air and sunshine, cleanliness, clothing and weight studied. They learn how to "tend" children and how to build good habits. Story telling and children's ailments come into this course. The clothing lessons extend to awakening interest in the subject of good taste in dress and personal cleanliness.

Under 'Business of the Household" comes the study of school day expenses of a junior high school girl, clothing expenditures, food expenditures, salary and expenses of a business girl (based on experience of older sisters), a study of how to save through banks, the spending of money in terms of satisfaction derived, and the keeping of household accounts, including budgeting and paying the bills. They must keep track of food expenses for a week, clothing expenses for a year and amount spent during a month on amusements.

They next take up textile study in garments, pattern selection, alteration, fitting, choice of undergarment, remodeling and costs of garments.

The ninth and tenth grade food courses are elaborations of the earlier courses, including the study of weight conditions in the family, caloric value of various foods.

The clothing courses extend to spring and fall millinery, with a further study of textiles, care of clothing, constructive processes of dress making, making and buying hats, spring coats, selection of the fall dress, tailored finishes in dresses, remodeling garments for the family, care of clothing and personal hygiene.

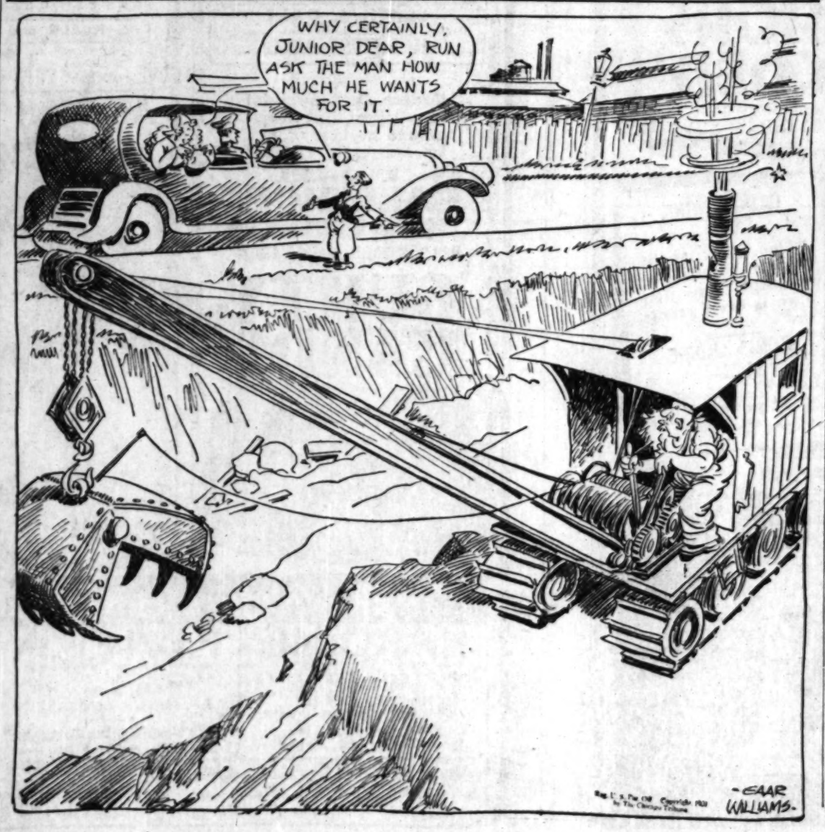
WAY BACK BEFORE THE DEPRESSION



Leslie Thorne, D. L. Pierce Are Married

Autumnal colors predominated in the garden setting of Miss Leslie Thorne's wedding yesterday afternoon to Dewey Lockwood Pierce of New York. The ceremony took place in the gardens of the Winnetka residence of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Hallett W. Thorne. An orchestra hidden on a screened porch played the wedding march as the bridal procession left the house and marched down a green carpet to an altar formed by tall urns of yellow chrysanthemums against a background of green hedges.

The bride wore a gown of delicate flesh pink satin and a flesh colored tulle veil that fell from a high Alencon headdress. A single strand of pearls, pink slippers, and a bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley completed her costume.

Her sister, Mrs. Robert H. Andrews, as matron of honor, wore a blue mousseline de soie gown with a henna hat and slippers and carried bronze chrysanthemums and purple asters. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Hallett W. Thorne, Miss Dorothy Neff of Kenosha, Miss Eloise Requa, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Gertrude Pierce Thomas of California, were gowned in henna mousseline de soie with blue hats and slippers. They held bouquets of purple, blue and bronze flowers.

Joseph A. MacDonald of New York was best man for the groom and the ushers were Hallett Thorne, Robert Andrews, Clarke Miller of Pittsburgh, James Coffey of New York and Chicago, and William Koch and Leonard Lyons of New York.

Swedes of Chicago Plan Field Day for Relief Funds

Funds to care for the needy among their own people will be raised on Sunday from the proceeds of Swedish national day, a field day to be held at Soldiers' field. Members of the committee in charge of the affair expect the stadium to be filled to capacity with Chicagoans of Swedish descent.

In the parade, headed by the Great Lakes naval training station band, will be representatives of 340 Swedish societies, several other bands, 400 adult choral singers, and a children's chorus. The speakers will be Mayor Cermak, Attorney General Carlstrom, and State's Attorney Swanson. Other events will be a football game between Swedish and German champion teams, folk dancing and other athletic events.

Correct Brow Dye Blends Gracefully with Hair Coloring

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you're having your eyebrows colored, as many are doing these days, do be careful about choosing the shade that goes with your hair.

I note on some of the young flaming blonds of platinum persuasion that they have a penchant for trying a thin black line of eyebrow. If the features are not soft, the cheek round and girlish, the result is more than likely to be "hard boiled." If the clothes are loud, in addition, the danger is suggested of being picked up as a bad girl bandit.

Those eyebrows and lashes don't take up much room in the facial area—but how they can talk! Tinting colorless eyebrows with dyes has the advantage of practicality if one goes in for sports, swimming particularly. And mighty good tinting jobs are being done with the henna process, which includes many, many shades.

The hair should be matched up fairly well. Allowance is granted for a slightly darker brown than the brown in the hair, for example. Black haired women whose brows are showing gray hairs so plainly that it is considered advisable or desirable to touch them up, should be careful to have the touching up done lightly. That harsh black line above the eye is peculiarly hardening in effect, particularly if the face is not young and fresh of skin.

After all, the trick of beautifying that eye territory is to get soft, alluring effects, which cannot be got with strong contrasting shades of hair and eyebrow.

FEW SEE CONSTITUTION IN ITS SHRINE AT LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Today is Constitution day—144th anniversary of the promulgating of the document that set up this government when George Washington and his associates of the constitutional convention affixed their names to the four sheet parchment.

But no unusual number of visitors came to gaze today upon that historic document in its gold and marble shrine at the library of congress.

Indeed, the guard said, few among the sightseeing crowds even know the date. Many looked today without even recognizing the day as an anniversary, he said, adding that even some of the savants in the library of congress were rather hazy on the date.

However, William Tyler Page, veteran clerk of the house and historian, reported that the date is being increasingly observed.

Patriotic societies, he said, particularly the Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, are holding programs in observance of the day.

Lawrences Are Home After Year in Europe

BY THALIA

MR. AND MRS. CLARK J. LAWRENCE are back in their Hubbard Woods residence, 960 Sheridan road, having been gone for nearly a year and a half, they and their children, Nancy Lee, who is now quite a young miss of twelve years, and John Lawrence, have been in Europe all that time. The children were in an English school for part of the time, while Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence motored all over England and the continent.

When they landed in this country the first part of August they went to visit Miss Nancy's grandmother, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, at her camp on Upper St. Regis in the Adirondacks, and have only just returned to Chicago in time for the children to take up their studies at the North Shore Country Day school. Mrs. Blaine is remaining at her camp for some time longer and plans to stop in New York for a bit before coming on to Chicago.

Jeanette Watson Is Married at Christ Church, Winnetka.

Christ church in Winnetka was filled yesterday afternoon with the more than two hundred guests who came to see the golden haired, blue eyed Jeanette Watson become the bride of Walter Field McLallen. After the brief service there was a mild traffic jam in the shady lanes of the north shore suburb as the guests motored from the church to the wedding reception at Meadowreach, the residence of the bride's mother and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf.

The receiving line at Meadowreach stood in the drawing room, but for the most part it was an outdoors party, with groups of people clustered around tables in the gardens.

Boy Scouts' Leaders Seek Recruits for War on Depression

Leaders of more than 125 divisions of the central region of the Boy Scouts of America met yesterday at the Congress hotel to discuss how Boy Scout work can be coördinated with the activities of President Hoover's commission and other relief organizations, and geared with the depression.

W. M. Kiplinger of Chicago, director of the region comprising Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin, declared that more intensive scout work, despite a reduced budget, is being planned.

"The tendency with many social organizations is to abandon all activities except those of supplying actual need for food and clothing during a depression," he explained. "We believe that other wants are also essential, and we are devoting all our energies to finding new ways for getting boys whose fathers are unemployed into scouting. Boys will have their gangs, and it is important that we make them the right sort."

It was shown through a comparison made by the statistical department of the organization that crime costs the United States $1,119,000,000 annually [as estimated by the Wickersham committee], or $9.10 per capita, while the annual budget of the Boy Scouts, combating crime through boys' work, is only $6,515,000, or 5 cents per capita.

Twenty-two troops of Boy Scouts of the Catholic Youth organization on the southwest side will compete in athletics and Scout maneuvers at their first annual field day and picnic to be held Sunday at Schutt's grove, Twenty-second street and Des Plaines avenue, in the forest preserves.

STUDENTS DRAW $303,446 BENEFITS AT NORTHWESTERN

A total of $303,446 was passed to Northwestern university students in the form of scholarships, prizes, or loans during the scholastic year 1930-'31, according to Dr. Delton T. Howard, director of personnel. He announced that requests for similar aid were more frequent this year than last and that twice as much money could be used effectively. Lacking an increase in scholarships and loan funds, he added, 200 students on the Evanston campus would have to remain out of college. The number aided last year was 2,383, of whom 636 were women.

100 Children Get New Shoes at Friendless Home

The Chicago Home for the Friendless, 5059 Vincennes avenue, looked like a shoe store yesterday as a hundren customers, aged 1½ to 14 years, tried on new shoes. Every fall since 1866 each pair of feet that has found its way to the haven for orphans and otherwise dependent children, is shod with new shoes at the beginning of the school year.

The shoe fund was established sixty-five years ago by Mrs. Mancel Tilcott, a friend of the home, in memory of her husband's birthday.

The interest of the fund is devoted each year to the purchase of shoes for all inmates of the home.

LABOR CALLS ON STATE, NATION TO RELIEVE JOBLESS

Illinois Federation Asks Dry Repeal, Too.

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Both state and national governments were called on, in motions passed unanimously at the Illinois Federation of Labor convention here today, to take immediate steps to relieve the unemployment situation.

To stimulate employment it was urged that a special session of congress be called for the purpose of appropriating a ten billion dollar "prosperity loan" for immediate start of government construction work on a large scale.

The needed revenue can be raised by taxing incomes in higher brackets, it was argued. The resolution was introduced by a group of Chicago delegates including David McVey, president of the Farmer-Labor party.

Ask Special Legislation.

In Illinois immediate plans for food and shelter of unemployed are needed, a resolution from the Champaign-Urbana Labor federation declared, and the motion for a special session of the legislature to pass appropriate measures to relieve the unemployment situation went through without a dissenting vote. Leaders in city, state and nation were called on to place in effect the five day week with the hope of furnishing more employment, and Gov. Emmerson will be asked to call a conference at the earliest possible moment to initiate the proposition, as the result of the passage of another resolution on this subject, which came from Chicago Pressmen's union delegate.

Another resolution to pass unanimously was one urging modification of the Volstead act. A clause in the original resolution that asked for "legalization of the manufacture of four per cent beer" was stricken out by the committee and its report was accepted so that the action would be in accordance with national federation rulings.

Assail Racketeering.

A resolution attacking "racketeering and shady" unions and proposing a change in the Illinois law so that incorporation charters would be granted only to labor groups that were indorsed by an examining board of five members was called "impractical, unwise and dangerous" by the committee. Its report was upheld by the delegates, but the executive board was ordered to make a study of the situation. The resolution came from the Metal Trades council of Chicago.

The federation voted to work for legislation prohibiting public utilities companies from engaging in retail business for the sale of products other than of their own manufacture, in accepting a resolution on this subject from Champaign-Urbana delegates.

Decatur was chosen for the 1932 convention city, defeating Peoria by a large count. An invitation was extended to go to Chicago in 1933 by delegates from that city.

CONGRESSIONAL REDISTRICTING IS ASSAILED IN SUIT

Belvidere Action Calls It Unconstitutional.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Alleging that citizens in several "inland empire" congressional districts outlined by the state legislature last spring are being deprived of their proper representation in congress an injunction, restraining state officials from certifying the nomonating petitions of congressional candidates, was aked today in Boone county Circuit court of Belvidere. The bill also seeks to enjoin Secretary of State Stratton from accepting petitions of candidates for delegates to national conventions and of presidential electors.

The bill was filed by Frank T. Moran, editor of the Belvidere Republican and Republican leader, and C. E. Casper Capron, chairman of the Boone county board of supervisors, as complainants. Arguments will be heard by Circuit Judge Edward D. Shurtleff on Sept. 28. Appeal to the state and United States Supreme courts is predicted if the Circuit court upholds the redistricting law.

Cite Both Constitutions.

Citing both the Illinois and national constitutional provisions in respect to the mapping of congressional districts, the bill claims that the new congressional reapportionment is unconstitutional because of gross discrepancies between the population of various districts outlined in the congressional map of Illinois.

It cites the 5th, Cook county district, and the 17th, a downstate district, as examples of the inequality of populations. The 5th district has a population of 541,785, according to the 1930 census, while the 17th has only 158,728 inhabitants. Between these extremes lie many other unfairly proportioned districts, the bill declares.

Called Unequal in Population.

The 15th district, of which Boone county is a part, includes nine northwestern Illinois counties, embraces the largest area of any district in the state, and has a population far exceeding the average size of the state's 27 districts.

Asserting that the Illinois constitution provides that "all elections shall be fair and equal," the bill sets forth that the districts created by the legislature's recent act are unequal in population and that the inequality is unreasonable, unfair, and unjust.

AUSTRALIA BANKS AGREE TO FINANCE NATION'S DEFICITS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 17.—In response to a request made at the premiers' conference today the Commonwealth bank and the trading banks of Australia have agreed to finance the commonwealth and the state governments' deficits. They will also provide $14,500,000 for a bounty of 12 cents a bushel on wheat until next season's crop is exported.

The banks have also agreed to provide about $10,335,000 to continue until Dec. 31 for various public works which have already commenced. The banks, however, declined to provide $24,300,000 for new works to relieve unemployment.

Prime Minister James H. Scullin claims that the government has now successfully grappled with its desperate financial situation. It has also reduced its deficits to manageable amounts.

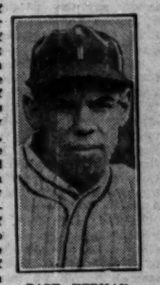
SCORE RUN IN NINTH INNING TO BREAK TIE

Strengthen Hold on Third Place.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

It is now eight in a row for the revived Cubs and a margin of three and one-half games over Brooklyn. All of which makes it fairly certain they will not be crowded out of third place series money. They achieved No. 8, and at the same time strengthened their position in percentage row yesterday by trimming the wings of the Robins, 4 to 3, in a battle which, because of some mishaps in the first half of the ninth, had to be won in the same inning to avoid overtime labor at Wrigley field.



BABE HERMAN.

For eight innings Bob Smith, seeking his fifteenth victory of the season, induced Uncle Robby's men to refrain from any batting heroics. Meanwhile the Cubs' attack had sufficient consistency to give Smith a 3 to 1 lead over Hollis Thurston, the one time Comiskey employé. That's how the score was arranged when the ninth opened, but when the Robins' half closed they had picked up two runs on the strength of some fluky happenings, climaxed by Smith's own failure to make use of a double play ball.

Freshmen Do Well.

Thurston himself invited the Cubs' winning run in the ninth when he nicked Woody English on the leg with a pitched ball. Billy Herman supplied the needed sacrifice. Kiki Cuyler was walked, and the two runners moved up while Thurston was tossing out Lester Bell. Vin Barton also walked, making the fourth man Thurston had dispensed with in this intentional fashion during the afternoon. It proved one pass too many. Danny Taylor considered it a libel on his hitting skill, so he hurriedly banged a single into left and English scampered home with the deciding run.

Smith's winning effort was nobly supported by members of the Cub freshman class. Herman, the kid second baseman, tried to run a race with his illustrious namesake, Babe, but lost out by two singles against a double and two one basers. The Babe's edge, however, was cut down considerably by the fact that after his double in the sixth, he was so busy figuring up his batting average that Hartnett picked him off base. The other freshman who made himself prominent was Barton, who, after wasting a single, furnished two extra base drives which were involved in the scoring of the Cubs' first three runs.

Smith Courts Trouble.

For three innings Smith denied the Robins even one hit, but in the fourth his troubles were so numerous that he actually needed some luck to escape with only one run scoring. The disturbance started with a pass to Frederick, who moved to third on O'Doul's single to right and home on Babe Herman's single to center.

Except for two hits, one by Billy Herman and the other by Barton, there was nothing to prove that the Cubs were in the ball game during the first four innings. But they did a bit better in the fifth and scored once to tie the score. Barton was the ringleader in this move. He opened with a drive into the right field corner and dashed to third while Babe Herman looked for four leaf clovers instead of picking up the ball. Barton scored while Finn, after a one-handed stop, was throwing out D. Taylor.

Herman Starts Rally.

Breaking the 1 to 1 deadlock was originated by Billy Herman in the sixth inning. He led off with a single to center. Cuyler wanted to sacrifice, but instead bunted into a force out at second. Bell's drive hit the right field screen but was held to a single, Cuyler going to third. Barton's double over short scored Cuyler

Grimes Says He's Woodsman; Others Say He's Great Hurler

(This is the third of a series of sketches on the St. Louis Cardinals.)

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—Burleigh Grimes would be our guess for the world series opener were we experting out in the open, all by ourself. But fact is, most folks around the Cardinals these days think a different spot, or spots, will be picked for the old devil man.

The aged spitball wizard drew the honor last year and lost to Lefty Grove, 5 to 2. Since Grove is expected to start again this year they may think he rates different opposition. Grimes tried to shake off his aversion to Grove by starting against Earnshaw in the fifth game of the series, but though Earnshaw allowed only two hits in seven innings, Grove got credit for a 2 to 0 victory over Grimes when Jimmy Foxx socked a homer with Mickey Cochrane on base in the first half of the ninth inning.

Regardless of precedent, however, old Burleigh still seems as good a bet as any to lick Grove if the task involves the necessity of holding the Athletics to two or three runs. The rest of the proposition is up to the Cardinal batsmen, of course.

Factor in Cardinals' Breeze to Pennant.

But whether or not Burleigh Grimes pitches an inning in the world series, his fighting, cunning talent has been one of the largest factors in the breeze with which the Cardinals have marched to success. This year has been another cause of wonderment at the reason Grimes has been permitted to drift about the league. Why, the man has been with four National league teams since 1926.

With 1926 Grimes concluded a nine year term with the Brooklyn Robins. With the Giants in 1927 he won 19 games and lost 8, yet in 1928 he was with Pittsburgh to make a remarkable record of 25 victories to 14 defeats with the brilliant earned run average of 2.99 per game. The next year and his last with Pittsburgh he had a record of 17 wins and 7 defeats, despite the fact he was out many weeks with injuries.

Then followed one of the oddest deals in baseball history—Burleigh Grimes for Percy Lee Jones, Boston being the party of the second part. Grimes was Boston's property from April 9 till June 16, 1930, when he came to St. Louis for Sherdel and Frankhouse. And Burleigh stepped right out and won 16 games for the Cardinals, who won the pennant by a margin of two games over the Chicago Cubs, who, by the way, ever were Burleigh's sweetest meat.

Busy Pitching Since 1913, but He's Woodchopper.

Grimes still claims to be a Wisconsin woodchopper by trade, though we can't understand how he's kept his hand at chopping seeing he has been

BASEBALL FOLLOWERS.

WE of this city who attend the Cubs and White Sox games whenever we have a slack afternoon, and especially those of us inclined to avoid Sunday contests because of the crowds, do not realize the interest in our teams by Chicagoland followers within easy traveling distance and by many not within easy traveling distance. Probably even Cub and White Sox managements do not recognize how much that Chicagoland interest is stimulated and fed by radio broadcasts.

Whenever a controversy arises over club policy, like the release of McCarthy or the suspension of Hack Wilson, it is surprising how many letters are received from out of town fans. These letters, in the main, are from intelligent, well informed partisans who are up to date in their knowledge of what is taking place. They take their baseball seriously, often more seriously than Chicago residents.

The Wake had occasion to attend a social gathering in Michigan City Wednesday. The talk immediately turned to baseball and football, but baseball had far more active followers. We were surprised, even amazed, to learn there was a coterie of Michigan City fans who attended Chicago ball games at least once a week, some of them twice a week. The heavier turnout, of course, was on Sundays.

This is a period of depression, we are told (and we believe it). Now the expense of attending a Chicago ball game from Michigan City is a minimum of $4, including train fare and admission. That does not include luncheon or dinner—which may be avoided by use of certain train schedules—nor any of the almost inevitable extras.

Several chaps, who had been accustomed to go in regular parties, confessed their wives, through listening to radio broadcasts, also had become fans and now wish 40 be included occasionally. What is true of this locality is no doubt true of many other localities.

But still I fight to reach the goal;

The shattered hope, the painful loss,
The outward calling to retreat—
But whilst I live I'll bear the cross.

No edge too sharp that juts the way,
When courage dares with wings to fly

With superstrength of duty born,

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Chicago Bears professional football team opens its campaign for the National league title tonight at Loyola university field against the Cleveland Panthers. The kickoff is scheduled for 8:15.

From ninth place in 1929, the Bears last season jumped to third place under the direction of Coach Ralph Jones and this year the squad, composed principally of the men who compiled a brilliant record in the closing 1930 games, believes it is headed for the title.

That belief is well founded. Green Bay, 1930 champions, and the New York Giants, the second place club, were whipped by the Bears in the closing spurt. And the Bears, with nearly three weeks of double practice sessions as a back ground, are ready to continue at the pace they concluded last fall.

Bear Camp Is Crowded.

Cleveland does not figure to whip the Bears tonight. However, the game may be closely contested, since it is the third game for the Panthers and, of course, the inaugural for the Bears. Cleveland played a practice contest and then last Sunday was defeated by Green Bay.

There is no dearth of material in the Bears' camp. More than 40 men reported. Thirty-four of these still are on the squad, but 12 must be dropped after the third league game.

The Bears possess the fundamentals of a great team. Speed and weight, prime essentials, are present. Brilliant open field runners, line plungers, good kickers, and passers are there in such numbers as almost to embarrass the coach. Added to the natural defensive ability these veterans have an offense which combines power and deception and the team stacks up as the best in years.

Grange Is in Condition.

Red Grange is in better condition than at any time during his professional career. From his position at left half Red is expected to get away on running plays, while he also will be depended upon for a major portion of the forward passing. Bronko Nagurski, the outstanding blocking full back of the league, will account for many of Red's gains, while on smashes into the line he is one of the hardest drivers.

Joe Lintzenich, starting his second professional season, will have the kicking assignment as long as he is in the game. Bill Senn, Dick Nesbitt, and Jess Hibbs, a newly recruited tackle, also are dependable kickers.

The opening lineup will have only one new player, Latham Flanagan, at right end. Flanagan comes from Carnegie Tech, and this is his first pro competition. Garland Grange, right end, will not be able to play tonight, because of a shoulder injury.

Workman with Panthers.

In addition to advantage in number of games played, Cleveland is expected to demonstrate a passing attack which will keep the Bears' backs on the alert. Hoge Workman, former Ohio State star, who is not listed in the starting eleven, is an excellent passer.

The results of tonight's game will indicate what may be expected of the Chicagoans when they meet the Packers at Green Bay Sept. 27. Green Bay has strengthened its team since last season and is confident it will win the championship for the third consecutive time.

McGraw Fines Hogan $200, Benches Him for Ten Days

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Frank Hogan, catcher of the New York Giants, was suspended for ten days and fined $200 by Manager John J. McGraw here today when the team arrived for a series with the Cardinals. Hogan created a disturbance on the train en route to St. Louis last night.

Illinois Sophomores Given Lessons in Pass Defense

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—New plays were fixed in the minds of University of Illinois football candidates today as the sophomore squad was sent through its pair of two hour drills.

Five teams were formed in the morning practice, each of them devoting time to signal rehearsal. This was followed by dummy scrimmage, in which Coach Zuppke tutored the aerial defensive work of a team which included Gil Berry in the back field. Berry's running mates were sophomores. Herman Walser served as quarter back, with 200 pound Dave Cook at one half and Al Hall of Champaign as the full back.

Four other sophomores also had places on this team. Ray Horn, listed on the preliminary roster as a tackle, was placed at center. Monroe Glick worked at guard, Sam Gorenstein occupied a tackle berth, and Scott Marriner was at end. Gordon Bailey took the other end position, with Stan Jensen and Earl Jackson completing the line.

KIPKE CUTS DRILL

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Coach Harry Kipke called a halt today on the heavy routine for the first time since his Michigan squad has been practicing. Tackles, guards, and centers engaged in the only strenuous work, a blocking drill.

Tom Cooke, Chicago center, who is ill, was not in uniform. He is expected back tomorrow, however. The remaining three score men are apparently in good physical shape, except for the usual muscular soreness attending opening drills, trainers report.

Jack Blott and Franklin Cappon, line coaches, used Omer Lajeunesse and Stan Hozer, veterans, at the guard posts, indicating that they will be first in line for duty. L. E. McCrath and John Kowalik, first year men, are in the thick of the fight, however, and it is possible one of them will replace either of the veterans.

For a short time Coach Kipke divided his back field candidates into groups of four for elementary drill on running plays. Harry Newman, at quarter back; Willie Heston and Charles Debaker, halves, and Capt. Roy Hud-

Grove to Seek 30th Victory in Sox Game

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Lefty Grove will attempt to win his 30th victory of the season tomorrow in one game of a double header between the Athletics and Chicago White Sox. The game scheduled for today was called off because of threatening weather.

Grove, if he succeeds in turning back the Sox, will become the first major league pitcher to reach the 30 mark since Jim Bagby of Cleveland accomplished the feat in 1920. Chicago is one of the three teams which has beaten Grove this season.

The Sox, who dropped into the Philadelphia cellar yesterday when they lost to Boston, may decide to start Caraway and Boerler in tomorrow's battles.

Perry, Indianapolis Owner, Makes Bid for N.Y. Giants

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—It developed here tonight that Thomas A. Perry, multi-millionaire banker and owner of the Indianapolis American association baseball club, is interested in the possible purchase of the New York National league club. Mr. Perry has arranged for a conference with John J. McGraw, part owner and manager of the Giants, to be held in Chicago next week, at which time negotiations may be started on.

YOUNG TRAINER WARD SENDS OUT ANOTHER WINNER

Flying Cherokee Comes Home at Lincoln Fields.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Sherrill Ward, the youngest trainer on the American turf—the kid has just turned 20—saddled the winner of the most interesting race on the Lincoln Fields program yesterday.

The horse he slapped the saddle on was Flying Cherokee, a son of Cherokee-Flying Ida, a mud running fellow from the stable over which Fred Burton, the Chicago coal baron, presides as sort of a grand potentate.

It was the fourth time Ward had saddled a winner at Lincoln Fields. Previously he had sent Dunmore, Silver Lake, and Dodgson out to win. And when Flying Cherokee came driving home like a stake horse to beat Otto W. Lehman's Stop Gap by two lengths with Roy, another noted mud runner, finishing third, the crowd gave the youthful Mr. Ward and his horse quite an ovation.

He's Young, but Good.

Ward surely has made a lot of the older trainers at Lincoln Fields appear ineffective since he brought his horses on from Saratoga. The old timers say the kid has the makings of a good horse man, but it looks as if the lad can be called a good trainer already.

He is a son of John Ward, one of the best horsemen the west has ever known. His early tutelage was thorough, because his dad and instructor knew his stuff and knew how to teach. The boy fell heir to the Burton horses when his dad decided that he would rather fish and hunt than develop horses after he had piled up plenty to keep the wolf from the door.

In the early part of the Lincoln Fields feature Flying Cherokee didn't show much speed. He raced along in fourth place, but on the back stretch moved up into second place behind Stop Gap. Then on the turn into the stretch Flying Cherokee ran into the lead and was drawing away at the end.

Didn't Have to Run Fast.

Over the muddy track he ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:52, very slow time, but Flying Cherokee didn't have to run any faster. He had the opposition completely stopped. In the mutuels he paid $7.58 to win, $4.84 to place, and $4.54 to show. Stop Gap paid $11.34 to place and Roy was at $4.76 to show. The favorite Griffin was nowhere, but knew he had been on quite a journey, for Jockey Charley Allen applied the leather all the way around.

In the Sun Flower purse Kincsen was a fairly handy winner over Sister Mary and Seguro was third.

GARDEN TO BUILD OUTDOOR ARENA IN JERSEY CITY

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Madison Square Garden corporation will build an outdoor arena, exclusively for boxing, in Jersey City for next season if plans outlined today by President William F. Carey materialize. The project, long under consideration and revived from year to year since it was first proposed by the late Tex Rickard, has reached the stage where tentative plans for the plant have been adopted.

President Carey announced it is proposed to build an arena somewhat similar to the Garden's plant in Miami but with greater capacity. The proposed Jersey City arena will have a permanent capacity of 70,000, and, it is estimated, will cost about $250,000. Several sites are under consideration, but a site in the Marion section of Jersey City, easily accessible to New York.

HOPPE WINS 3 CUSHION BLOCK; LOSES BALK LINE

Willie Hoppe played brilliantly to win at three cushions, but he lost by 18 points at 18.2 balk line in the fifth block of his exhibition with Welker Cochran at Kleckhefer's Recreation rooms yesterday afternoon.

Hoppe won at three cushions, 25 to 7, in 17 innings, having two runs of 6 and another of 5 against Cochran's run of 2. Cochran, aided by a run of 191 in the fourth inning, won at 18.2 balk line, 200 to 182, in five innings. The score by innings follows: Cochran—4, 2, 2, 191, 1—200; Hoppe—12, 161, 5, 4—182.

Hoppe has won three of the five blocks at three cushions, making 122 to Cochran's 102 in 119 innings. Cochran leads in balkline with three victories to two, but Hoppe is in front in total points by the count of 892 to 786. Hoppe has made his total in 16 innings for a grand average of 56, which Cochran's grand average is 41 for 19 innings.

Schaaf Arrives Today to Train for Griffith Bout

Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight, will arrive in Chicago today and by tomorrow will have settled himself at Brown's Randolph street gymnasium to finish training for his ten round boxing bout with Tuffy Griffith at the Stadium next Wednesday.

Schaaf, who has become famous almost over night as one of the hardest punchers among the heavyweights, is only one of a long list of sluggers on the Stadium's card. Every bout has at least one contestant who is noted for his ability to knock the other fellow down, if not out.

Faireno Wins Nursery with Pompeius 2d

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—The Chatterton colt Faireno, which raced so well under William Woodward's Belair Stud colors at Saratoga, accounted for the 62d running of the Nursery handicap at Belmont Park today for the chairman of the stewards of the Jockey club. Faireno's victory was a surprise, for he was 5 to 1, and won by two lengths from W. R. Coe's Pompeius, which went to the post a 9 to 5 choice of seven.

Faireno has now won five of 14 starts, and has finished in the money on four other occasions, proving himself a very useful campaigner, although started in humble company at Jamaica last spring.

Tony Pascuma was the winning rider today and got the colt home at the end of six furlongs in 1:11 1-5. Pompeius finished a half length before Cambal, which just got up third by a head from The Bull, the bad mannered Mad Hatter colt which has held up the start of most races in which he has been a starter. Largely due to his misbehavior the start of the Nursery was held up for more than five minutes, but the break was a good one.

Joseph E. Widener, president of the Westchester Racing association, sent out his maiden jumper, Drapeau, in the Hillsdale steeplechase, which saw seven go to the post, and Drapeau came back a decisive winner. He led practically from start to finish and had the speed and courage after the last jump had been cleared to draw off from as good a horse as Thomas Hitchcock's Creek.

Terry Takes Close Decision Over Fields

Terry, broad, powerful and aggressive, slammed Fields all over the ring for two rounds, opening a cut over the former titleholder's left eye and shaking him several times with left hooks and straight rights to the jaw.

Fields managed to stave off Terry in the third round, but Terry came on again to hammer Fields through the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh.

With a decisive defeat just ahead, Fields rallied, sweeping in close to rip Terry's head with inside lefts and rights, to outbox and outpoint his youthful foeman through the next three rounds. Terry rallied in the tenth, however, caught the former titleholder in a corner and had him wobbly and dizzy at the final bell.

20 NAMED FOR $5,000 JUVENILE RACE TOMORROW

Nearly twenty of the best two year olds in the west will go to he post in the $5,000 added Dearborn handicap, which is to feature the Lincoln Fields racing program tomorrow. The race is at seven furlongs.

The field will include Kakapo, Marse Robert, Monks First, Porter's Dream, Anita Ormont, Cee Tee, Parfait, Dis Dat, Blackstrap, Oh Dave, Prince Hotspur, Princess Camelia, Oscillation, Sharp Thoughts, Depression, Cold Check, On Sir, Liberty Limited, and Unincumbered.

With Hygro and Burning Blaze both in Maryland, there is every indication that Liberty Limited, which has finished third in three of the richest two year old stakes run in Chicago this season, will rule as the favorite.

REXINGER LOSES TO BRANDT IN CITY NET MEET

Scott Rexinger, western conference tennis champion, was the victim of the major upset in the city championship tournament yesterday at the Chicago Town and Tennis club. He was eliminated by Gordon Brandt, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Another surprise came when Leo Lejeck succumbed so easily to the volleys of Jay Cohn of California. The scores were 6-4, 6-1. The day also was a loss for Charlie Lejeck, who was defeated by Robert Clark, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

South Section Catholic Preps Out for Title

[This is the first of two articles on football prospects in the Chicago Catholic High School league.]

For three years the winner of the south section championship has been defeated by the north section representative in the final game for the Catholic High School league title. But it may be a different story this season.

Mount Carmel brought the south section its last football championship in 1927. Then for two years, 1928 and 1929, De La Salle won the division title, went into the finals and failed, losing to De Paul both seasons.

Last year St. Rita met Loyola, the north division victor, and after four quarters of thrilling play Loyola hung up its tenth victory of the season, 7 to 6.

Confident that it will make a stronger bid for the title this season, St. Rita is ready to start another campaign and eventually meet the north section champion, but first it must dispose of De La Salle, Mount Carmel, St. Ignatius, Leo and Joliet, the other members of the south division.

Three Veteran Backs.

In St. Rita's back field will be three members of last year's sectional championship team. They are Joe Leblanc, half back; Willie Long, quarter back, and John Rangbauer, full back. One more letter man returned. He is George Fox, tackle, who has been chosen captain of this season's team.

The Rev. William Donovan, who is starting his second season as coach at St. Rita, has some promising players among the line candidates. They include Joe Brand, center; William Badke and Charles Becker, tackles; Jim Connerty and Red Sima, guards, and George Cones, end.

"St. Rita will have a good team this year," said Father Donovan. "Of course, the line will be practically new, but it will be one of the strongest in the section."

At De La Salle Coach Norman Barry is building his 11th team around four letter men. Three of them will play in the back field. They are Capt. Joseph Cassidy, full back; William Hayes, left half back, and Robert Hoffman, quarter back. Joseph Flynn, another veteran, will play guard.

Ofstie Coaches Mount Carmel.

The candidates for line positions include John Butler, Thomas Kilcoyne, and Arthur Dillon, a 200 pound center. Other new players are Thomas Ganey, Vincent Blanz, John Garvey, and Joseph Kamalick.

It will be Coach Ofstie's first year at Mount Carmel. Ofstie, who coached at Centre college, Danville, Ky., and Ripon college, Ripon, Wis., is succeeding Joe Prelli, former Notre Dame player, who died several months ago. Three letter men reported to Coach Ofstie.

Nowecki was the only back field veteran to return. The others are Capt. Don Kelly, tackle, and Carney, guard. New players who probably will be on the regular squad this season are Bud Conya, quarter back; Fogel, center; McKernan, full back, and Durkin, end.

Three lettermen were among the 40 candidates at St. Ignatius. They were Duffy, half back; Kuves, tackle, and Welters, guard. Another member of last year's team, Bowman, returned, but was injured in the first practice session and will be out of the lineup for the season.

Leo Squad Experienced.

The back field candidates include O'Brien, Brosmen, Meyers, Leavitt, Hannigan and Higgins. Trying for line positions on the squad are Lamon, O'Neil, Patek, Vaccaira, Cullen, and Murphy.

"With eight veterans, four of whom are back field men, prospects at St. Leo this season are fair," said Coach Al [Whitey] Cronin, who is beginning his second season. "Both ends of the line also returned."

Furlong, Murphy, and St. German are the veteran back field men who reported to Coach John Carroll at Joliet. On the Joliet line will be Capt. Welbes, ans 70 Yards Through Varsity Reserves.

RENTNER PASSES TO 3 SCORES IN N. U. SCRIMMAGE

Among other things this first scrim- age disclosed Pug Rentner has lost none of his forward pass mastery as a result of the injury he suffered last fall. Rentner threw a dozen passes, most of them ranging from 40 to 60 yards. His accurate passing scored two touchdowns with Carl Hall, Al Moore and Will Lewis on the receiv- ing end. Rentner also ran 70 yards for another touchdown.

Russell Misses Scrimmage.

Hanley selected a first string lineup for the scrimmage which, with one or two exceptions, probably will com- prise Northwestern's starting lineup this fall. Reb Russell, veteran full back, was absent from practice and his place was taken by Ken Meenan, 190 pound sophomore from Oak Park. He established his first varsity appearance by gaining 40 yards for a touchdown. The remainder of the lineup con- sisted of Rentner and Moore, half backs; Lewis, quarter back; Fencl and Kiley, ends; Marvel and J. Riley, tackles; Evans and Dilley, guards, and Rolfs, center.

Against this team Hanley sent a combination composed of players next in line for varsity jobs. They were Bernstein and Sullivan, half backs; Olson, full back; Potter, quarter back; Steele and Kostbade, ends; Englebret- sen and W. Riley, tackles; Crizevsky and La Rocque, guards, and Froberg, center.

Freshman Game Tomorrow.

Hanley expressed satisfaction over the workout, although loose ball handling on occasions brought marked criticism. The regulars' defensive work was highly commendable. The second team failed to gain a first down. Late in the scrimmage Roy Augustine, sophomore half back, inter- cepted a pass and ran 40 yards for a touchdown.

Another drill on fundamentals will be held today in preparation for to- morrow's game with the freshmen. The latter have been working all week on Nebraska plays and will provide the varsity with its first glimpse of the Cornhuskers' offensive. Only a few of practice passes will be ad- mitted to the game.

Buzzell Leads Maroon Backs in Scrimmage

Coach Stagg yesterday put the Uni- through a scrimmage, with four teams varsity of Chicago football candidates on the field. Interest was centered on the showing of the sophomore backs, but Charlie Buzzell, who was more or less of a regular last season, took the play away from the newcomers.

Buzzell was a constant threat last year without any great assistance, and made the longest runs of the sea- son. He picked right up yesterday where he left off last year and cut through the first string line and the sophomore backs for several gains.

Stagg Shows Speed.

Try Ends as Tackles.

The line put together the first day of practice still works as a unit, with Peterson at center; Hamberg and Berelin, guards; Cassels and Spear- ler, tackles, and Wien and Bellstrom, ends.

In the morning workout the backs were given a trial at forward passing, with Page, Zimmer, and Stagg look- ing the best. Zimmer has the longest range. Page also is effective, while Stagg has flattened out his longer passes and is getting the ball out to the ends more quickly.

BADGERS GET FOUR PLAYS

Madison, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special.] —Coach Thistlethwaite reversed the order at Wisconsin football practice to- day by spending the morning session on offense and the afternoon on fund- amentals.

The men were given four running plays which, with the addition of a forward pass or two, is probably all they will use until they meet Alabama Polytechnic here in the second game on Oct. 10. Details were first worked out against a battery of block- ing dummies. Then the plays were speeded up in signal drill.

A set of reserve backs worked be- hind Krueger, center; Kabat and Bankhead, guards; Capt. Smith and Gilbert, tackles, and Catlin and Thurner, ends.

ST. IGNATIUS TO MEET ST. PHILIP ELEVEN TONIGHT

St. Philip, which finished in second place in the 1930 north section race of the Chicago Catholic High School football league, tonight will open its season, meeting St. Ignatius of the south section at Mills stadium, Kil- patrick avenue and Lake street.

Another practice game today will bring together Marshall, contender for the west section championship of the Chicago Public High School Football league, and Hyde Park of the central section at White City this afternoon.

O'HAUGHNESSY TO PITCH.

Jim O'Haughnessy, former White Sox hurler, will be on the mound for the Hyde Park Boosters against Buck Weaver's Cleaners at Portage Park tomorrow afternoon.

GOPHERS SCRIMMAGE

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 17.—[Special.]—As Coach Crisler gave Minne- sota's first three varsity squads a stiff scrimmage with the reserves, he received reports from attending phy- sicians that Quentin Burdick, star blocking half back, may not have to undergo an operation for appendicitis after all. In the scrimmage, Crisler replaced Marshall Wells at tackle with Kenneth Gay and moved Roy Oen, a sophomore, to the first team's center position in place of Lloyd Stein, two year letter man. Lloyd Hribar, a sophomore full back, also had his first chance to carry the ball and outshone Jack Manders, who had been hailed as a regular.

ANDERSON SEEKS BLOCKER

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 17.—[Spe- cial.]—While the quarter back contest between Charlie Jaskwhich and Em- mett Murphy went on today with Murphy on top, at least momentarily, Notre Dame's 115 football candidates underwent a rigorous drill on funda- mentals.

Murphy lined up with the first string, as he did Tuesday, with Schwartz, Lukats, and Sheeketski. Jaskwhich, who teamed with the reg- ulars yesterday, was on defense with Koken, Banas, and Cronin. Coach Hearily Anderson gave his personal attention to blocking practice, in which search for a right half to re- place Marty Brill was the chief factor. The tackles and guard drilled under John Frederick, line coach, in another blocking session.

Two hundred freshmen candidates reported today to Coaches Art Parisien and Clarence Kaplan. They will be augmented by another 100 tomorrow who were busy with classes this after- noon.

OHIO NEEDS LINEMEN

Columbus, O., Sept. 17.—[Special.] —Only the tackles are sure of their places on the Ohio State football team. But according to the Buckeye officials, these should compare favor- ably with any in the conference.

Heat again prevented a very strenuous workout today. The tem- perature of 92 broke all previous rec- ords for Sept 17 in the history of the weather bureau records. Kicking and passing took up most of the day with coaches trying to find some man to replace Fesler and Horn. Fisher, a sophomore, looks like the best of the kickers. A light scrimmage probably will be held tomorrow.

KIZER DRILLS BACKS

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 17.—It began to look today as though Purdue would again present a two back field sys- tem similar to the combinations of last season, which set new ground gaining marks.

Coach Noble Kizer for the second straight day worked two different back field combinations during an ex- tended dummy scrimmage session in which perfection of timing and details of plays were emphasized.

The other combination was built around Roy Horstman, veteran junior full back, with three sophomores flank- ing him. Fred Hecker and Emerson Carter worked at half back and Paul Pardonner at quarter back.

NO IOWA SCRIMMAGE

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 17.—[Special.] —Scrimmage promised for today was withheld from University of Iowa football candidates. Coach Burt Ing- wersen gave individual instruction to linemen and kicking practice to backs instead. Punters showed improvement with Kriz, Hickman, and Schmidt averaging about 60 yards.

Capt. Oliver Sansen took only a slight workout because of a strained muscle. Harold Swansey, sophomore end candidate, also was out of the lineup with an injured knee. The first team in the signal practice today was:

Merten and Story, ends; Dee and Rogers, tackles; Hantelmann and Delly, guards; Mammussen, center; Graham, quarter back; Hickman and Kriz, half backs; Sansen, full back.

Pasadena, Cal., Sept. 17.—Charles Paddock, noted sprinter, has become a father. A son was born to his wife, Neva, at a hospital here last night. Mr. and Mrs. Paddock were married last December.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

The first upset of the football sea- son already has occurred.

LEROY ANDREW.

Mr. Andrew realizes that he may be ousted from the profes- sional football coaches' union for violating a long standing rule which requires gridiron leaders to stress their weak- nesses rather than their strength. But in justice to his public he feels he must tell the truth; even at the risk of losing his job if his team fails to make good.

"I have so many great players I don't know where to put them," he remarked the other day after watch- ing his squad of 40 work out at Mills stadium. "More college stars have applied for positions on the profes- sional teams this fall than ever be- fore."

Andrew is of the opinion that some of the outstanding players this season will be from small schools where they received little publicity. He cited an interesting incident to prove his point.

"We were gathering information a few days ago," he said, "to be used in the publication of the Cardinals' roster. We came to one of the most promising newcomers on the squad and asked him for some data on his school.

"O, I don't want to tell you the name of my school," the boy replied.

"Why not?" Andrew inquired. "Everything is above board in this game and we must have the facts unless there is some valid reason for withholding them."

The young man balked at giving the requested information on his alma mater until he was convinced Andrew meant business.

"The reason I don't want the name of my school to go on the roster," he explained, "is because it is such a little place that the rest of the fel- lows will laugh about it and wonder how I learned to play football."

Andrew, who coached Benny Fried- man in all of the Michigan star's professional games, looks forward to the best year of the National profes- sional league has enjoyed. While he doesn't claim that the Cardinals are going to steamroller every club in their path, he gives them an even chance with the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Bears, and Portsmouth to win the championship. All of these clubs have good material and have capable lead- ers directing their play. Ralph Jones is again in charge of the Bears, Curley Lambeau is coaching the Pack- ers, and Potsy Clark is looking after Portsmouth.

While mentioning the Bears this is a good place to make known that Andrew agrees with Coach Zuppke of Illinois that Red Grange is quite a football player.

"He is the best defensive back field man in pro football," Andrew said. "He is one of the most effective tacklers I have seen and is remark- ably alert against forward passes. He may not be as fast as he was in college, on account of added weight, but he still is plenty dangerous on offense, especially inside the 20 yard line.

The Golden Gloves tournament is five months away, but there already is evidence of increased interest in the 1932 bouts. Within the last two weeks this department has had in- quiries about the meet from the Dutch West Indies; Halifax, N. S.; Mexico City; Corpus Christi, Tex.; Nashville, Tenn.; Louisville, Ky.; Frankfort, Ky., and at least 20 cities in the central states.

Thomas J. Hickey, president of the American Association, submits the fol- lowing suggestion to owners of Na- tional league clubs:

"The American Association clubs were the first ones to number their players. It has been in force now five years, and we like it. I am sure if the Cubs will do likewise their patrons will be highly pleased.

"Take, during batting practice, when twenty-five or more players come up to take their turn, if they are num- bered the patrons sit there with a scorecard and know every player and become acquainted with them much faster.

"When players are substituted it is a small percentage of the patrons who hear the announcement, but if the players are numbered when changes are made every one knows who the player is. I hope the National league follows the American league in num- bering their players."

Grimes Chops Wood, but Is Pitcher, Too

Of course, he may chop a little win- ters up at his home at Owen, Wis. [he says he does a lot of chopping, but his snapshots show him just hunting and fishing], but somehow you get the idea from his talk that he's al- ways been more interested in spitballs than in forestry. But maybe he is a lumberjack after all. No one but a woodsman could be as negligent about his shaving as Burleigh is.

Grimes is not concerned about whether he pitches the opener or not.

"I'm ready to pitch the first, sec- ond, third or fourth game, or any two of them, if Manager Street wants me to," says Burleigh. "I have no alibis for my two world series defeats last year, but there was nothing in either game that has lessened my wanting to get back at 'em again this year. And I'm hoping that Jimmy Foxx, who was hurt the other day, gets well before the series. He's the guy that broke up that fifth game with a homer and I want to show him I haven't forgot that pitchers aren't supposed to pitch high to him."

Depends on Spitter in An Emergency.

Grimes, you know, is one of the four surviving spitballers in the major leagues. But, unlike the others, Mitchell, Quinn and Faber, he does not like to use the privileged technique unless pressed to do so. However, when the going gets too tough, in comes the spitter and you'll never get Grimes to admit he doesn't favor it.

Burleigh has had five major league seasons in which he has won 20 or more games and two others in which he has won 19. Since 1917 he has fallen below the .500 mark only three times, and on two of those occasions he missed a fifty-fifty break by only one game.

Here are Grimes' biggest years:

	Won.	Lost.		Won.	Lost.
1919	19	9	1923	21	18
1920	23	11	1924	22	13
1921	22	13	1928	25	14

His highest percentage years were 1927 and 1929 when he won 19 while losing 8 for the Giants and won 17 while losing 7 for the Pirates.

Towering End Seeks Place on De Paul Eleven

De Paul university football fans will see a young giant in action this season. Vernon Moist, who is des- tined for an alternate job at one of the ends, is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs more than 200 pounds. It is his first season on the varsity squad.

Several more offensive plays were worked out yesterday under direction of Coaches Anderson and Connors. The opening game will be played at Detroit university next Tuesday.

Athletic Director Kelly, who is as- sisting the coaches, devoted his efforts to the back field, where Ernie Butcher, Matt Steffen, and Art McGivern ap- pear to be performing with all the effectiveness of last season.

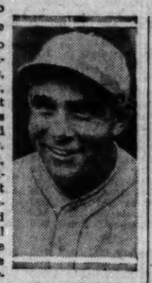
Bing's Just a Guy Named Miller Who Plays Baseball

[This is the fifth of a series of articles about the Philadelphia Athletics.]

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 17.—The party under discussion is the sort of fellow who goes to lodge meetings, goes to war, pays his un- avoidable taxes, thinks right, doesn't start quarrels, works at his job, and saves his money. He is intelligent, but not intellect- ual; efficient, but no star; a news- paper reader and conforms in all respects to the pattern of the Average Amer- ican Citizen.



BING MILLER.

In the baseball business, where it is ever his aim to yield a dollar's worth of work for a dollar of pay, Salva- tion Dan Howley once took to calling him Booker T. Miller in reference to his dark complexion, but beyond that I have never heard anything even mild- ly amusing about him. Well, there are clowns enough, at that.

He Even Tried to Give Ruth a Home Run Battle.

His right name is Edmund John Miller and he is distinguished from perhaps thirty other Millers who have played inconspicuously in the major leagues by the nickname Bing. This was conferred on him back in 1922 by some Philadelphia baseball writer when he bobbed up for a trial in one of Connie Mack's outfield combina- tions and somehow grooved his swing so as to bounce the new hysterical ball over a short wall in the Athletics' home park. That season he started out as though to give Babe Ruth an argument, but the Babe said, "Why, hell's bells, I could hit home runs over that wall with a 16 pound shot."

Bing hit about twenty home runs that season, most of them on the home lot early in the season.

He began as a pitcher in Clinton, Ia., in 1914 at the age of 20, but after a while it occurred to him that the pitchers worked hardest and lasted least longest of all the players in the game of ball. The outfielders, on the contrary, had the least to do and therefore, presumably, a change of scene would add years to his career.

So he was an outfielder by trade when the Tigers invited him up to Detroit to stand inspection in 1917. He was much cheered about this and planning to accept when the United States entered the war and a band went marching by. So he soldiered in France with the 88th division and didn't reach the major leagues again until 1921, when the Senators gave him a season's work. He wasn't hit- ting very well that year, however, and when the magnates fell to trading ball players he was thrown into a deal like a bridle in a horse trade.

Goes to St. Louis for One Pitcher, but He Comes Back.

Then, the next spring, he began to hit those mashie home runs of his, and Connie Mack began to like his work and his behavior. He hit .336 that season, and in a spell of four years with the Athletics his lowest score was .299, but in 1926 Connie wanted a pitcher very badly, so he let Miller go to St. Louis in order to get Howard Ehmke.

The trade was not for keeps, how- ever, because Connie Mack was fond of Bing all the time and only let him go to add strength to a department where strength was needed more. And in 1928, when he had some pitching to spare, he brought Miller back from St. Louis in exchange for Sam Gray.

This was the year that Connie was paying Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker a lot more money than they were worth, but Miller went out there on younger legs and soon took over complete charge of a full time job, which he has been holding ever since, save a few vacations for aches and sprains.

So he was fifteen years a ball player, barring his army service, before he came in for a world series check in 1929. Now he is about to collect his third one. So, after all, he has had more luck in the long run than he dared to hope for at times. At the age of 37, with some young fellows beginning to nudge him around in the competition for that job in the outfield, Bing Miller, of course, realizes that his problem is not to get up in his trade, but to stay up a little longer.

A satisfactory man with a satisfac- tory career, Bing Miller is regarded as a credit to his home community back in Vinton, Ia. And so he is.

TIMID SHORTS START A NEAT CHICAGO RALLY

Welcome Upturn Puts an End to Selling.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Buying by timid short traders started a neat little rally in the final minutes of trading yesterday on the Chicago exchange. The advance took the street quite by surprise, inasmuch as the market had acted in an indecisive manner earlier in the day, giving little or no indication of the impending upturn.

News of the day was undeniably bearish, but no more so than it has been recently. It was apparent that the cause of the rally came from within the market. Early in the day stocks showed an easy trend followed by a slight advance shortly before noon. After the turn trading slowed up and the tape moved slowly for an hour or more until the final buying movement.

Close Moderately Higher.

Most classes of stocks participated in the late rally. The Insull stocks, which earlier had given evidence of good support, benefited by the buying and all closed moderately higher. Middle West Utilities closed at its best price of the day at 12¼, representing a net improvement of slightly more than a point. About 40,000 shares turned over during the day. Insull Utility moved above 16 and closed with a gain of around a point.

Performance of the utilities was typical of the general run of stock. Among the issues closing with creditable gains included United States Radio and Hall Printing. The latter firm yesterday announced that it has completed the consolidation of the rotogravure operations of its two eastern subsidiaries.

No trading appeared in Sangamon Electric company stock as the company reported the declaration of the regular quarterly dividends on the common and preferred shares. The disbursement on the common stock was 25 cents a share.

Firm Earns '31 Dividends.

Robert C. Lanphier, president of the company, stated that total dividend requirements for 1931 on both the preferred and comm n stock were earned in the first eight months of the year. Business of the company continues at a satisfactory rate, he added.

Directors of the Chicago Flexible Shaft company declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents on the capital stock, placing the issue on a 60 cents annual basis, as compared with 90 cents formerly.

The Cities Service August earnings report found slight reflection on the market. The stock closed unchanged. While the earnings statement made an unfavorable comparison with a year ago it showed a gain in net revenues for the second consecutive month.

WORLD CRISIS REFLECTED IN U.S. TRADE DATA

Exports for August Lowest Since '14.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The successive crises in European countries, added to financial and political disturbances in South America, have affected the foreign trade adversely. In fact, a disjointed condition in all world trade is reflected in data made public yesterday by our commerce department.

American exports in August fell to the lowest level since September, 1914, and imports were the smallest since September, 1916. Moreover, our international trade last month resulted in an adverse balance for the first time since May, 1929, although this was only $1,000,000. The fact that we bought more than we sold was attributed to the inability of foreign countries to finance their trade.

August exports totaled $165,000,000, compared with $183,000,000 in July and $288,118,000 in August, 1930. The nearest comparable figure was $156,... in September, 1914. Imports totaled $166,000,000, compared with $175,808,000 in July and $218,359,000 in August, 1930. The nearest figure to the current one was $164,000,000 in September, 1916.

August Exports Off 37 Per Cent.

For the eight months ending with August exports dropped from $2,641,... to $1,661,785,000, or 37 per cent. Imports in the eight months were $1,447,632,000, or 32.5 per cent below the $2,174,823,000 imported in the same period of 1930.

August gold exports dropped to ... and imports increased from ... to $57,559,000. Eight months' gold exports declined from ... to $1,837,000, and imports increased from $273,802,000 to $317,... August silver exports were ..., against $4,544,000 a year ago. Imports declined from $3,492,000 to ...

Brokers' Loans Drop.

The slump in the stock markets in the last week brought speculative credit requirements to a new low ebb. The federal reserve board's weekly report on brokers' loans, issued yesterday, showed a drop of $54,000,000, which brought the total down to ..., a new low mark since the compilation of figures was started in 1926. Moreover, the current total shows a decline of $1,951,000,000 from a year ago.

All classes of lenders have reduced their loans to brokers. The New York banks lowered their own loans by ..., the interior banks with... $12,000,000 and nonbanking lenders took down $6,000,000.

Hope of Aiding Business.

Although the weekly report of the federal reserve system largely reflects the government's financial operations this month, it also evidenced a continuance of the reserve board's policy in maintaining cheap money rates in the hope of fostering business. The member banks increased their borrowings at the reserve banks by $2,762,..., bringing the total to $262,994,000. But considerably more credit was placed in the open market by the action of the reserve banks in buying ... of bankers' acceptances, while at the same time they added to their holdings of government securities by $14,393,000.

Total deposits at the reserve banks jumped $91,816,000, but note circulation receded $4,426,000. Gold and total reserves increased $15,693,000 and ..., respectively, but, largely because of the increase in deposits, the ratio of reserves to liabilities edged to 73.4 per cent, compared with 73.5 per cent last week.

No Change in Rate.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 1½ per cent rediscount rate. Its statement showed a decline of $2,298,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $46,675,... However, the reserve bank bought $24,467,000 of bankers' acceptances and $14,800,000 of government securities. Deposits expanded $124,..., Reserves increased $57,063,..., but the reserve ratio fell to 79.6 per cent, compared with 81.9 per cent a week ago.

The Chicago reserve bank reported an increase of $2,275,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at ..., but this was partly offset by the reserve bank selling $1,347,000 of bankers' acceptances. Deposits expanded $1,978,000. Reserves increased ..., but the reserve ratio eased to 82.7 per cent, compared with 86 per cent a week ago.

Whitney Assails Alarmists, "Weak" Advice of Leaders

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—Taking exception to all plans for artificial stabiliza-

RICHARD WHITNEY.

tion of prices, Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock exchange, in an address today before the Merchants' association of New York, maintained that the ancient law of supply and demand has not been abolished, but will be of enormous significance in the recovery of business.

In the course of his speech on the subject of "Economic Law in Business," Mr. Whitney took occasion to criticize as weak and uncertain the advice which business leaders have offered to the public.

"The crash of commodity prices and production," he said, "together with the stock market panic, at first confused and bewildered the public. So great had been the optimism engendered during the boom that for months public opinion stubbornly remained blind to economic facts. When it finally gave way to general pessimism and alarm, these new moods were all the darker because of the contrast with the totally different state of mind that preceded them. Undoubtedly, from the perspective of 1940, the extreme optimism of 1929 and the unmitigated gloom of 1930 and 1931 will appear equally exaggerated and ridiculous.

Cites Uncertain Counsels.

"The current situation, however, has not been improved by the weak and uncertain counsels which the public has received from business leaders themselves.

"There have been too many suave statements that reassure nobody, too many empty platitudes, too great a lack of frankness and realism, too much of an attitude of trying to whistle in the graveyard at midnight. On the other hand, the occasion has called forth the usual crop of calamity howlers, alarmists, and irresponsible publicity mongers with some personal ax to grind.

"The alarm felt by the public has placed a sort of premium upon making sensational statements. Writing hasty and lurid articles and even books, and issuing solemn warnings of the collapse of civilization, most of these hysterical overstatements have been selfish, vain, and insincere, yet they have played a large part in augmenting the fear of investors and consumers to buy, and in retarding the formulation of constructive business policies.

"Obviously, this sort of thing tends to delay the completion of business readjustment and the ending of the depression.

How to Effect a Cure.

"Mass emotion of this sort is actually generated by major changes in prices, which themselves are caused by economic readjustment. This explains why it is that just when optimism is at its height danger impends, and that just when pessimism is deepest readjustment toward more favorable conditions is already powerfully under way.

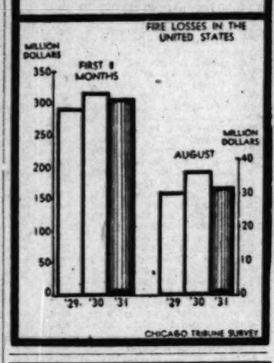
"The depression in business and the fear complex in public opinion then have resulted from an economic readjustment necessitated by the previous liberties which were taken with supply and demand. The sooner, therefore, the policies and actions of our governments and our business enterprises can be put into harmonious accord with natural economic conditions the more quickly this inevitable readjustment will be completed and prosperity will return. The surest way to continue the depression is to prolong the need of readjustment through homeopathic attempts to cure economic ills by injecting into them more of the attempted interference with supply and demand which originally caused them.

View Is Challenged.

"Yet this view is constantly challenged by those who advocate the employment of arbitrary methods of stabilization. Considering business as essentially a meaningless and disorderly process, such men demand artificial policies for limiting production, for stimulating demand, and even for price fixing and price manipulation. The specific forms which this general attitude toward business take are legion.

"It is true that the law of supply and demand is not simple, but complex, in its practical operation, that it sometimes exerts its influence quite gradually, and that a certain amount of interference with it in minor details is inevitable."

FIRE LOSSES, WHICH INCREASED SHARPLY LAST YEAR, ARE NOW SUBSTANTIALLY LOWER



EXPECT INCOME TAX PAYMENTS WILL BE LOWEST IN DECADE

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Treasury officials today saw in the $19,496,353 income tax receipts for the first half of September an indication that the month's collection would be the smallest for any corresponding month in ten years.

The bulk of these payments, $18,106,867, was made on Sept. 15, the quarterly payment date. The total for the month to that date based on uncompleted tabulations was $2,000,000 less than collected in the same period of last September.

These figures, as well as the treasury deficit of $463,171,554 on Sept. 15, were made public as commerce and farm loan bureau officials were watching what they believed to be unmistakable indications of improvement in other lines.

Chicago Daily News Stocks Weak; No Bids

Considerable liquidation in the stocks of the Chicago Daily News, Inc., has occurred in the last few weeks, according to Chicago brokers. The $7 preferred stock dropped to 56 a week ago, when the directors announced omission of the $1.75 quarterly dividend.

Brokers reported yesterday that there were no bids for the preferred shares, whereas stock was offered for sale at 55. The common shares were quoted between 7 and 8, although these quotations were nominal, as trading was very dull. Although dividends had been paid regularly on the preferred stock since 1926 until discontinued a week ago, no dividends have been paid on the common shares. The common shares were given as a bonus to purchasers of the preferred stock on a basis of two common shares for each preferred share when the Chicago Daily News was financially reorganized and recapitalized in 1926.

Chicago Shippers Map Fight on Switching Rate Boosts

Chicago shippers are to hold an informal conference today to plan further action in their fight against increases in railroad rates within the Chicago switching district which, if granted the carriers, will add an estimated $3,000,000 to the annual bill of shippers in the metropolitan area.

The rates involved are those on shipments wholly within the switching district, a territory bounded roughly by a line starting just west of Gary and including at its outer limits—Harvey, Homewood, Blue Island, and Des Plaines. The northern limit of the area corresponds generally to the city limits, but includes a small part of Evanston.

Apply Uniform Rates.

For many years, under a plan known as the Lowery basis, uniform rates have applied for all commodities shipped within the district. Those rates are now 2½ cents per 100 pounds for hauls over one or two railroads, and 3 cents per 100 pounds for hauls over three or more lines. They apply only on carload shipments of a minimum of 60,000 pounds or more.

Since 1927 the railroads operating in Chicago have been fighting for increased rates. They filed applications with the interstate commerce commission and with the state commerce commissions of Illinois and Indiana, since the shipments fall within three classes, those wholly in Illinois, those wholly within Indiana, and those crossing the state line.

States Refuse Increases.

On Aug. 11 the interstate commerce commission granted increases in the rates on interstate shipments, setting new rates at 3 cents per 100 pounds for one line hauls, 3½ cents for two line hauls, and 4 cents for three or more line hauls. The Illinois commerce commission, however, refused on Aug. 26 to approve increases for intrastate shipments in Illinois, and the Indiana commission took similar action.

A week ago the carriers filed a petition with the interstate commission asking that it exercise its power to equalize rates on interstate and intrastate traffic falling in the same classification, and order the application of the increased rates for intrastate as well as interstate traffic. About 40 per cent of the traffic in the switching district is interstate. Of the remainder, 54 per cent, roughly, is wholly within Illinois, and the other 6 per cent in Indiana.

Working on Reply.

Attorneys Luther M. Walter and John S. Burchmore are working on a reply to the carriers' petition, which will be filed with the interstate commerce commission Monday on behlf of the Chicago Shippers' conference, protesting against applying the increased rates to intrastate traffic.

The shippers are also expected to make a decision shortly on whether they wish to petition the interstate commission for a rehearing on the interstate rate increase.

The shippers will advance a number of arguments against the increase in intrastate rates, among them the contention that while the average interstate shipment travels 21 miles, the average intrastate shipment is only 14.9 miles, and that the carriers produced no evidence in the original hearing that the shorter intrastate hauls cost as much as the longer ones across the state line.

Contention of Roads.

The railroads contend that uniform rates, interstate and intrastate, have always applied within the switching district, and application of a differential in favor of intrastate shippers would cause serious economic disturbances to the disadvantage of those shippers sending their products across the state line within the district.

Unless a rehearing is sought by and granted the shippers, the railroads will put the new interstate rates into effect Nov. 10.

EACH COMPANY URGED TO AID OWN JOBLESS

Industrial charity that begins at home, with each concern providing for the wants of its own men who have been laid off, was recommended as a partial solution for the unemployment relief problem at the first fall meeting of the Steel Founders' Society of America, held at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

Executives of the Pettibone Mulliken company of Chicago explained how they proposed to supply all the wants of their former employés through a fund contributed jointly by the company and the salaried employés.

"We believe that this is the way to get real value from charity," said an official of the concern. "If every firm in the Chicago area could take care of its own men in this way there would be no unemployment distress this winter except among floaters, who would be cared for by the regular charitable agencies."

COPPER SINKS AGAIN TO SELL AT 7 CENTS; LOWEST IN HISTORY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—[Special.]—Copper had another sinking spell today, a quantity being sold by a custom smelter agency at 7 cents a pound. This is the lowest price ever recorded in the industry and is 2 cents a pound under the lowest price at which copper ever sold prior to 1931.

The 7 cent price represents a decline of ¼ cent from the price received for most domestic sales yesterday, which was 7¼ cents a pound. The larger companies are understood to be still holding for 7½ cents in the domestic market and 7½ cents a pound for export. The latter figure was announced yesterday by the Copper Exporters, Inc.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 17.—Tired, evidently, of the never ending crop of pessimistic rumors, the bull crowd proceeded to put some of their own brand in circulation today and then proceeded to turn them to account with a well timed drive against the overcrowded short position. As a result the speculative market enjoyed the first really worthwhile upturn since the collapse of the ill-fated "fall advance" away back in August.

United States Steel recovered more than a point of its late losses, American Can rebounded more than 2 points, and such substantial pivotals as American Telephone, New York Central, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Westinghouse, and American Tobacco came back in such sturdy fashion as to register net gains of from 1 to more than 3 points in place of the minus signs that have been their lot from day to day for so many weeks. Elsewhere the recoveries mounted as high as 10 points, the extreme being set by the more or less erratic Auburn Auto.

It was the "technical rally" the street has been anticipating for so long—with trimmings enough to satisfy the most captious.

Short Covering Under Way.

Short covering undoubtedly was the mainspring of the upswing. In some spots suspected of harboring an extensive short interest those with commitments to cover were forced to bid quite vigorously to obtain the wherewithal for their obligations.

Allied Chemical, American Can, Baltimore & Ohio, and General Electric were some of the issues in which such squeezes occurred, the last mentioned carrier favorite rebounding to show a net advance of something over a point after dipping about 5 in the early trading.

Most of the list, in fact, had headed for lower territory at the outset, some 200 separate issues, or more than 30 per cent of those traded in, sounding new bottoms in the first two hours or so. The reversal of the trend came about gradually and did not become general until along about the middle

Deep Rock Oil.

Please furnish me with all available information as to the stability of Deep Rock Oil corporation. Is the rapid decrease in price of the preferred stock during the last year indicative of the financial status of the company? G. O. W.

Deep Rock Oil corporation, formerly Shaffer Oil & Refining company, is controlled by Standard Gas & Electric company. It is a completely integrated unit operating principally in the Mid-Continent field. Distribution is effected through 248 bulk stations and 288 service stations located in eleven states in the north central section of the country.

Net income in 1930 showed the effect of the unsettled condition of the oil industry. Net was $350,000, which just covered preferred dividends and left nothing available for the common.

Net income for 1929 was $1,365,437, which was equal to $27.31 per share of preferred and $1.75 per common share.

Depreciation, depletion and amortization in 1930 were $726,943, against $1,829,344 in 1929. Interest in 1930 was $1,018,284, against $852,773 the year before.

On December 31, 1930, current assets were $5,239,733, and current liabilities were $2,610,624. Cash was $966,520, against $1,081,829 the year before. Working capital was $2,629,109, against $2,492,310 on December 31, 1929. Funded debt totaled $10,000,000. The company is indebted to Standard Gas & Electric company for $6,453,694.

At the close of 1930 there were outstanding 50,000 shares of no par $7 cumulative convertible preferred and 599,475 no par common shares.

On June 25, 1931, a press dispatch stated that the company brought in a well in the Gladewater area in east Texas with an initial production of 30,000 barrels per day.

On April 1, 1931, the management stated that in view of the unsettled conditions in the oil industry in 1930, which had a serious effect on the corporation's earnings, and the present lack of indications of an immediate recovery the directors felt it would be to the best interest of the stockholders to omit the preferred dividend in order to preserve cash resources.

St. Louis-San Francisco Railway.

I bought preferred stock of St. Louis-San Francisco railway on May 25, and sold it on June 26. Am I entitled to the quarterly dividend paid Aug. 1? J. C. S.

A quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share of St. Louis-San Francisco railway preferred stock was paid Aug. 1, to stock of record of July 1, 1931. As you sold this stock before it was ex-dividend, you are not entitled to the August payment.

Why thousands of conservative investors look to the

Harris Trust and Savings Bank for sound bonds

During the past half century, the officers of this organization have been constantly guided by these policies laid down by N. W. Harris in the early days:

"Make security the first requisite and profit the second. If you cannot get the first, decline the second, or, in other words, do not buy an issue of bonds or sell it unless, after full investigation, we would be willing to invest our own funds in the issue."

"Should any trouble occur, protect our customers from loss where possible, by using our best endeavors in their behalf, never compromising the principal until we have exhausted every remedy within our reach."

During these years, covering periods of panics and prosperity, thousands of conservative investors—insurance companies, educational institutions, and individuals—including in some cases four generations of the same family, have favored us with their patronage.

We shall be glad at any time to send you a list of our current offerings and to discuss with you any issue in which you may be interested.

BUILDING COSTS LOWEST IN YEARS, REALTORS SHOW

BY AL CHASE.

Buildings of all types can be built today for less cost than has been possible for the last four and a half years, according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards in a statement made public yesterday. Wholesale prices of building materials have declined every month but one since January, 1930, and are now lower than they have been at any time since 1926; in fact, they are now 22.5 per cent lower than five years ago.

Figures compiled by the United States bureau of labor statistics use the figures 100 for 1926 prices. Throughout 1927 declines occurred every month but two; 1928 was marked by a rise of six points toward the end of the year which held throughout 1929.

Lower Every Month But One.

The following table shows the monthly story from April, 1930, as recorded by the bureau of labor statistics: ▪

May, 1930	92.9
June, 1930	90.0
July, 1930	88.9
August, 1930	87.4
September, 1930	86.4
October, 1930	85.8
November, 1930	85.6
December, 1930	84.4
January, 1931	82.9
February, 1931	81.8
March, 1931	81.9
April, 1931	80.9
May, 1931	78.4
June, 1931	77.5

The last official figures available up to yesterday were those of June, 1931. Building material men state, however, that the federal official figures for July and August undoubtedly will show a continuance of the curve downwards.

Protect Home Industries.

The Iron League of Chicago has adopted resolutions pointing out that many important building products have been allowed to go to non-residential iron manufacturers, although local makers stand in the fore in the nation in this class of work.

The resolutions suggest that the various state, county, and municipal officials be acquainted with the situation and that an appeal be made to Chicago business interests requesting that they become interested in this matter and request the Chicago Association of Commerce to aid the movement.

Buys Five Story Building.

Horace P. Fish of St. Paul, Minn., has purchased the five story building at 3600-3660 Loomis place, 100x125, from the Northern Jobbing company, a wholesale grocery concern which moved to St. Paul a year or so ago. The building, which is in the central manufacturing district, is under lease to the Sandel Manufacturing company, maker of lamp shades.

Worthington & Worthington report a good rental demand for residences. They also state that apartment buildings they manage are now 98 per cent rented. They have leased the house at 837 Junior terrace to George E. Corbett jr. of the Corbett Boiler and Tank company for three years; the residence at 839 Castlewood terrace to Walter W. Meek of Meek & Meek, for two years, and 4530 Dover street to Mrs. J. W. Boudinot.

Shoe Firm Enters Chicago Area.

In line with the tendency among women's apparel specialty shops to develop additional departments in order to outfit customers as completely as possible, the Palmer Apparel Shops, operating twenty-eight units in the Chicago territory, have leased shoe departments in their stores to the Wohl Shoe company of St. Louis. Two already have been installed and others will be opened later. Joseph O. Kaplan was the only broker.

The Wohl Shoe company operates approximately 150 shoe departments in the larger department stores and special shops throughout the middle west. Their entrance into Chicago through a hookup with the Palmer Apparel Shops is the initial step in a larger expansion program in the Chicago territory.

Two yesterday, $6.60; average, $5.90.

Prices of live stock went on another price slashing rampage early yesterday and cut the hog top below the $5.65 line and brought top lambs under $7.00 for the first time since before the world war. Top hogs are at least since December, 1908, and have to go back to November, 1911, for a corn market.

Cattle fluctuated nervously when fresh losses were reported in other big cattle, but the finish was strong and the peak for steers regained 15c of the midweek loss, going up to $10 on weighty beeves. Hogs also found a recovery and the finish was little above the general selling the previous day.

Spread Is Narrow.

The spread in hog prices reached the narrowest point since the middle of last June, the top and general average showing a spread of only 55c at $5.10 and $5.35, respectively. A week ago the two prices were $1.00 apart. Prevailing quotations are unevenly eighty under the high point of last week, lightest hogs showing the greatest losses due to the 5c break in the market for light loins during the last week.

The big increase in the proportion of light hogs has pulled the average weight down 4 lbs compared with a week ago. It has dropped 20 lbs in the last three weeks and stands lightest since the middle of last May. The expected letup in supplies came yesterday and light receipts are in order for today, but with eastern demand narrowest in recent weeks, due to the extreme heat at eastern distributing centers, some in the trade are rather skeptical about immediate recovery of the hog market.

December Hogs at $5.00.

Heavy grades of hogs were offered at $5.00 on the futures market yesterday, but the highest bid for these contracts stopped at $4.50. Both were new lows. Light weights sold at $5.25 for delivery any time this month. The "to arrive" market bids of $5.00 were made for today's hogs.

Cattle receipts dropped to 3,000 yesterday, the smallest barring Fridays and Saturdays since last May. It was the size of a week-end supply, although quality of offerings was better than it is on Fridays and Saturdays. Prime 1,320 lb steers topped the price list at $9.65. However, only a small share of total arrivals sold above $8.50, with the bulk of sales at $7.50@8.50.

Country Demand Narrows.

Country demand for feeding and killing stock of all kinds has stopped off during the last few days. The drastic cut in the fat lamb price curtailed buying of feeders and prices moved again yesterday. Feeding lambs are selling mostly 50c under a week ago, only the best going at $6.50@6.75. Many large orders have been canceled.

Western range lambs sold for $6.00@6.50, while city dressers paid $6.60 for about 300 selected natives averaging 78 lbs, the highest top of the market. Although the public is consuming more lamb than ever before, the number slaughtered is the greatest in history and packers are accumulating on the wholesale markets.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw sugar declined today to the basis of 3.40c for Cuban duty paid. Sugar futures were quiet and generally lower influenced by the easier tone of the market and the poor London cables. Trade was not unchanged to 2 points lower. The day's turnover amounted to only 6,050 tons. Prices follow:
